

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

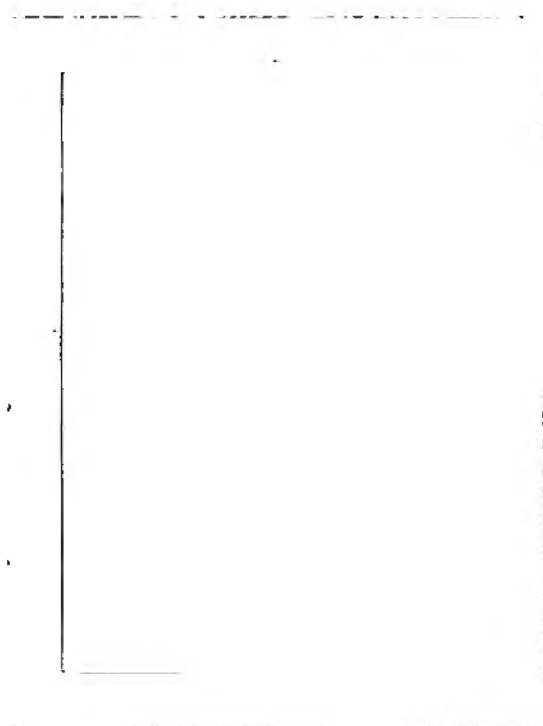

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. . . . PREFACE . . .

THE matter of the publication of the records of Maryland troops, who fought for the preservation of the Federal Union during the great Civil War from 1861 to 1865, was inaugurated by the survivors of that war, through their representative organization, the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Maryland. The survivors of the Civil War and their descendants in the State of Maryland had, for years, hoped that the example set by the other States of the Union, in the compilation and publication of the records of their heroic sons, would have been an incentive to the people of our State to do likewise, as the record of the gallantry of a part of our people would be the common heritage of all.

Over three decades had passed—in fact, a third of a century had rolled on since the close of the greatest civil war history has recorded, and the archives of the State failed to show the muster rolls of her sons, or even a brief record of their splendid achievements.

The survivors and their descendants believed that if anything was to be done in the premises, it should be done at once; moreover, the times were propitious, much of the bitterness and prejudice engendered by the Civil War had passed away, and only its glories and substantial benefits remained.

The Committee on Legislation of the Department of Maryland, Grand Army of the Republic, for the year 1895, had, through the courtesy of Governor Frank Brown and Adjutant-General Douglas, carefully examined such of the muster rolls as were on file in the office of the Adjutant-General of Maryland, and the members of the committee were surprised at the incompleteness and paucity thereof. Not a single regiment or battery was complete, and, in some cases, the muster rolls of entire regiments were missing. Consultations were had, whenever practicable, with the survivors of the different regiments, batteries and companies of the commands accredited to the State of Maryland, and estimates were obtained from the War Department to cover missing data. A bill was then drafted by the committee, and petition and exhibits were prepared. The good offices of Governor Lowndes were asked for, and, upon the assembling of the new Legislature for Maryland in January, 1896, the committee of the Grand Army of the Republic appeared before committees of the Senate and House of Delegates of Maryland and urged action.

The matter was deemed non-partisan and patriotic, and prompt action was urged by a number of distinguished Representatives in both Houses of the General Assembly, especially by Colonel John R. Rouzer, of the House of Delegates, from Frederick County, himself a gallant Union soldier of fine record.

The bill, as drafted by the committee of the Grand Army of the Republic, passed both Houses unanimously and was approved by the Governor. The bill, viz., Chapter 134, Acts of 1896, read as follows:

AN ACT TO PROVIDE FOR THE COMPLETION OF THE RECORDS OF THE SOLDIERS, SAILORS AND MARINES ACCREDITED TO THE STATE OF MARYLAND, IN THE LATE CIVIL WAR, AND TO PUBLISH THE SAME, AND TO MAKE A SUITABLE APPROPRIATION THEREFOR.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the Governor shall, within thirty days after the passage of this Act, appoint three citizens, of whom the Adjutant-General of the State shall be one, and the other two of whom shall be representative soldiers who served in actual warfare as a part of the quota of the State of Maryland in the United States Army or Navy during the late Civil War, as Commissioners of the State to carry out the provisions of this Act, as hereinafter provided, and who shall serve without pay.

Section 2. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the said Commissioners under this Act to classify and compile, from the documents in the Adjutant-General's office, the records of the several commands, and the individuals thereof, of Maryland soldiers, sailors and marines serving as a part of the quota of the State of Maryland in the Army and Navy of the United States during the late Civil War, and in case of any deficiency in the record of any individual or command in the Adjutant-General's office, they shall be empowered to complete the said deficient records from the records of the War and Navy Departments of the United States, for which purpose the Governor shall, at the request of the said Commissioners, make requisition for the desired information upon the Secretaries of the said Departments, in accordance with the existing laws.

Section 3. And be it enacted, That the said Commissioners shall be empowered to employ such clerical aid, and purchase such stationery as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act, the same to be paid for from the appropriation hereinafter provided for. They shall also be empowered to deposit with the War and Navy Departments of the United States, in accordance with the existing orders of the said Departments, such a sum of money, to be taken from the appropriation hereinafter provided for, or may be required by the Secretaries of the said War and Navy Departments, to secure the United States from liability for any expense incurred in copying and completing from their records the deficient records of Maryland soldiers, sailors and marines, as provided for in Section 2 of this Act.

Section 4. And be it enacted, That the said Commissioners, upon the completion of the said records, shall be empowered to have printed and bound in two or more volumes, one thousand copies of the same, together with brief history of each command, to be distributed as follows: 300 copies to the headquarters of the Department of Maryland, Grand Army of the Republic, for distribution to the several Grand Army Posts in the State; 2 copies to each public library and school library in the State; 1 copy to the Adjutant-General of each of the United States for each State Library; 10 copies to the Congressional Library, at Washington, D. C.; the balance of the copies to be deposited with the State Librarian, at Annapolis, for distribution as may be deemed proper by the Adjutant-General of the State.

Section 5. And be it enacted, That the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be, and the same is hereby appropriated, to pay for the provisions of this Act; and the Comptroller of the State, upon proper vouchers approved by the said Commissioners or a majority of them, shall, from time to time, draw his warrants upon the State Treasurer for the amounts necessary to pay for clerical aid, for stationery, and for deposit with the War and Navy Departments at Washington, a guarantee fund, as provided for in Section 2 of this Act, and also to pay for the printing, binding and distributing of the copies of the said records, as provided for in Section 4 of this Act.

Section 6. And be it enacted, That the necessary expenses incurred by the said Commissioners in carrying out the provisions of this Act, not to exceed the sum of one thousand dollars, shall be paid out of the said appropriated sum of fifteen thousand dollars, and the said Comptroller is authorized to draw his warrants upon the State Treasurer therefor, upon receiving an itemized account of such expenses, verified by the affidavit of the said Commissioners, or any one of them.

Section 7. And be it enacted, That this Act shall take effect from the date of its passage.

Approved April 2, 1896.

In pursuance of the provisions of this Act, Governor Lowndes appointed a Commission, consisting of General L. Allison Wilmer, Adjutant-General of Maryland; Dr. James H. Jarrett, late surgeon 7th Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, and Colonel

Geo. W. F. Vernon, late Cole's Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers. (Colonel Vernon had been the chairman of the G. A. R. Legislative Committee.)

The Commission organized in the selection of General L. Allison Wilmer as President and Colonel Geo. W. F. Vernon as Secretary.

The great amount of painstaking labor necessarily involved in the careful and accurate compiling of the individual and collective records of the 62,959 names of those who served in the army and navy from the State of Maryland was increased on account of the difficulty and, in some cases, the impossibility of obtaining accurate data.

The Commission carefully examined the published records of the different States of the Union, and finally adopted as a model the record of the State of Pennsylvania, with some modifications suggested by the records of the State of Minnesota, as being the briefest and yet the most complete and comprehensive record of the individual and the regiment.

The Commission compiled all the data possible from such incomplete records as were found in the office of the Adjutant-General of Maryland.

They invited, by circular letter and otherwise, the active co-operation of the surviving veterans of the Civil War representing the different regiments, batteries and companies, soliciting the loan of retained copies of muster rolls, rosters, historical data, etc., and the advice and counsel of these veterans.

The Commission also requested inspection of the work in hand as it progressed, with a view of correcting errors, more especially in names, dates of enlistment, discharge, promotions, transfers, casualties, etc.

The Commission then made requisition, through the Governor of Maryland, upon the War Department for the missing data—in many cases for the enlisted men of entire regiments, under the provisions of Act of Congress approved March 2, 1895.

The Commission find that, while the records will be in the main accurate and complete, nevertheless, by reason of the neglect and failure and clerical errors of certain regimental, company and mustering officers in making returns of certain names, promotions, casualties, etc., the record cannot be made perfect.

The Commission have divided the work into two volumes, one volume embracing all of the troops accredited to the quota of the State of Maryland, and distinctively recognized as Maryland troops; the second volume to embrace all of the sailors, marines and colored troops from Maryland who served in the Union army or navy.

The Commission, in preparing the histories of the different regiments, batteries, companies and battalions, realized that the scope of the work entrusted to them did not contemplate more than compendiums; nevertheless, they have as briefly as possible, with the official data at their command and the assistance of survivors of the war, set forth the material facts in connection with the organizations in as fair, just and impartial a manner as the facts at their disposal warranted.

It has been a difficult matter, after the lapse of so many years and the death of so many of the survivors, with so many muster rolls missing and inaccuracies therein, to do complete justice to this work.

To recapitulate, the Commission have derived data and information from the official records of the Adjutant-General's office, at Annapolis, Md., and the War Department, Washington, D. C.; from retained copies of rolls, data and memoranda furnished by survivors of the war; from "Regimental Losses of the American Civil War," by Fox; and from J. W. Kirkley's manuscripts of his history of Maryland troops during the Civil War.

While this work may not be as complete as some would wish, while it may be thought that a more particular account of individual deeds should have been given, it must be remembered that the primary object of the publication is to preserve a faithful, true and impartial record of the names and length of service of those Marylanders who served their country in the late conflict, to be held in honor and reverence not only by the survivors and the descendants of their departed comrades in this day and generation, but by every patriotic Marylander for generations to come.

ADDENDUM.

It is only fair that credit should be given Colonel George W. F. Vernon for his invaluable services as one of the Commission. While all of the members of the Commission attended meetings and exercised general supervision, the clerical work was under the immediate charge and constant supervision of Colonel Vernon, as Secretary, and he compiled and prepared the historical part of this record.

L. ALLISON WILMER,

A BRIEF RETROSPECT

OF

THE HISTORY OF MARYLAND'S REPRESENTATIVES IN THE ARMY AND NAVY OF THE UNITED STATES DURING THE GREAT CIVIL WAR, A. D. 1861 TO 1865.

HE State of Maryland responded promptly to the call for the preservation of the Federal Union. While her people were divided in sentiment, many of them being connected by social and business ties with the Southern States, which attempted to divide the Union and set up a separate Confederacy, nevertheless the dominant sentiment was in favor of the Union. The Union people, especially in the western section of the State, in the early days of 1861, without waiting for the authorities to act, took initiatory proceedings to form military organizations to protect themselves and preserve order.

They subsequently, upon the call of the proper authorities, enlisted regularly in the Army or Navy of the United States.

A considerable number of the people of Maryland who sympathized with the Southern Confederacy, and who had the courage of their convictions, promptly left the State and joined the Confederate troops.

Maryland was on the border land, and in the early days of the Civil War, before the Government was apparently making any serious effort for its own maintenance, and while Confederate troops were stationed on the banks of the Potomac (on her borders), with a full knowledge that her territory would become, in part, the seat of war, her people did not hesitate as to their duty.

They enlisted in the regular Army or Navy of the United States, and in regiments from other States of the Union. They formed military organizations, and the Union Home Guards, of Western Maryland, armed and equipped, protected, confirmed and strengthened the Union sentiment in that section of the State. No appeal made to them, even when their territory was occupied by Confederate armies, or their fair fields desolated by contending hosts, property seized, appropriated, consumed, burned or destroyed, could make them waver in their allegiance to the Union.

The sacrifices made by the people of Maryland for the preservation of the Union have never been properly understood or appreciated.

The first naval contingent which manned the fleet of Commander Foote, in the year 1861, on the Mississippi, and which did such splendid service, was composed in part of Baltimore sailors, descendants of that gallant body of men who carried the American flag to victory on the high seas in the famous Baltimore privateers during the war of 1812-1815.

Maryland sailors helped man the fleets of Admirals Farragut and Porter at New Orleans, Mobile Bay, Charleston and Wilmington. In fact, wherever a naval engagement was had during the Civil War, you could "find the Baltimore sailor" on the shipping lists.

The First Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized at Baltimore in May, 1861, composed not only of citizens of Baltimore, but from a number of the counties, especially Frederick, Howard and Baltimore counties. Major John R. Kenly, a veteran soldier of the Mexican War, was commissioned Colonel. Colonel Kenly was subsequently promoted Brigadier-General and Brevet Major-General.

The regiment promptly proceeded to the front, and at Front Royal, Virginia, May 23, 1862, it emulated the old Maryland line of yore, by the terrible sacrifice it made to save General Banks' Army of the Shenandoah from annihilation, as its progenitors had done at Long Island, New York, in the War of the Revolution, to save the army of General Washington.

This regiment maintained its reputation for gallantry all through the Civil War; re-enlisted for the war and veteranized upon the expiration of their original terms of enlistment, and was at the front, with the 5th Army Corps of the Army of the Potomac, at the final surrender of General Robert E. Lee's Confederate Army at Appomattox, Va., April 9, 1865.

The Second and Third Regiments of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, were organized in June, 1861, and rendered splendid service in the States of North Carolina, Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee, as well as on the sanguinary battlefield of Antietam, Md., September 17, 1862, where the Second Regiment particularly distinguished itself in the charge at the Burnside Bridge, as it also did at the siege of Knoxville, Tenn., November 18 to December 6, 1863.

The Third Regiment acted with conspicuous gallantry at the great Battle of Gettysburg, Pa., July 2 and 3, 1863.

The Fourth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Regiments of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, were organized from June to September, 1862.

The Fifth Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized in September, 1861.

The Purnell Legion, consisting of a regiment of infantry, three companies of cavalry, and two batteries of artillery, was organized from October to December, 1861, through the instrumentality of the Hon. William H. Purnell, who was Postmaster at Baltimore City at the time, and after whom it was named. Colonel Samuel Graham, of this regiment, was a prominent Maryland lawyer.

The First, Second and Third Regiments of Potomac Home Brigade Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, and Cole's Battalion, Potomac Home Brigade Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers, were organized in the western section of the State between August 1, 1861, and October, 1861, through the instrumentality of the Hon. Francis Thomas, member of Congress, by special authority of the Secretary of War.

Like the famous Pennsylvania Reserves, this brigade was organized for special service and contained excellent material, and from the battlefields of Gettysburg, Pa. (where the First Regiment, Potomac Home Brigade Infantry, under the command of Colonel William P. Maulsby, a distinguished Maryland lawyer of Revolutionary stock, rendered signal service and suffered severely), to Lynchburg, Va., on the James River, they rendered gallant service, especially the cavalry battalion, which was always known officially and otherwise as "Cole's Cavalry," and which made quite a reputation for its daring and successful raids. It was composed of farmers' sons from the border land, who owned their own horses and who were natural born cavalymen.

For its gallant conduct in heading the cavalry column which cut its way through the enemy's lines at Harper's Ferry, Va., prior to its surrender, September 14, 1862, and for its splendid conduct at the midnight battle in the snow on Loudon Heights, Va., January 10, 1864 (for which it received a congratulatory order from the General-in-Chief of the Armies of the United States), the battalion was augmented to a full regiment of three battalions in the spring of 1864.

Lieutenant-Colonel Vernon, who lost an eye in this battle, was afterwards Surveyor of Customs at Baltimore, Md., and Major Alexander Shaw, of Second Regiment Infantry, Potomac Home Brigade, who rendered gallant service with his command in West Virginia, is at present one of the most successful financiers and business men of Maryland.

The First and Second Regiments of Eastern Shore Infantry Volunteers were organized from September to December, 1861, of excellent material, and many of the officers, like Colonel Wallace, Colonel Wilkens and Captain W. D. Burchinal (afterwards Surveyor of Customs at Baltimore, Md.), were members of the oldest and best families of that section of Maryland.

The First Eastern Shore Regiment performed gallant service on Culp's Hill, at the battle of Gettysburg, Pa., July 2 and 3, 1863, and the Second Regiment was conspicuous for its soldiery qualities during the Lynchburg campaign of 1864.

The Thirteenth Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized March 1, 1865.

The First Regiment of Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized between August, 1861, and June, 1862. A portion of this regiment came from the District of Columbia and the State of Pennsylvania. They rendered invaluable service with the cavalry corps of the Army of the Potomac, and particularly distinguished themselves at the cavalry fights and victories of Brandy Station, Va., June 9, 1863, and Gettysburg, Pa., July 1-3, 1863. Many of the officers were promoted from the ranks for gallantry and meritorious conduct.

The Third Regiment of Cavalry was organized at Baltimore, Md., from August 8, 1863, to January 9, 1864, and performed good service in the States of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

The Patapsco Guards, Independent Company of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized September 25, 1861.

Smith's Independent Company of Cavalry was organized October 15, 1862.

The Baltimore Battery, Light Artillery (Alexander's), was organized August 18, 1862. It was composed of most excellent material; one of its former lieutenants, Peter Leary, is now captain, of fine record, of Battery D, 4th Regiment, United States Artillery.

It rendered splendid service at the battle of Winchester, Va., June 14 and 15, 1863, and at Monocacy, Md., July 9, 1864.

Battery D, Maryland Light Artillery, was organized June 24 to November 2, 1864, and assigned to the defenses of Washington.

Batteries A (Rigby's) and B, Maryland Light Artillery, were organized from August to October, 1861, and originally constituted a part of the Purnell Legion.

They had a splendid record, and particularly distinguished themselves at the battle of Malvern Hill, Va., July 1, 1862, as a part of that grand park of artillery which drove back, with such severe losses, the victorious troops of Lee and saved the Army of the Potomac.

Again, at battles of Antietam, Md., September 17, 1862, Fredericksburg, Va., December 13, 1862, and Gettysburg, Pa., July 2 and 3, 1863, they were conspicuous for their gallant and efficient service.

All of the aforementioned regiments of infantry and cavalry and batteries of artillery enlisted for three years, or during the war—that is, the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Thirteenth Regiments of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers; the First Regiment of Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers, and Cole's Cavalry (First Regiment, Potomac Home Brigade Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers); Batteries A (Rigby's), B and D, Maryland Light Artillery; and the Baltimore Battery, Maryland Light Artillery (Alexander's).

The older commands, as aforesaid, on the expiration of their terms of enlistments, re-enlisted for the war—that is, the First, Second, Third, Fifth Regiments of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers; First, Second, Third Regiments of Potomac Home Brigade Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, and the First and Second Regiments of Eastern Shore Infantry, Maryland Volunteers; the First Regiment of Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers, and Cole's Cavalry (1st Regiment. P. H. B. Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers); Companies A, B and C Cavalry, Purnell Legion; Patapsco Guards, Independent Company of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.

The Ninth and Tenth Regiments of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, were organized in July, 1863, to serve six months; they were really emergency men, to aid in repelling the invasion of Maryland and Pennsylvania by General Lee's Confederate Army of Northern Virginia. Both regiments rendered good service, and the Ninth Regiment was surrounded and captured by an overwhelming force of the enemy, after a gallant defense at Charlestown, Va., October 18, 1863.

The Eleventh Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized June 16, 1864, to serve one hundred days, as emergency men, to repel the invasion of the State by General Early's Confederate Army, and participated in the battle of Monocacy, Md., July 9, 1864—a battle made necessary against odds, in order to save the Capitol at Washington from capture.

The Eleventh Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers (one year's men), was composed of the re-enlisted men of the Eleventh Regiment Infantry, one hundred days' men, and also of consolidations with seven companies of the re-enlisted men of the First Regiment, Eastern Shore Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.

Captain Charles Chaille Long, of this regiment, afterwards became a colonel in the Egyptian army, and served on the staff of General C. P. Gordon during his campaign in the Soudan. He is widely known for his literary and scientific attainments.

The Twelfth Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized July 30, 1864, as another emergency regiment for one hundred days, and was assigned to guard duty to enable veteran regiments to proceed to the front.

The Second Regiment of Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized from July 1, 1863, to August 19, 1863, for six months, as an emergency regiment and for special service in Southern Maryland.

Batteries A and B (Second), Maryland Light Artillery, were organized in July, 1863, to serve six months, and were assigned to garrison duty in the fortifications for the defenses of Baltimore, Md.

The Fourth, Seventh and Eighth Regiments of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, with the First Regiment of Infantry, constituted the famous Maryland Brigade. This brigade, after rendering valuable service in Western Maryland and West Virginia, became a part of the great Army of the Potomac, and from the year 1863 to close of the war was an integral part thereof, sharing all of its hardships, marches, vicissitudes, reverses and victories until the close of the war.

The history of the Fourth, Seventh and Eighth Regiments of Infantry was substantially the same. The gallant conduct of these regiments during the campaign of 1864 and 1865, under General Grant, until the surrender of Lee at Appomattox, reflected great honor and credit upon themselves and the State of Maryland.

These regiments were made up of Marylanders from all sections of the State. Many distinguished and representative Marylanders were officers in these regiments, amongst whom might be mentioned Colonel Harrison Adreon, of the Fourth Regiment of Infantry, afterwards Postmaster at Baltimore, Md. The Hon. Edwin H. Webster, a prominent lawyer of Harford County, a member of Congress for several terms, and afterwards Collector of Customs at Baltimore, was the first colonel of the Seventh Regiment. He was succeeded by the Hon. Charles E. Phelps, also a member of Congress, who was severely wounded, and breveted brigadier-general for gallant and meritorious conduct on the battlefield, and who is at present one of the Justices of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City, highly respected and honored by all classes of our people as a jurist and a citizen. Colonel Andrew Dennison, of the Eighth Regiment, came of an old mercantile family of Baltimore, Md., lost an arm in battle, and was breveted brigadier-general. He was afterwards Postmaster at Baltimore.

The Sixth Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, known as "The Fighting Sixth," was one of the two Maryland regiments (the First Regiment of Infantry being the other) classified by Colonel Fox as one of the three hundred fighting regiments of the war who suffered the severest losses.

The Sixth Regiment had certainly a very brilliant record, and during a long period of its service was a component part of the Sixth Army Corps, which rendered such splendid service to the Union cause, both under Sheridan in the Shenandoah Valley campaign, and under Grant in the Wilderness and through to the end. Colonel John W. Horn, of this regiment, was promoted brigadier-general, and was afterwards at the head of several Maryland institutions, displaying rare executive ability in their management.

The Fifth Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, fought at Bloody Lane on the Antietam battlefield, September 17, 1862, with distinguished gallantry, and its commanding officer, for the time being, Major Leopold Blumenburg (a representative of that enterprising and useful German-American element who have done so much to build up the material interests of Maryland), was shot down whilst leading his regiment.

The Purnell Legion, infantry regiment, rendered gallant service in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia and with the Army of the Potomac.

The companies of cavalry originally attached to the Legion rendered good service all through the war, and especially Company A, at the Battle of Gettysburg.

The Fourth, Seventh, Ninth, Nineteenth, Thirtieth and Thirty-Ninth Regiments of United States Colored Troops were recruited in Maryland from July, 1863, to March, 1864. While these regiments were not raised under the auspices of the authorities of Maryland, or recognized by them as Maryland troops, nevertheless they were essentially Maryland troops, to all intents and purposes, although recruited and organized under the direct authority of the United States. These regiments rendered good service and suffered severe losses. They always regarded themselves as Maryland troops, and were proud of their native State.

A very large number of colored people were recruited in Maryland by recruiting agents from other States, and assigned to regiments organized in and accredited to other States.

A considerable number of colored people also shipped in the United States Navy during the Civil War. A large proportion of these enlistments in the army and navy were subsequently accredited to the quota of the State of Maryland.

Maryland furnished to the Union Army twenty (20) regiments and one independent company of infantry; four regiments, one battalion and one independent company of cavalry; and six batteries of light artillery; or a total of twenty-four (24) regiments, one battalion and two independent companies, designated as follows:

- First Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.
- Second Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.
- Third Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.
- Fourth Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.
- Fifth Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.
- Sixth Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.
- Seventh Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.
- Eighth Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.
- Ninth Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.
- Tenth Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.
- Eleventh Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers (100 days' men).
- Eleventh Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers (one year's men).
- Twelfth Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.
- Thirteenth Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.
- First Regiment, Eastern Shore Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.
- Second Regiment, Eastern Shore Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.
- First Regiment, Potomac Home Brigade Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.
- Second Regiment, Potomac Home Brigade Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.

Third Regiment, Potomac Home Brigade Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.

Purnell Legion Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.

Patapsco Guards, Independent Company of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.

First Regiment Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers.

First Regiment, Potomac Home Brigade Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers (Cole's Cavalry).

Second Regiment Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers.

Third Regiment Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers.

Smith's Independent Company of Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers.

Battery A, Maryland Light Artillery Volunteers (Rigby's).

Battery B, Maryland Light Artillery Volunteers (Snow's).

Battery D, Maryland Light Artillery.

Baltimore Battery, Maryland Light Artillery (Alexander's).

Battery A (Second), Maryland Light Artillery (Junior Artillery).

Battery B (Second), Maryland Light Artillery (Eagle Artillery).

A total of thirty-three (33) commands regularly organized, recognized and credited to the State of Maryland.

The regiments authorized to be known as the Fourth Regiment, Potomac Home Brigade Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, the Baltimore or Dix Light Infantry, and the German Rifles never completed their organizations, and, before entering active field service, were assigned to and consolidated with other Maryland regiments.

If these three regiments were added to those already specified, as well as the six regiments of colored troops recruited and organized in Maryland, viz., the Fourth, Seventh, Ninth, Nineteenth, Thirtieth and Thirty-Ninth Regiments of the United States Colored Troops, it would make a grand total of forty-two (42) organizations furnished by Maryland to the cause of the Union during the Civil War.

Many of these regiments re-enlisted for the war and recruited their depleted ranks by consolidations and otherwise repeatedly, and while a regiment of infantry may have entered the service with ten companies and a maximum strength of 1070 men, and a cavalry regiment with twelve companies and a maximum strength of 1276 men, a battery of artillery with a maximum strength of 103 men, nevertheless, from the commencement to the end of the war, over double the number of men would often actually appear upon their muster rolls, and did actually serve in the ranks, as was the case as shown by the official records of the First Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, with a grand total of 2541 men, the First Maryland Cavalry, with 2036 men, and Battery D, Maryland Light Artillery, with 178 men.

These enlistments, re-enlistments, recruits, drafted men and substitutes accredited to the quota of Maryland aggregated a very large number of men; in fact, much larger than might have been supposed from the number of organizations accredited to the State.

The total population of Maryland, male and female, according to the United States census for the year 1860, was six hundred and eighty-seven thousand and forty-nine (687,049), white and colored.

Maryland furnished, according to the official records of the War and Navy Departments of the United States of America, from the year 1861 to the year 1865, fifty thousand three hundred and sixteen (50,316) white troops, eight thousand seven hundred and eighteen (8718) colored troops, and three thousand nine hundred and twenty-five (3925) sailors and marines, or a grand total of sixty-two thousand nine hundred and fifty-nine (62,959) men, nearly one-tenth of its entire population at the time thereof, or over fifteen per cent. of its male population.

A perusal of the different regimental histories in this publication will show the serious losses, in killed and wounded, suffered by the Maryland troops during the Civil War.

It is but proper to state that the histories of the Maryland troops would not be complete without mention of the War Governors of Maryland, viz., the Hon. Thomas Holiday Hicks and the Hon. Augustus W. Bradford, who manifested much interest in the enlistment, organization and service of the Maryland troops. Governor Bradford paid frequent visits to the troops in the field, with a view to their betterment and efficiency, and was prompt to recognize efficiency, zeal and gallantry by promotions, etc., when in his power to do so.

The history and record of the Maryland soldiers and sailors who fought for the Union in the great Civil War is one of which every Marylander, no matter what his opinion past or present may have been, should feel a just pride.

Let it teach a lesson to posterity of patriotism, self-sacrifice and devotion to duty, as seen by their fathers, and may future generations be as ready and willing to respond to the call of duty and patriotism when the Nation and State demand, remembering at all times "that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

FIRST REGIMENT INFANTRY.

THE First Maryland Infantry was the first Maryland regiment mustered into the service of the United States during the Civil War for the preservation of the Union. On the 6th day of May, 1861 a recruiting office was opened at No. 112 West Baltimore Street, Baltimore City, Maryland, by Capt. John C. McConnell, a citizen of Baltimore City, under the auspices of General John R. Kenly and other prominent loyal citizens of Maryland. In ten days' time—that is, on the 16th day of May, 1861—four companies had been recruited, viz.: Companies A, B, C and D, and were duly mustered into the service of the United States, for the term of three years, as a part of the First Maryland Infantry Regiment.

Meanwhile, recruiting was going on in other portions of the City of Baltimore and in the State of Maryland for the same regiment, so that by the 27th day of May, 1861, Companies E, F, G, H, I and K had completed their quota, and all of said companies were duly mustered into the service of the United States, thus completing the first organized Maryland regiment accredited to the quota of Maryland in the great Civil War.

The regiment immediately went into camp at the Relay House, on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and remained there until the 6th day of June, 1861, when it moved to Camp Carroll, nearer Baltimore City. Here Col. John R. Kenly assumed command of the regiment, and it was at this camp also that the patriotic ladies of West Baltimore, on the 18th day of June, 1861, presented the regiment with a regimental flag, the presentation being witnessed by a large concourse of patriotic and enthusiastic people.

Whilst encamped at Camp Carroll the regiment was fully armed, equipped, drilled, disciplined and prepared for active field service.

On the 7th day of July, 1861, the regiment was ordered to proceed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad to Frederick City, Maryland, and from thence it marched by the old national turnpike to Middletown, where it went into its first bivouac for the night.

The next day it marched to the Antietam and encamped on the banks of that now historic stream; thence marched to Downsville, which was reached on the 10th, and remained until the 23d day of July, when it marched to Williamsport, on the Potomac river.

Several of the companies were immediately detailed for detached duty to guard the fords and ferries of the Potomac river from the mouth of the Antietam to Williamsport, and whilst engaged in this duty had frequent skirmishes with the Confederates.

The regiment remained on the upper Potomac until October 16, 1861, when it marched sixty miles to Darnestown to take part in the campaign that culminated in the Battle of Ball's Bluff.

On the 2d day of December, 1861, the regiment marched again to the vicinity of Frederick, where it went into winter quarters with General Banks' Division, but it was not as fortunate as the major part of Banks' Division, for it had hardly prepared itself for the inclement winter season when the regiment was ordered to march to Williamsport to repel an anticipated advance of the enemy into Maryland. After a midnight march the regiment reached Williamsport and learned that the enemy were operating further up the Potomac in an effort to destroy the locks on the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal. Promptly marching to the point of attack, the regiment aided in repelling the enemy.

The headquarters of the regiment were established at Four Locks, and a number of companies detailed for duty at the crossings of the upper Potomac. Whilst on this duty, a number of attempts of the enemy were foiled and spirited engagements were had at old Fort Frederick, Cherry Run and Dam No. 5.

The regiment continued on this duty until the night of the 7th day of January, 1862, when Col. Kenly, with Companies A, B, C, E, G and I, made a forced night march through a pitiless snow storm, over North Mountain to Hancock, Maryland, then being besieged by General (Stonewall) Jackson's Confederate Army.

The arrival of the First Regiment of Maryland Infantry Volunteers and other reinforcements caused the enemy to speedily retire via Romney to their winter quarters at Winchester, Va.

The First Maryland Infantry was now brigaded with the 46th Pennsylvania Infantry, 28th New York Infantry and 5th Connecticut Infantry, and constituted Williams' Brigade (3d Brigade), General Banks' Division (afterwards 1st Brigade, 1st Division, 5th Army Corps).

The regiment, with the 3d Brigade, remained on the upper Potomac until the 28th day of February, 1862, when it marched to Williamsport, and on the 2d day of March, 1862, crossed the Potomac river into Virginia with Banks' Division, and marched through a blinding snow storm to Martinsburg, Virginia, which was occupied without opposition.

On the 5th day of March, 1862, the regiment skirmished with the enemy at Bunker Hill, and again on the 8th and 11th near Winchester, Virginia.

On the 12th day of March, 1862, the regiment occupied Winchester, Va., after slight opposition with Williams' Brigade.

On the 23d instant the regiment, whilst on the march from Winchester to Centreville, Va., was ordered to return immediately by a forced march to Winchester for the relief of General Shields' Division, that had been attacked by General Stonewall Jackson's Confederate Army. Happily, General Shields had repulsed the enemy, and the regiment joined in the pursuit of the Confederates.

Company B, of the regiment which had remained at Winchester on detached duty, took part in this Union victory.

The regiment, with Banks' Division, continued the pursuit of the enemy up the Shenandoah Valley as far as Harrisonburg, when it slowly returned down the valley and, by order of General Banks, the regiment, under Col. Kenly, with two companies of the 29th Pennsylvania Infantry and a section of Knapp's Pennsylvania Battery, proceeded to Front Royal, Va., where, one week later—that is, on the 23d day of May, 1862—this little command was attacked by the army of General Stonewall Jackson, 18,000 strong.

The engagement that ensued reflected great credit on the regiment. If the enemy had succeeded in a speedy capture or annihilation of the regiment, the capture of General Banks' Army, only five thousand strong, then at Strasburg, would have been inevitable, as the enemy would have commanded the only practicable line of retreat.

This little command had for several hours gallantly fought vastly superior numbers, crossed both branches of the Shenandoah river in the face of a heavy fire, with the enemy both in front and rear, contesting every foot of ground for several miles, until they were finally overwhelmed.

The regiment lost fourteen officers and men killed, forty-three wounded, and five hundred and thirty-five captured. About two hundred and fifty men effected their escape under cover of the woods, and company E, on detached duty at Linden Station, eight miles distant from Front Royal at the time of the engagement, learning of the fate of the regiment, effected an orderly retreat.

The sacrifice was not in vain; Col. Kenly had promptly advised General Banks of the condition of affairs, and, by his splendid defense, enabled Banks' Division to effect a safe retreat from Strasburg.

The remnant of the regiment proceeded, under orders to Baltimore, for reorganization, etc., where it remained until September, 1862, when the famous Maryland Brigade was formed, consisting, at the time, of 1st, 4th, 6th, 7th and 8th Regiments of Infantry, together with Alexander's Battery of Baltimore Light Artillery. (The 6th Regiment of Infantry and Alexander's Battery were subsequently detached from the brigade and assigned to other commands.)

On the 18th day of September the regiment, with the Maryland Brigade, left Baltimore under orders to join the Army of the Potomac, then on the Antietam.

In November, 1862, the returned prisoners of war rejoined the regiment.

The regiment continued on duty on the upper Potomac and constituted a part of the 1st Brigade, 1st Division, 8th Army Corps.

On the 9th day of April, 1863, the regiment and brigade proceeded by Baltimore & Ohio Railroad to Grafton, West Virginia, to repel an invasion by a large Confederate force. After an energetic but brief campaign the enemy rapidly retreated, and the command returned to Maryland Heights, opposite to Harper's Ferry, where it remained until the 30th day of June, 1863, when, as a portion of French's Division, it marched to Frederick, Maryland, by order of the War Department, in order to act as a reserve to the Army of the Potomac, then engaged in the Gettysburg campaign, and also to protect the Government at Washington.

On the 6th day of July, 1863, the command was ordered to retake and occupy Maryland Heights, the enemy being in full possession and engaged in repairing the bridge that had been destroyed by Cole's Maryland Cavalry a few nights prior thereto, to prevent the enemy from capturing and removing the valuable ordnance stores on Maryland Heights. After a brisk engagement, the enemy were driven away and the Heights re-occupied.

The brigade, of which the regiment was a part, now became the 3d Brigade, 3d Division, 1st Army Corps, which it joined July 10, 1863, near Boonsborough, Maryland, and aided in the final movements of the Army of the Potomac in Maryland, which resulted in the retreat of the Confederate army, under General Lee, into Virginia.

The regiment crossed into Virginia again on the 18th day of July, 1863, with the Army of the Potomac, and participated in all of the active campaigns in Virginia inaugurated by General Meade, then in command of said army during the latter part of the summer, autumn and winter of 1863 and 1864.

The winter of 1863 and 1864, spent by the Army of the Potomac on the Rapidan, was dreary, gloomy and severe.

The consolidation of the Army of the Potomac into three instead of five army corps made the 1st Maryland Regiment a part of the (Maryland Brigade) 3d Brigade, 2d Division, 5th Army Corps.

This consolidation necessitated the displacement of several valuable officers, including General Kenly, the former commander of the 1st Maryland Infantry, much to the regret of his old comrades in arms.

The Government having offered strong inducements to the soldiers in the armies of the United States who had served in the field for two years to re-enlist for the war, about three hundred and forty of the 1st Maryland Regiment availed themselves of the offer, and about the 1st day of April, 1864, this portion of the regiment, under Col. Dushane, returned to Baltimore on a thirty days' furlough, where they were received with high honors by the Baltimore City authorities, and thence furloughed to their respective homes.

The balance of the regiment, under the command of Major B. H. Schley, remained in camp until the 3d day of May, 1864, when it moved with the Army of the Potomac, under General Grant's immediate supervision, to engage in the terrible Wilderness campaign.

At midnight on the 3d the regiment moved out of camp and crossed the Rapidan river the next day at 12 M.

On the morning of the 5th the regiment took its place in line of battle in the Wilderness. The Maryland Brigade, of which the 1st Regiment formed a part, supported the famous Iron Brigade, who were fired upon by the enemy covered by the thick forests and undergrowth. At a distance of forty paces the Iron Brigade returned the fire with visible effect, immediately charged with the bayonet and drove the enemy to his second line, who, being reinforced, drove back the Iron Brigade in confusion, to be repulsed in turn by the severe fire of the Maryland Brigade.

So the tide of battle ebbed and flowed all day and far into the night, and the entire Army of the Potomac was more or less engaged, the losses on both sides being very severe.

The battle was renewed on the 6th, raging with great fury and with frightful losses on both sides. To add to the horrors of the battle the undergrowth took fire, sending up great volumes of flame and smoke, in which many of the helpless wounded perished.

The evening of the second day's battle left both armies substantially on the same ground.

On the night of the 7th, General Grant inaugurated his famous flank movements that inspired the confidence of the Army of the Potomac in ultimate success under his guidance.

About 8 P. M. on the evening of the 7th, the 1st Maryland, with its Corps (5th Army Corps), took up the line of march for Spottsylvania Court House; the night was intensely dark and the roads almost impassable. After a most fatiguing march, the command arrived on the battlefield of Spottsylvania Court House on the morning of the 8th, and immediately entered into the contest then in progress, one of the severest of the campaign. The 1st Maryland alone sustained a loss of fifty-three in killed, wounded and missing. Three of its color bearers were successively shot down.

Two of the Maryland Brigade commanders were also successively shot down, as well as the Division commander.

From the 8th to the 19th of May, the regiment was engaged in the constant maneuvers and actions incident to the movements of the Army of the Potomac.

On the 19th instant the original members, who had not re-enlisted for the war, received orders to return home to be mustered out after three years' service.

About the same time the veterans of the 1st Maryland Infantry Regiment, who had re-enlisted for the war, returned to rejoin the Maryland Brigade with the 5th Army Corps. On the march to the front with some heavy artillery regiments, they were attacked three miles from Spottsylvania Court House by Hood's Division of Ewell's Corps of the Confederate Army of Northern Virginia.

Col. Dushane promptly formed the Veterans without waiting for orders and made a counter charge. The artillery regiments' coming up promptly under General R. O. Tyler, the enemy were repulsed, and retreated from the field, leaving their dead and wounded behind them.

This action was known as the battle of "Harris' Farm;" the loss sustained by 1st Maryland Regiment in the engagement was thirty-seven men killed, wounded and missing.

On the morning of the 21st, the second of the series of flank movements by General Grant took place.

The 1st Regiment and the Maryland Brigade, moving with the Fifth Army Corps, participated in all of the severe and steady fighting from the 21st of May.

Cold Harbor was occupied by the Army of the Potomac on the 1st day of June. In the fight that followed at Cold Harbor the 1st Regiment conducted itself with great gallantry.

Continuing its flank movement to the left, the whole Army of the Potomac was on the south bank of the James river by the 16th day of June, 1864.

On the 17th day of June the regiment and brigade had reached the lines before Petersburg and participated in the first assault upon the enemy's lines at Petersburg; and, in fact, in all of the preliminary movements to capture the lines of communication and the stronghold itself at Petersburg, the 1st Maryland Infantry took a conspicuous part and suffered heavily.

On the 14th day of August, 1864, the regiment and brigade took part in the movements against the Weldon railroad, resulting in the battle known as the battle of the Weldon railroad.

On the 18th, in the open field engagement which lasted for several hours, the 1st Regiment suffered severely, the casualties in killed, wounded and missing amounting to fifty-seven. Every member of the color guard received severe wounds in this battle.

In the series of engagements incident to the capture and holding of the Weldon railroad, one of the main arteries used in supplying Lee's army, the regiment suffered severe loss, including the loss of the gallant Colonel Dushane, who was killed by a solid shot on the 21st.

On the 16th day of September the regiment assisted in the repulse of another attempt of the enemy to dislodge the 5th Army Corps from the Weldon railroad.

On the 7th of December, 1864, the regiment, with the brigade and 5th Army Corps, also accompanied by General Gregg's division of cavalry, cut loose from the Army of the Potomac, and started on a mid-winter raid to effectually destroy the Weldon railroad, well towards the North Carolina line, over which Lee's army was still drawing large supplies, by making a wide detour from the railroad terminus.

The column marched nineteen miles to the Nottoway river, which it crossed on a pontoon bridge, and bivouacked for a part of the night; starting before daylight, the column pushed forward fifteen miles to the Halifax road, preceded by the cavalry, who drove before them small bodies of the enemy, who attempted to harass and impede the rapid movements of the infantry.

At six P. M. on the evening of the 8th, the column moved down upon the Weldon railroad and began its destruction southward from the bridge across the Nottoway, continuing its work day and night, until it reached Hicksford on the Meherrin river, on the 9th, where the enemy were found in force behind strong earthworks on the opposite side of the river.

The object of the raid having been effectually accomplished, the column started back for Petersburg, marching all day over wretched roads, through a storm of sleet and snow, a distance of twenty miles, and bivouacked for the night; resuming the march the next day, the weather was found to be intensely cold, and the regiment suffered severely from exposure.

The column reached Petersburg in six days from the time of starting, after forced marches night and day over horrible roads and in a constant storm of sleet and snow, during the severest winter of the Civil War, but the object of the raid had been thoroughly accomplished, and the Weldon railroad ceased to be an artery over which supplies could be brought to Lee's beleaguered army.

During all of the movements to destroy the Weldon railroad the 1st Regiment and Maryland Brigade did their full share in the fighting, marching and suffering incident to campaigning in the inclement weather of the winter season.

On the 5th day of February, 1865, the regiment and brigade, with the 5th Army Corps, entered on the campaign along Hatcher's Run for the purpose of destroying the South Side Railroad, culminating in the battle of Dabney's Mills, in which the 1st Regiment suffered severe loss, including its gallant Colonel Wilson, killed in the thickest of the fight on the 27th of March, 1865; the 1st Regiment and Maryland Brigade, with the 5th Army Corps and Sheridan's Cavalry, under the command of General Sheridan, marched around the enemy's right flank in the last grand movement inaugurated by General Grant, culminating in the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia, the end of the Civil War and the preservation of the Federal Union.

The battle of White Oak Road was followed by the splendid victory at Five Forks, resulting in the capture of 6000 prisoners, the loss of the enemy's artillery—in fact, their utter rout and demoralization.

This battle rendered the position of Lee's army at Petersburg untenable, and caused its evacuation simultaneously with that of the Confederate capital at Richmond.

The Army of the Potomac promptly pursued the retreating army of Lee, capturing thousands of his men, with artillery and munitions of war. Night and day the pursuit was continued until, on the ninth day of April, 1865, the enemy was brought to bay at Appomattox Court House, Virginia, and compelled to surrender the last remnant of Lee's Army of Northern Virginia.

The first division of the 5th Army Corps was detailed to receive the arms surrendered, consisting of seventeen thousand stands of small arms, one hundred and fifty-seven pieces of artillery, and seventy-one battle flags.

On the 15th day of April, the 1st Regiment left Appomattox Court House with the 5th Army Corps on its return to Washington, passing through the Confederate capital at Richmond en route.

On the 23d day of May, 1865, the 1st Regiment formed a part of that splendid army of 100,000 men from the Army of the Potomac who passed in review at the capital of the nation at Washington before the President of the United States and General Grant.

On the 2d day of July, 1865, the 1st Maryland Regiment of veteran infantry was mustered out of the military service of the United States, at Arlington Heights, Virginia, and proceeded thence to Baltimore, Maryland, where the regiment was paid off and finally discharged.

The death casualties incurred by the 1st Maryland Infantry were as follows, viz.: killed in action, eight (8) commissioned officers and one hundred and ten (110) enlisted men; total, one hundred and eighteen (118). Died of disease, wounds, etc., one (1) commissioned officer and one hundred and forty-eight (148) enlisted men; total, one hundred and forty-nine (149), or an aggregate loss of two hundred and sixty-seven (267).

List of Battles, etc., in which the First Maryland Infantry Regiment Participated.

(The letter following the name of the battles indicate the companies engaged; where no letters appear, the whole regiment was engaged.)

SECOND REGIMENT INFANTRY.

HIS regiment was organized at Baltimore, Md., from June to September, 1861, to serve three years. On the expiration of its term of service, the original members (except veterans) were mustered out, and the organization, composed of veterans and recruits, retained in service until July 17, 1865, when it was mustered out by reason of close of war. This regiment, like the First Maryland Infantry, was raised under the President's call of May 3d, 1861; a few of the companies were mustered into the service of the United States in June, 1861, but the recruiting of several other regiments at the same time delayed the completion of the organization, and it was not until the month of September, 1861, that the entire regiment was mustered in.

The officers and men were mainly from Baltimore, and on the 8th day of October, 1861, the field officers were appointed by the President, John Sommer, a soldier of the war with Mexico, being commissioned as Colonel.

Colonel Sommer held this position until April 24, 1862, when he resigned, and the command devolved upon Lieutenant-Colonel J. Eugene Duryee until September 22d, 1862, when he resigned, and Colonel Thomas B. Allard, having been appointed, joined the regiment at Wheatland, Va., in October, 1862, and assuming command, retained it until he resigned at Blair's X Road, Tennessee, January 19, 1863, being succeeded in command by Lieutenant-Colonel Henry Howard, who was killed July 30, 1864, at "The Crater" while leading his regiment in the charge. Captain B. F. Taylor, the ranking captain present, assumed command and was commissioned Lieutenant-Colonel.

Subsequent to this the regiment had no colonel, its numerical strength greatly reduced by hard service not being sufficient, under the rules of the War Department, to entitle it to an officer of that grade.

After the regiment had undergone a preparatory training in drill and discipline for active field service, it was assigned to the 9th Army Corps and joined the command of General A. E. Burnside, in North Carolina, in the Spring of 1862, and did its duty nobly in that glorious and successful campaign that redeemed the sound coast of the old North State.

During the Peninsular Campaign the regiment, with Reno's Division, of which it formed a part, was sent to reinforce McClellan before Richmond, but arrived at Fortress Monroe after the battle of Malvern Hill, too late to be of service, and was ordered to join the Army of Virginia under Major-General Pope, near Culpepper, Va., and participated in the campaign leading up to its culmination at the battle of Antietam, Md., September 17, 1862, where the regiment specially distinguished itself in the famous charge resulting in the capture of the Stone Bridge, now known in history as the Burnside Bridge.

After the battle of Antietam the regiment remained with the Army of the Potomac, participating actively in all of its campaign work in Virginia, especially in the terrible battle at Fredericksburg, Va., December 12 to 15, 1862.

The regiment was thence transferred with Burnside's Command to East Tennessee, where it actively engaged in all the battles of the East Tennessee Campaign, and particularly in the siege and splendid defense of Knoxville, Tennessee, November 18 to December 6, 1863.

January 1, 1864, the regiment re-enlisted for the war and returned to Baltimore, where it received quite an ovation from the loyal citizens of Maryland, who felt proud of the prowess of this gallant regiment.

After the expiration of the thirty days' furlough, the regiment was again assigned to duty with the Army of the Potomac, and participated in the battle of Spottsylvania, Va., May 12 to 20, 1864; Tolopotomoy, May 31, 1864; Cold Harbor, June 3 and 4, 1864; assault on Petersburg, June 16 and 17, 1864; the Crater, July 30, 1864, and the subsequent siege of Petersburg, Va., 1864-65; the battle of Weldon R. R., August 18 to 21, 1864; Hatcher's Run, October 27, 1864; storming of Petersburg, April 2, 1865, and the final engagement resulting in the surrender of General Lee's Confederate Army, at Appomattox Court House, Va., April 9, 1865.

During its service in the United States Army, the Second Maryland Infantry marched 1847 miles, was transported by rail 1575 miles, and by water 2131 miles, a total of 5553 miles.

The regiment served in Dix's Division, Army of the Potomac, from muster in to March 26, 1862; First Brigade, Second Division, Department of North Carolina, to July 22, 1862; First Brigade, Second Division, Ninth Army Corps, to April, 1863; Department of the Ohio, to June, 1863; First Division, Twenty-third Army Corps, to September, 1863; First Brigade, Second Division, Ninth Army Corps, to January, 1864; Second Division, Ninth Army Corps, to March, 1864; First Brigade, Second Division, Ninth Army Corps, to April, 1864; Second Brigade, Third Division, Ninth Army Corps, to June 5, 1864; Second Brigade, Second Division, Ninth Army Corps, to July 17, 1865.

The casualties in the Second Maryland Infantry Regiment during the Civil War for the preservation of the Union were as follows: Killed and wounded, 5 commissioned officers and 84 enlisted men—total, 89; died of disease, etc., 3 commissioned officers and 134 enlisted men—total, 137; or an aggregate of 226 men.

After the surrender at Appomattox, the Second Maryland Regiment marched homeward, and was duly mustered out of service at Alexandria, Va., July 17, 1865; transported thence to Baltimore, Md., where the command was paid and finally disbanded July 25, 1865.

The following is a list of the battles, not inclusive, however, of the numerous skirmishes and actions in which the regiment were engaged, and in which they oftentimes incurred serious loss, viz.: Second Bull Run, Chantilly, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Blue Springs, Campbell Station, Siege of Knoxville; Petersburg, Va., June 16 to 17, 1864; the Crater, July 30, 1864; Siege of Petersburg, Weldon Railroad, Poplar Springs Church, Hatcher's Run; Assault of Petersburg, April 2, 1865.

THIRD REGIMENT INFANTRY.

THE Third Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized at Baltimore and Williamsport, Md., from June 18, 1861, to February 17, 1862, to serve three years. On the expiration of its term of service the original members (except veterans) were mustered out and the veterans and recruits consolidated into a battalion of four companies, and remained in the military service of the United States until July 31, 1865, when it was mustered out of service by reason of close of the Civil War and by order of the War Department.

The organization of this regiment was commenced at Baltimore, Md., in August, 1861, by Colonel J. C. McConnell, under special authority from the Secretary of War; five companies were raised and were known as Companies A, B, C and D; the fifth company being incomplete, was, upon completion, known as Company H.

On the 16th day of February, 1862, four companies of infantry, who had been enlisted in the summer of 1861, at Williamsport, Washington County, Md., many of whom were Union men and refugees from Berkley and Jefferson Counties, Va., were assigned to the Third Regiment of Infantry, and designated as Companies A, B, C and I (the latter company being incomplete). In consequence of this consolidation, the original Companies A, B, C and D became Companies D, E, F and G, respectively.

On the 11th of May, 1862, the companies bearing the designation of E, F, H and I were broken up, and the men were distributed among Companies A, B, C, D and G.

These discontinued companies were replaced by four companies recruited for the German Rifles or Fourth Maryland Infantry, and the Baltimore (or Dix's) Light Infantry, both of which had failed to perfect their organizations.

The Companies transferred from the Fourth Infantry were styled E and H, and those from the Dix Light Infantry I and K.

The regiment then comprised nine companies, namely, Companies A, B, C, D, E, G, H, I and K; a tenth company (F), composed of nine months' drafted men, organized October 15, 1862, at Easton, Md., was assigned to the regiment February, 1863. This company was mustered out of service Sept. 2, 1863.

John C. McConnell was the first colonel of the regiment.

On the 24th day of May, 1862, the Third Regiment of Infantry proceeded to Harper's Ferry, Va., then endangered by the advance of General (Stonewall) Jackson's Confederate Army, and was assigned to General N. P. Banks' army, subsequently better known as the Twelfth Army Corps. The regiment, with Banks' Division, participated in the severe battle of Cedar Mountain, Va., August 9, 1862, and all of the subsequent movements and engagements incident to the campaign under General Pope.

The regiment, with the Twelfth Army Corps, participated in the Maryland campaign, under General McClellan, that culminated in the battle of Antietam, September 17, 1862, in which the Third Regiment of Infantry performed its duty nobly.

After the battle of Antietam the Third Regiment, with the Twelfth Army Corps, remained in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia until the latter part of December, 1862, when it marched, with the Twelfth Army Corps, to Eastern Virginia, and was engaged in the battle of Chancellorsville, Va., May 1 to 3, 1863.

At the time of the invasion of the States of Maryland and Pennsylvania in 1863, the regiment, with the Twelfth Army Corps, were actively engaged, and at the battle of Gettysburg, July 1st, 2nd and 3rd, 1863, the regiment acted splendidly.

The Third Regiment, with the Twelfth Army Corps, were transferred to the western armies, operating in the State of Tennessee in the winter of 1863-64, and aided in the relief of Chattanooga, Tenn., that was so closely beleaguered by the Confederate Army, under General Bragg, prior to the arrival of the Eleventh and Twelfth Army Corps, transferred from the Army of the Potomac, after the defeat of Bragg's Army and the expulsion of the Confederate Armies from the State of Tennessee.

The original members of the regiment who had seen two years' service, veteranized in February, 1864, re-enlisted for the war. Upon the expiration of its veteran furlough in April, 1864, the 3d Regiment of Infantry was assigned to the 2d Brigade, 1st Division, 9th Army Corps, Army of the Potomac, and continued with the 9th Army Corps until the close of the war.

The 3d Regiment of Infantry participated in all of the campaigns under General Grant, commencing at the battle of the Wilderness, Va., May 5 to 7, 1864, and ending at the surrender of General Lee's army at Appomattox, Va., April 9, 1865.

The 3d Regiment was actively engaged in the battles of Spottsylvania, Va., May 16 to 20, 1864; assault on Petersburg, Va., 1864-1865; the battle of the Crater, July 30, 1864, and the final capture of Petersburg, Va., April 3, 1865.

The casualties in the 3d Regiment of Infantry during the war were as follows: Killed, eight officers and eighty-three enlisted men—total, ninety-one; died of disease, four commissioned officers and one hundred and thirty enlisted men—total, one hundred and thirty-four; or an aggregate death list of two hundred and twenty-five.

The 3d Regiment of Infantry served in Dix's Division, Army of the Potomac, from muster in to March, 1862; Middle Department, 8th Army Corps, to May 24, 1862; 1st Brigade, Sigel's Division, Department of the Shenandoah, to July, 1862; 1st Brigade, Second Division, 2d Corps, Army of Virginia, to August, 1862; 2d Brigade, Second Division, Second Corps, Army of Virginia, to September, 1862; 2d Brigade, Second Division, 12th Army Corps, to March, 1863; 2d Brigade, First Division, 12th Army Corps, to May, 1863; 1st Brigade, First Division, 12th Army Corps, to April 25, 1864; 2d Brigade, First Division, 9th Army Corps, to September 1, 1864; 3d Brigade, First Division, 9th Army Corps, to July, 31, 1865.

The 3d Regiment of Infantry marched 1771 miles during the Civil War, and it traveled by rail two thousand nine hundred and three miles; by boat, two hundred and eighty-nine miles; total distance, four thousand nine hundred and sixty-three miles.

After the surrender of Lee's Army at Appomattox, the 3d Regiment, Veteran Battalion, proceeded to Arlington Heights, Va., where it was mustered out of the military service of the United States July 31, 1865.

In addition to the numerous skirmishes and engagements in which the 3d Regiment of Infantry participated, the following comprises the official battle list promulgated by the War Department, U. S. Army, viz.: Cedar Mountain, Antietam, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Wilderness, Spottsylvania, North Anna, Cold Harbor, Petersburg, Poplar Spring Church.

FOURTH REGIMENT INFANTRY.

The Fourth Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized at Baltimore, Md., in July and August, 1862, with the exception of Company E, which was recruited in Carroll County, Md. The regiment consisted of nine companies, viz., Companies A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H and I. The regiment was recruited for three years. The Fourth Regiment was assigned to the celebrated Maryland Brigade of Infantry, commanded by General John R. Kenly.

The regiment was hurried to the field, September 18, 1862, before it was fully completed, for the purpose of reinforcing the Army of the Potomac, under General McClellan, then on the Antietam.

The history of the Fourth Regiment from September, 1862, to the date of its muster out, May 31, 1865, formed a conspicuous part of the history of the Maryland Brigade.

Upon the arrival of the Fourth Regiment with the Maryland Brigade, near Williamsport, Md., they assisted in expelling the enemy from Maryland.

Governor Curtin, of Pennsylvania, who had accompanied the hastily summoned Pennsylvania militia to the front, complimented the Maryland Brigade for their prompt action in relieving his hastily levied raw and undisciplined troops, and in promptly attacking the enemy.

The Fourth Regiment of Infantry, with the Maryland Brigade, after the Army of the Potomac crossed the Potomac into Virginia, occupied Maryland Heights, opposite Harper's Ferry, Va., and went into winter quarters in December, 1862.

In April, 1863, the Fourth Regiment, with the Maryland Brigade, left Harper's Ferry and proceeded to West Virginia to repel the raids made by Imboden and Jones' Brigades of Confederate Cavalry, who attempted to capture the large depots of supplies gathered for the use of the Federal armies. After a short campaign in West Virginia, the brigade re-embarked by rail for Harper's Ferry.

The valued services of the Maryland Brigade in this campaign evoked a complimentary letter to General John R. Kenly, commanding brigade, from General B. F. Kelly, commanding First Division, Eighth Army Corps, of which the following is an extract:

"When the rebel generals, Jones and Imboden, in April last, threatened to overrun the entire State of West Virginia, your prompt movement, under orders to the support of General Roberts at Clarksburg, alone saved from destruction much valuable public property, as well as that of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Your services afterwards, in aiding to drive the enemy from the State, were not less valuable and deserve great praise."

On the 30th day of June, 1863, the Fourth Regiment, with the Maryland Brigade, marched to Frederick City, Md., and formed a part of General French's Division, with instructions to keep up communication between Washington and the Army of the Potomac, then moving to attack General Lee's Confederate Army, invading Pennsylvania.

On the 6th of July, 1863, the Fourth Regiment, with the First and Eighth Maryland Infantry Regiments, were ordered to make a forced march to, and recapture Harper's Ferry, which they did after a brisk engagement.

On the 10th day of July, 1863, the Fourth Regiment, with the Maryland Brigade, joined the Army of the Potomac, and became the Third Brigade, Third Division, First Army Corps.

The Fourth Regiment marched with the Army of the Potomac to Warrenton, Va., in the latter part of July, 1863, and took an active part in the campaign that followed, under General Meade in Eastern Virginia, in the summer and autumn of 1863.

In March, 1864, the Fourth Regiment, with the Maryland Brigade, became the Third Brigade, Second Division, Fifth Army Corps.

On the 5th day of May, 1864, the Fourth Maryland Infantry Regiment, with the Maryland Brigade, took its place in line of battle at the Wilderness, Va., and actively participated in all of the ensuing battles, engagements, marches, sufferings and hardships incident to the movements of the Maryland Brigade, with the Army of the Potomac at the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, Petersburg, Weldon Railroad and Five Forks, until the final surrender at Appomattox, Va., April 9, 1865.

After the surrender of General Lee's Confederate Army at Appomattox, the Fourth Regiment marched to Arlington Heights, Va., where it was mustered out of the military service of the United States, May 31, 1865.

The casualties incurred by the Fourth Maryland Infantry Regiment during the Civil War were as follows: Killed, 3 commissioned officers and 32 enlisted men; total, 35; died of disease, etc., 1 commissioned officer and 72 enlisted men; total 73, or an aggregate of 108 men.

The Fourth Regiment of Infantry during the war marched 1089 miles, and traveled by rail 649 miles, a total of 1738 miles.

In addition to the numerous engagements in which the Fourth Regiment of Infantry participated, the following named battles have been officially promulgated by the War Department, U. S. Army, in which this regiment bore an honorable part, viz.: Wilderness, Spottsylvania, North Anna, Tolopotomy, Bethesda Church, Petersburg, Hatcher's Run, Weldon Railroad, Chapel House.

FIFTH REGIMENT INFANTRY.

THE Fifth Maryland Infantry Regiment was organized at Baltimore City, Maryland, in September, 1861, to serve three years. On the expiration of its term of service, the original members (except veterans) were mustered out and the organization, composed of veterans and recruits, retained in service until September 1, 1865, when it was mustered out of service, in accordance with orders from the War Department.

Whilst the regiment was organized at Baltimore City, a number of the companies were recruited in other sections of the State. Company A was recruited at North East, Cecil County; Company E was recruited in Frederick County and Baltimore City; Company I was recruited at Elkton, Cecil County; Companies B, C, D, F, G, H and K were recruited at Baltimore City.

The Fifth Regiment of Infantry occupied a camp at Lafayette Square, Baltimore City, from September, 1861, until March, 1862, where they were drilled, disciplined, and prepared for active service in the field.

On the 11th of March, 1862, the 5th Regiment left Baltimore for the seat of war in Virginia; on arrival at Fortress Monroe, Virginia, they were assigned to General Dix's command in the Army of the Potomac.

After the repulse of General McClellan's army on the peninsula of Virginia, and the transfer of the seat of war to Northern Virginia and Maryland, in August and September, 1862, the 5th Regiment marched with the army of the Potomac, and bore a conspicuous part in the battle of Antietam, September 17, 1862. Having been assigned to 3d Brigade, 3d Division, 2d Army Corps, at that portion of the battlefield of Antietam known as the "Bloody Lane," the 5th Regiment fought bravely and suffered severely in killed and wounded. The commanding officer for the time being, Major Leopold Blumenberg, was seriously wounded at the head of the regiment and carried to the rear, when Captain W. W. Bamberger, of Company B, assumed command of the regiment, who, in turn, was seriously wounded and taken to the rear, when the command of the regiment devolved on Capt. Salome Marsh, of Company F, who commanded the regiment during the remainder of the day. The 5th Regiment had thirty-nine men killed and one hundred and nine men wounded in the battle of Antietam.

After the battle of Antietam the 5th Maryland Infantry marched to Bolivar Heights, Virginia, and went into camp. On the 16th and 17th days of October, 1862, the 5th Regiment was directed to reconnoiter the enemy's army, then camped near Charlestown, Virginia.

The 5th Regiment of Infantry remained on the upper Potomac and in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia during the winter of 1862-63, and was assigned to General Milroy's Division, who were besieged at Winchester, Virginia, June 13 and 15, 1863, by the entire Confederate army of Northern Virginia. In the battles incident to the siege and the forcing of its way through the enemy's lines, the 5th Regiment, under the command of Maj. Salome Marsh, suffered terribly in killed, wounded and prisoners.

The regiment rejoined the army of the Potomac in 1864, and participated in the siege of Petersburg, June to September, 1864, and was with that part of the Army of the Potomac known as 3d Brigade, 2d Division, 18th Army Corps, and the 2d Brigade, 3d Division, 24th Army Corps, that occupied Richmond, Va. (the Confederate capital), April 3, 1865.

The 5th Regiment rendered gallant service with the 2d and 8th Army Corps and the Army of the James.

A large number of its original members re-enlisted as veteran volunteers. The large number marked as deserters may be accounted for by the fact that late in 1864, and early in 1865, about one hundred "substitutes" were assigned to the regiment, who deserted as soon as they received their substitute pay.

The 5th Regiment of Infantry travelled the following distances during the Civil War viz., By boat, nine hundred and twenty-three miles; by rail, six hundred and seventy, three miles; on foot, five hundred and sixty-seven miles; or a total of two thousand one hundred and sixty-three miles.

The casualties in the 5th Regiment of Infantry were as follows: Killed, one commissioned officer and sixty-three enlisted men, or a total of sixty-four; died of disease, etc., six commissioned officers and ninety-one enlisted men; total ninety-seven, or an aggregate death list of one hundred and sixty-one.

The battles and engagements in which the 5th Regiment of Infantry participated were as follows, viz., Antietam, September 17, 1862; Charlestown, Va., October 16-17, 1862; Winchester, Va., June 13-15, 1863; Siege of Petersburg, Va., June to September, 1864; Battle of the Crater, Va., July 30, 1864; Siege of Richmond, Va., October, 1864, to April, 1865; Second Battle of Fair Oaks, Va., October 27, 1864; occupation of Richmond, Va., April 3, 1865.

The 5th Regiment of Infantry was mustered out of the military service of the United States at Fredericksburg, Va., September 1, 1865, and transported thence to Baltimore, Md., where the regiment disbanded.

SIXTH REGIMENT INFANTRY.

HIS regiment was organized at Baltimore, Md., from August 12 to September 8, 1862, to serve three years. It was mustered out, in accordance with orders from the War Department, by reason of close of the Civil War, June 20, 1865. This regiment, raised in pursuance of President Lincoln's call of July 2, 1862, was essentially a representative Maryland regiment. Eight companies were recruited in counties representing different sections of the State, as follows:

Company A, Carroll County; Company B, Cecil County; Company C, Carroll County; Company D, Frederick County; Company E, Cecil County; Company G, Cecil County; Company H, Washington County; Company K, Queen Anne's County; and two companies, F and I, were recruited in the City of Baltimore.

The regiment rendezvoused at Baltimore City and, after a brief period for drill and discipline, left September 20, 1862, to join the Army of the Potomac, then in Western Maryland, where it was assigned to the Maryland Brigade, 8th Army Corps. Subsequently the following assignments were made:

March 28, 1863, to the 3d Brigade, 2d Division, 8th Army Corps.

June 16, 1863, to the 1st Brigade, 2nd Division, 8th Army Corps.

July 9, 1863, to the 2d Brigade, 3d Division, 3d Army Corps.

March 24, 1864, to the 2d Brigade, 3d Division, 6th Army Corps, where it remained until the close of the war.

With the Maryland Brigade, the regiment remained on the upper Potomac until December, 1862, when it marched to and encamped on Bolivar Heights, Harper's Ferry, Virginia.

On the 28th day of March, 1863, the 6th Regiment was detached from the Maryland Brigade and ordered to Berryville, Va., where it was assigned to McReynolds' (3d) Brigade, 2d Division, 8th Army Corps.

On June 13, 1863, Rhodes' Division of the Confederate army, under Lee, attacked this brigade at Berryville, Va., when, after a brief skirmish, McReynolds retired towards Winchester, Va. Whilst en route, they were again attacked on the same day at the ford on Opequan Creek, when the 6th Regiment and a section of Alexander's Battery of Maryland Artillery handsomely repulsed the enemy, with severe loss. Immediately on arriving at Winchester, the regiment took part in the battle then raging there, where the entire Confederate army was being concentrated, with the hope of a speedy capture of Winchester, along with General Milroy's Division of the 8th Army Corps.

The 6th Regiment occupied the Star Fort, and defended it with great gallantry during the days of the 14th and 15th of June, 1863, and until ordered to retire with the Division. In its efforts to cut its way through the enemy's line, at daylight on the 15th, the 6th Regiment took part in the engagement that ensued on the Martinsburg road and, by a skillful maneuver, passed around the enemy's flank and escaped almost intact, continuing the retreat to Harper's Ferry. The 6th was now assigned to the 2d Brigade, 3d Division, 3d Army Corps, with which it participated in the battles incident to the movements of the Army of the Potomac, under General Meade, in the autumn and winter of 1863-64, in Northern Virginia.

The 6th Regiment having been transferred to the 6th Corps on March 23, 1864, took its place in line of battle with that justly celebrated fighting corps of the Army of the Potomac, in the battle of the Wilderness, May 5, 1864.

The 6th Regiment participated in all the battles that followed the battle of the Wilderness, and at Spottsylvania, Cold Harbor and Petersburg, behaved with great gallantry, suffering severely.

In July, 1864, when the Confederate army, under General Early, invaded Maryland and attempted to capture the capital of the nation, the 6th Army Corps, including this regiment, was sent from Grant's army at Petersburg to drive the enemy back. The timely arrival of the 6th Army Corps did not only save the capital from capture, but speedily expelled the enemy from Maryland.

A new army was created in the Shenandoah Valley and General Sheridan placed in command, with instructions to destroy, utterly, all the Confederate forces in that section, where four long years of alternate victory and defeat had attended the Union armies.

This regiment, with the 6th Army Corps, took a conspicuous part in the splendid Union victories, under General Sheridan, that crowned the efforts of this army at Winchester, Virginia, September 19, Fisher's Hill, Va., September 22, and Cedar Creek, Va., October 19, 1864.

After the utter destruction of all the Confederate armies in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, the 6th Regiment, with the 6th Army Corps, returned to General Grant's army in front of Petersburg, in the latter part of 1864. The regiment participated with the 6th Corps in the assault and capture of Petersburg, Va., April 2, at the battle of Sailor's Creek, April 6, and at the final surrender of Lee's army at Appomattox Court House, Va., April 9, 1865.

Immediately after the surrender of Lee, the 6th Corps, with Custer's Cavalry, made a forced march of 100 miles to Danville, Va., with the view of intercepting the Confederate General Johnson, who was marching to the relief of Lee. Johnson, however, being apprised of this movement, surrendered to General Sherman at Greensboro, N. C.

From Danville the 6th Corps and Sheridan's Cavalry corps marched direct to Washington, and, arriving too late for the general review, were reviewed separately by President Lincoln, after which the regiment was finally disbanded at Baltimore, Md.

The 6th Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, is classified as one of the three hundred fighting regiments of the Civil War. Its casualties were as follows: Killed, 8 commissioned officers and 120 enlisted men; total, one hundred and twenty-eight; died of disease, etc., one commissioned officer, and one hundred and seven enlisted men. Aggregate loss by death, two hundred and thirty-six men; and two hundred and thirty-three enlisted men wounded in battle.

This regiment, in its arduous campaigns, traveled by railroad 575 miles, by boat 577 miles, and on foot 1751 miles, a total distance of 2903 miles.

In addition to the numerous skirmishes and engagements in which the 6th Regiment participated, the regiment has been accredited by the War Department, U. S. Army, for its good conduct in the following official list of battles, viz.: Winchester, Wilderness, Spottsylvania, Cold Harbor, Petersburg, Opequan, Fisher's Hill, Cedar Creek, Wapping Heights, and Sailor's Creek.

SEVENTH REGIMENT INFANTRY.

Compiled from original sources by Col. Charles E. Phelps, Brevt. Brig. Gen. U. S. V., at the request of the Commissioners, under the Act of 1896, Ch. 134, "to provide for the completion of the records of the soldiers, etc., accredited to the State of Maryland in the late Civil War, etc."

regiment was recruited from the northern line of Maryland counties, under the call of July 1, 1862, for "three years or the war." Toward the end of August, 1862, nine companies had been enrolled and mustered in Baltimore, and went into "Camp Harford," a spot now included within the limits of Druid Hill park. The aggregate strength of the regiment at that time was 34 officers and men. Pressing exigencies of the service hurried it into the field before it had received its tenth company, the men recruited for which were mustered into other regiments. The tenth company, K, was composed of the re-enlisted men of the Tenth Maryland (a six months' organization), and joined the regiment in April, 1864.

Material of the Regiment.

There were very few foreigners in this regiment. Most of the line officers and men were substantial farmers, mechanics and laboring men from the rural districts. Very shortly after they had come to know each other, a unanimous preference for the mounted service took shape in a formal but unsuccessful application to the War Department for transfer to the cavalry.

Two companies (C and H) were raised in Harford County, one (D) in Baltimore County, and one (F) in Carroll. Three (B, E and G) were recruited in Frederick County, and two (A and I) in Washington County. There was no city company in the Seventh until joined by company K, above mentioned, and this company was composed of young active men, clerks, etc., from Baltimore.

The Seventh Regiment was raised and originally commanded by Colonel Edwin H. Webster, of Harford County, a representative from Maryland in Congress. Lieut.-Colonel Charles E. Phelps, subsequently promoted Colonel, and later Brigadier-General by brevet, was a member of the Baltimore bar, and had been Major of the "Maryland Guard," somewhat celebrated just before the war as a thoroughly drilled volunteer battalion, most of whose members went South. Major William H. Dallam was a prominent and highly esteemed lawyer of Harford County, and enjoyed the confidence of the entire community in which he lived. He had served the public in the capacity of Clerk of the Circuit Court and for many years as State's Attorney.

Adjutant George L. Tyler and Quartermaster Thomas S. Nesbitt were young gentlemen of prominent families in Frederick and Washington counties respectively. Surgeon James H. Jarrett and Assistant Surgeon (afterwards Surgeon) Robert K. Robinson were well-known practitioners of Harford County. The line officers, as a rule, were all highly respected citizens of their several counties. Two of the captains, Edward M. Mobley, of Washington County, and David T. Bennett, of Frederick County, were subsequently promoted in succession to the command of the regiment, made vacant by casualties of service. Captain Daniel Rinehart, of Carroll County, was a brother of the world-renowned sculptor.

First Service.

Early in September, 1862, the advance of Lee's army into Maryland occasioned frequent reports of the immediate proximity of his cavalry. The streets of Baltimore were barricaded, and before the Seventh had progressed so far in its tactics as the battalion drill, it was, on several occasions, ordered into line in expectation of a raid.

Maryland Brigade.

On the 8th of September, 1862, it was brigaded with the 1st, 4th, 6th and 8th Regiments of Maryland Infantry and Alexander's Battery of Baltimore Light Artillery, under the command of Brigadier-General John R. Kenly. From that time on, until muster out at the end of the war, the military history of the Seventh is mainly identified with that of the famous Maryland Brigade, composed of the organizations just named, with the exception of the Sixth and Alexander's Battery, subsequently assigned elsewhere.

The Maryland brigade continued a part of the 8th Army Corps nominally, although serving successively under General Franklin, General Couch and General French, either as an independent brigade or in detachments, until on the 11th of July, 1863, it was definitely assigned to the Army of the Potomac as the 3d Brigade, 3d Division, 1st Army Corps.

In January, 1864, it became the 2d brigade of the same division. Upon the reorganization of the Army of the Potomac under Lieutenant-General Grant, in March, 1864, the old first corps was merged in the fifth, and the Maryland brigade was then designated 3d Brigade, 2d Division, 5th Army Corps. After the Battle of the Wilderness and the first engagement at Spottsylvania, this division was so shattered that it was broken up, and most of its regiments assigned to other commands, the Maryland brigade serving temporarily as an independent organization, reporting to corps headquarters. Upon the reorganization of the division in June, 1864, the Maryland brigade finally became the 2d Brigade, 2d Division, 5th Army Corps, until mustered out May 31, 1865.

At the Front.

As soon as the result of the battle of Antietam was known, the Maryland brigade, which, until that time had been required to guard and picket the approaches to the city, was ordered to the front. Its first service in the presence of the enemy was between Hagerstown and Williamsport, where they found General Reynolds with a body of raw, ununiformed Pennsylvania militia, engaged in trying to hold in check a force of the enemy's cavalry. Much to the relief of the militia, the Marylanders were promptly deployed in their front, and, upon their advance, the opposing force withdrew, their artillery covering the retreat with a few inaccurate shots. This was on the 19th of September, 1862.

From that time on, until the 29th of October, the Maryland brigade remained in camp in the vicinity of Williamsport, guarding the fords of the Potomac; the cavalry videttes of the enemy, Wade Hampton in command, being in sight on the other side. After some days of excitement, forming line of battle, marches and counter-marches, the routine of drill again began, and this growing tedious, many of the men took advantage of the lull to go home on short visits without leave, after failing to receive furlough. They called this taking a "french," and indignantly disclaimed the idea of desertion. Numbers, in fact, were so near their homes that they could easily make the round trip between tattoo and reveille.

The Upper Potomac.

On the 29th of October, 1862, the Seventh Regiment was ordered on detached duty, guarding a river front of about five miles from McCoy's Ferry to Dam No. 5, headquarters at Four Locks. McCoy's Ferry was the point where Stuart's cavalry had broken through on their famous raid, a few days before, surprising and capturing the signal station on Fair View Mountain, close by. One of the most interesting points in the vicinity was "Old Fort Frederick," built as a defense against Indians, and at that time one of the few remaining structures to be found in this country worthy to be called a "ruin."

Refugees.

From the summit of Fair View could be seen three States, the encampment of McClellan's army at Harper's Ferry and Lee's encampment at Martinsburg. This look-out was at that time a great resort for Union refugees from Virginia. Many of these had served on the other side as unwilling conscripts. They were naturally very much wanted, and they knew it. As our army advanced into the sacred soil, back went the refugees, some piloting our columns as guides. These men were the most vigilant of videttes, keenly snuffing the southern air for the dreaded cavalry raid.

The belt of Virginia soil immediately in front of the Seventh Maryland was almost entirely inhabited by the families of these refugees, and the great rendezvous of the refugees themselves was Fair View. Here they watched from day to day their deserted homes across the river, sometimes witnessing with their own eyes their hogs and sheep taken, often exchanging signals with their families, and when signals were satisfactory, stealthily crossing in skiffs or wading the ford.

Many of the younger refugees had enlisted in Maryland cavalry regiments, and under the command of such men as Cole, Vernon, Russell, Firey and others, did good service as scouts and guides. Their presence and influence contributed materially to impress upon those organizations the character for vigilance, enterprise and daring for which they were distinguished.

But to the older and more timid refugees the regiment was indebted for many panicky rumors, startling announcements, hasty "falling's in." It was characteristic of the men upon every such occasion that they never became skeptical, but took each alarm as it came, in perfect good faith, always "falling in" with as much alacrity as if the crash of battle were sounding in their ears.

Substitutes.

Early in December, the regiment received its first instalment of "substitutes," an accession of less than doubtful value. There were fifty or more in this batch, of all nationalities, most of them suspiciously well drilled. These disinterested patriots were brought up under guard, with their $300 or $400 each in their pockets. Some had "jumped" the guard on the cars, quite a number vanished the first night, most of them afterwards deserted, and a half dozen or so turned out reliable soldiers.

On the 12th of December, 1862, the Seventh returned to Williamsport, finding there only the Eighth, the First having gone to Maryland Heights and the Fourth to Baltimore.

Cordiality of Citizens.

The feeling of the people of Western Maryland towards the soldiers was, with very few exceptions, cordial and thoroughly sympathetic. In return, the instances of invasion of private right on the part of the soldiers were extremely rare, they were discountenanced by the men, and promptly punished when discovered.

Maryland Heights.

On the 21st of December, 1862, the Seventh and Eighth, with Alexander's Battery, started for Maryland Heights, where the whole brigade was finally settled in winter quarters.

West Virginia Campaign.

On the 4th of April, 1863, the Seventh crossed the river and encamped on Bolivar Heights, and on the 27th the Seventh and Fourth were transported by rail to Oakland, under orders which indicated a campaign in West Virginia, then much exercised by a dashing raid under Imboden and Jones. On the morning of the 29th, the Seventh left knapsacks behind at Oakland in charge of the Fourth, and made a forced march all that day and most of the night across the Alleghanies, the memory of which was destined to become a standard of comparison in all future campaigns of the Seventh. For several weeks the regiment remained in the vicinity of Rowlesburg, the several companies being so disposed as best to guard the railroad bridge on Cheat river and the high trestles near by.

There was practically but one sentiment among the West Virginians here—all were zealous Unionists, and everywhere officers and men found themselves at home. Nothing could be more primitive than the life of these mountaineers. The clothes they wore, the food they ate, the beverages they drank, everything was home-made. Much use was made of maple sugar in a variety of forms; spinning and weaving their own flax and wool, they dyed with madder or black oak bark.

Bolivar and Maryland Heights.

On the 16th of May the West Virginia campaign was closed, the men turning their backs with regret upon the wild freshness and romance of mountain life, and finding their old tents on Bolivar Heights just as they had been left, guarded by the sick and crippled.

For some days the Seventh was the only Union force on the Virginia side of the Potomac, except a few cavalry. Guerrillas were reported in front, and the regiment was much weakened by heavy details for picket and scout duty. On the 23d of May an unfortunate incident occurred at an outpost on the Blue Ridge, where several demonstrations had been made on the pickets of the Seventh. Lieutenant Gorrell, of Company H (Harford County), was in command of this outpost of twenty men, and ventured beyond his advanced sentries on a private reconnoissance. Returning, he failed to hear the challenge of the sentry, who failed to recognize his officer in the darkness. He was shot through the lung and disabled for further service. A few days after, a personal difficulty between two non-commissioned officers resulted in a severe pistol wound to one of them. The shooting was clearly a case of self-defense.

On the 5th of June, 1863, the Seventh moved across the river to its old drill-ground on Maryland Heights, and the brigade was once more united.

Gettysburg Campaign.

A new and eventful chapter in the history of the Civil War was now upon the eve of development. The air, which for several days past had been heavy with rumor, now, on the 14th of June, throbbed with distant cannonading in the direction of Winchester. The flash of the guns and shells could be seen after dark. The next day the tongue of rumor was busy with a thousand startling reports, all of which centered around the established fact that Milroy's command at Winchester had been crushed by an overwhelming force of the enemy on their march to transfer the seat of war to the Northern States. We heard with especial regret that our old comrades of the Sixth Maryland and Alexander's Baltimore Battery had shared in the general disaster, but without loss of reputation.

Toward the end of June, Hooker came and ordered Maryland Heights to be abandoned. The troops were in line ready to march. It was then reported that the order had been countermanded by Halleck. They did not march. The next report was that Hooker was out and Meade in command. By his order, General French, a regular and a Marylander, made his appearance and took command of the troops on Maryland Heights, comprising the Maryland brigade, some heavy artillery and the wreck of Milroy's command.

On the 30th of June the position was abandoned. Big guns were spiked or hauled down to the canal, and ammunition which could not be removed was destroyed. During this process, while the troops were moving down, an accidental explosion in the magazine of a thirty-pounder battery filled the air with fragments, killing and wounding twenty-one men.

Under French to Frederick.

On the 1st of July the two brigades of French's column, Kenly's and Morriss', continued the march through the Middletown Valley to Frederick, the heavy firing of the first day's battle of Gettysburg being at times audible on the left. On the 2d of July a ringing order was issued with the announcement that "any officer, no matter how high his rank, or soldier who fails of his full duty at this crisis, will suffer death, under immediate trial by drum-head court." This order was followed up by a choleric visit from French to every regiment and picket post, the deliberate design of which seemed to be to exasperate the entire command to the fighting pitch. Such, at least, was its effect. On the next day (July 3d), the command was paraded through town in column of platoons equalized, field music playing, on the march to Monocacy Junction. At the corner of Market and Patrick streets the column passed General French in review, and at all points was loudly cheered by the citizens. On each of these days, especially the third, the sound of artillery continued from the direction of Gettysburg.

It was understood that French was acting as the reserve of Meade's army, keeping open its line of communication and covering Washington and Baltimore. In the event of Meade's defeat, it is easy to see that his task would have been one of vital importance.

On the 4th day of July, 1863, the news of a great victory at Gettysburg flew like wildfire, followed up by long trains of captured wagons and prisoners, escorted by cavalry. All was activity and vigilance, constant marching and counter-marching, posting of pickets and calling them in again, with hourly expectation of something important to happen immediately. Late in the day the Seventh was counter-marched back to its old bivouac on Rizer's farm, west of Frederick, on the Harper's Ferry road.

In the early dawn of the 6th, as the field officer of the day was riding along the outposts, he descried an object swinging from the limb of a tree, surrounded by a force of cavalry. They reported that the body was that of a spy, caught with the evidence in his boots, and hung by drum-head court by order of General Buford. He was easily recognized as a former visitor to the camp of the Maryland brigade, offering various small articles for sale and getting up ornamental company rolls.

Army of the Potomac.

General French was then assigned to the command of the third corps, and Kenly's brigade hurried back to Maryland Heights. The Seventh being on picket at the time, did not start with the brigade, which had a skirmish as they occupied the Heights. As soon as the Seventh was relieved by its namesake, the famous Seventh New York Militia, National Guard, it rejoined the brigade, which, on the 10th of July, moved out through Pleasant Valley to a point near Boonsboro. The march was directly toward the sound of cannon. The march was a forced one of seventeen miles, the day was hot and sultry, and many of the best men fell out from sheer exhaustion. The straggling was excessive and much of it was unavoidable; most of the stragglers came up during the night.

Here the Maryland brigade brought up against the Army of the Potomac and reinforced its weakest corps, being designated as the 3d Brigade, 3d Division, 1st Corps. General Newton commanded the corps, Kenly the division and Colonel Dushane, of the first Maryland, commanded the brigade.

The next day the brigade took its place in the corps line of battle, drawn up in a field along the Hagerstown pike. The men opened their eyes as the reserve artillery thundered by, battery after battery, the heavy Parrot guns drawn by ten or twelve horses each. From the time they struck the Army of the Potomac, they had found themselves in an atmosphere of novelty and wonder. The thinned ranks of many of the regiments, shrunk by losses in battle to the proportions of a company or so, the tattered and bullet-ridden colors, and those queer-looking badges worn by men and officers, of various devices, shapes and colors, corresponding with the conspicuous standards borne by mounted orderlies, following every movement of the general officers, formed the principal subjects of curiosity and topics for discussion among the men of the Maryland brigade. Many are still living who will remember the thrill of pride with which, on that day, the brigade and division standards were received, and the corps badges attached.

Skirmish at Funkstown.

After several changes of position, on the 12th of July the Maryland brigade was brought into contact with the enemy near Funkstown. The Seventh being called on for a company to relieve the skirmishers of the sixth corps in its front, it happened to be the turn of company I to go on that duty. This company (Captain E. F. Anderson) was raised in the neighborhood, and most of the men had harvested or hunted over the ground. Ridges of limestone cropping out here and there furnished accidents of position of which the skirmishers of both sides made it a point to avail themselves quite liberally. Lee was at that moment preparing to withdraw his army across the Potomac, a fact unknown to our side, and he was holding his entrenchments only to cover the retreat. Accordingly, the work of our skirmishers went on prosperously and they advanced gradually, pressing back the enemy's skirmishers. The next morning Company I, with a loss of only one man wounded (Scoffin), was relieved on the skirmish line by Captain Bennett, Company E.

A marksman on the other side had been observed to make several close shots, one of which had grazed Captain Bennett's ear and drawn blood. The latter stationed one of his best shots behind a wheat stack, with directions to shoot that man the next time he showed his head above the rifle pit. The captain then lifted his cap slightly on the point of his sword, and instantly the Confederate marksman showed himself, but before he had time to pull, corporal Mahaney, of company E, resting his rifle through the stack, had anticipated him, and he was seen to leap from out of the rifle-pit and fall forward upon his face. The corporal was afterwards killed in the Wilderness.

One of the incidents of this skirmish was a struggle for the possession of Stover's barn, which was finally carried by our men, when the barn was opened on by the enemy's artillery. After this, the enemy sent out a flag of truce to get the body of one of their officers.

Retreat of Lee.

During that night the retreat of Lee's army was ascertained by the pickets of the Maryland brigade, who captured a number of stragglers. The next day, 14th of July, 1863, the 1st Corps, following the sixth, marched through the two strong lines of earth-works just abandoned by the enemy, the men noticing the fresh graves of a number of Confederates who fell during the two days' skirmish.

On the 15th the march was resumed to Crampton's Gap, some twenty-five miles, passing a brigade of prisoners captured at Falling Waters. Another day's march brought the corps to Petersville, where the wagon trains came up, and a brief interval was employed in resting and refitting.

Advance into Virginia.

On the 18th the Potomac was crossed at Berlin on a pontoon bridge, and Middleburg was reached on the evening of the 20th, where the officer in charge of the brigade picket experienced the luxury of posting pickets after dark in a strange country, among woods tangled with under-growth, and meadows treacherous with ditches and swamps. The command stayed at Middleburg all the next day, indulging in blackberries to an unlimited extent, which, as a sanitary measure, was a success.

Rappahannock Station.

The march was resumed through White Plains and Warrenton Junction, reaching Rappahannock Station on the 2d of August, 1863, where a brisk cavalry skirmish was in progress, indicating renewed contact with Lee's army, now at the end of its retreat. This fight between Buford and Stuart was plainly visible across the Rapahannock, and it was watched with interest, because it was taken to be the prelude of another pitched battle. It turned out to be only a reconnoissance in force.

The Seventh was at this time separated from the Maryland brigade, and it was understood that it, together with some regiments from other brigades, constituted the reserve of the 1st Corps. Among the many rumors in constant circulation was one to the effect that the Seventh Regiment was to be detailed as "sharpshooters." It had been reported that during the two days' skirmishing at Funkstown the fire of our companies I and E had been especially effective. It had been learned officially (so went the rumor) that the enemy's loss during that skirmish in front of the Maryland brigade alone had been eight killed, including a captain, and fifteen wounded. In point of fact, nothing was certainly known about anything.

It was mysteriously whispered in select circles as a particularly choice tit-bit of rumor that "we" had learned to read the enemy's signals, with many cautions to be very careful of the secret, lest the rebels should get hold of it and immediately change their signal code.

There was but little incident of any kind to vary the monotony of camp life at Rapahannock station. Deserters were occasionally shot under sentence of court-martial in some of the neighboring camps, and it was the accepted policy to make these executions as public and ceremonious as possible, to strike terror into the substitutes and bounty-jumpers.

Quite in contrast with the dull monotony of the camps in rear, the picket line or extreme front in contact with the enemy is always interesting. Our division outposts at that time occupied a front of over two miles, the line between the two armies had not been straightened out, and the opposing sentries were within hailing distance, in some cases. This situation sometimes gave occasion for ludicrous mistakes. A too sociable disposition was at times indulged, resulting in the trading of newspapers, coffee, tobacco, etc., but this intercourse was always promptly repressed by the authorities as soon as discovered.

About the middle of September a division of cavalry, supported by the second corps, pushed on as far as Culpeper, not without resistance and loss. A rumor prevailed that we had captured colors, a large number of prisoners and ten guns, reduced afterwards to three.

Advance to the Rapidan.

Early on the morning of the 16th of September, 1863, the long expected order came, and after a march of ten or twelve miles through Brandy and Stevensburg, tents were pitched about half way between that place and Culpeper Courthouse, on Mountain Run. The march was toward the sound of cannon, and many dead and crippled horses were passed.

Here the paymaster made his appearance, and several officers were informed that their pay had been stopped until their regulation "ordnance returns" were duly forwarded. As Government officials became more experienced, greater strictness and more "red tape" was used, and many obscure and neglected "army regulations," which had been a mystery to inexperienced officers and the despair of department clerks, were revived and peremptorily enforced by the quick stimulus of "stopping pay."

The next move was to a piny old field on Potato Run, near Stewart's house, where, towards the end of the month, the division was paraded on three sides of a square to witness the shooting of a substitute deserter from the Fourth Maryland. He followed his coffin around the square with unmoved expression and steady step, keeping time to his own dead march, and, after the execution, the troops were marched in review past the bloody remains.

On the 27th of September, 1863, another move was made about four miles westerly to Summerduck Run, and on the morning of the 29th, just after the brigade guard had been mounted, with the assistance of the brigade band, there was another move west to a point near Cedar Run, guarding Raccoon Ford, of the Rapidan. The division was here masked by a dense forest of heavy timber. Blazing trunks of solid hickory, piled with reckless extravagance, cheered the men with a genial air of home comfort and lighted the path of mounted orderlies.

Meade's Retreat.

Another active campaign was now at hand, to counteract a rapid flank movement of Lee's army toward Meade's rear. The movement commenced, so far as the Seventh was concerned, at two o'clock on the morning of October 10, 1863, by a forward demonstration of the 1st Corps upon Morton's Ford of the Rapidan. From this point the retreat commenced that night, and the Rappahannock was recrossed at Kelly's Ford. It was at this time a frequent subject of remark among the men that they had often heard firing in front and on the flank during a march, but never before in the rear. From a hill above the ford, looking back, could be distinctly seen every shell as it burst in the air, the distant Blue Ridge forming a dark background for the puffs of white smoke. The hot cavalry fighting which had been going on all day did not end with it, and there continued to be seen the flash of the guns and of the bursting shells until long after dark.

At one o'clock on the morning of October 13, 1863, began the heaviest march yet made, from Kelly's Ford to a point beyond Bristoe Station, some twenty-seven or eight miles, carrying eight days' rations. If the private soldiers of the Seventh had been polled, their verdict would have been that this eight days' ration business was a fraud. There was never more than about four or five days eating in them; the balance was a dead loss to the men as well as to the Government, spoiled by mixture, by wet, by perspiration, by dirt, by mildew, sometimes by bugs, until the revolting pasty garbage would be heaved out on the roadside. The only parties benefited were the contractors, for, as a rule, a reissue of three days' rations, when attainable, was an absolute necessity.

It was nearly ten o'clock at night when the Seventh bivouacked a mile or so beyond Bristoe, in a place selected for purely military reasons, with no reference, of course, to convenience or comfort. Those whose good luck it was to stretch themselves under the warm shelter of some level spreading pine, upon ground softly padded with fragrant leaves, soon forgot the toils and burdens of that march. Those whose misery it was to be detailed for picket, must be left to their own reflections, aching backs, and blistered feet.

Centreville.

At daylight of the 14th, the 1st Corps resumed the march northward, and the Maryland brigade took its turn in guarding the ammunition train. It was now apparent that the two armies were running a foot-race on parallel lines for the strongly fortified and commanding position at Centerville. Bull Run was crossed at Blackburn's Ford at noon, and the Heights of Centerville were gained two and a-half hours later, just half an hour ahead (so the rumor went) of Lee's advance. Marching over the old Bull Run battle ground, the solid earth quaked and shuddered, and the air throbbed with the sound of cannonading from Bristoe in rear, and from Thoroughfare Gap on left front.

At about four P. M. the firing from Bristoe reached its climax and continued until after dark, the flash of each gun being plainly seen from Centerville Heights, and the firing becoming both more distant and desultory until about eight o'clock, when it ceased. This was shortly afterwards understood to mean a gallant and successful fight of the second corps under Warren, with A. P. Hill's corps, which was defeated, with the loss of five guns and four hundred and fifty prisoners.

The next day the division was drawn back to a point near Chantilly and thrown in (as was said) between the other divisions of the first corps and the sixth. Here the men were again put into a state of expectancy by a very lively fusilade and some cannonading south and southwest. Two hours later this firing grew more distant, and bore more to the west. The cause was not explained. Probably another cavalry reconnoissance.

Lee's Retreat.

After being countermarched to Centerville early on the 19th of October, 1863, the 1st corps marched south, in pursuit of Lee's now retreating army, crossed Bull Run at the Stone Bridge, heard heavy firing directly in front, formed column of brigades on a ridge upon the other side of Bull Run, and loaded. The corps then resumed its march over the ground of the first and second Bull Run battles, and about 3 P. M. went into camp at or near a burnt out village named Haymarket.

Skirmish at Haymarket.

The whole Seventh Regiment was then ordered to picket the front from the Leesburg pike on the right to the Thoroughfare Gap pike on the left, with a strong post well advanced on each road, a mile and a-half in front of Haymarket. Before the posting had been completed, a lively skirmish suddenly commenced between the advanced post on the left and Stuart's cavalry.

It appeared that during the cavalry fight at Buckland Mills, Kilpatrick had thrown one of his brigades (Davies') forward into a bad position, where it was confronted by Stuart, outflanked by Fitzhugh Lee, and routed. It was hotly pursued, and in steeple chase style dashed through the picket line of the Seventh Maryland. The small outpost on the Gap road promptly opened fire and brought the foremost riders to a stand. But being rapidly reinforced every moment, they soon displayed a front which threatened the capture of the entire outpost, several of whom had fallen. Captain Makechney then fell back with his little command before the cautious advance of the enemy for some two hundred yards, when he was met by Colonel Webster and posted by him on the picket line, which had retained its position, and now again opened fire upon the advancing force, which was again brought to a stand. In the meantime the delay afforded by the check had enabled a battery of horse artillery with Davies' brigade to get into position on a ridge in rear of our picket line, and the battery was promptly supported by the 143d Pennsylvania, under Colonel Dana, moved up by order of General Kenly. After a few rounds from the battery and some more skirmishing along the picket line, night fell, the enemy's cavalry withdrew, and the battery, with the rest of Davies' brigade, retired to the rear.

By some oversight on the part of the officer in command of the picket line of the division which was to have connected on our left, an interval was left between the Gap road and a stream some little distance southwest. Through this opening a dash was made by the enemy's cavalry after dark, and a number of our pickets cut off and captured. The renewed firing on the picket line caused General Kenly to order up the 1st Maryland (Colonel Wilson) to the support of the Seventh, and a round or two from the 1st Maryland ended the affair. The fight commenced just before sunset and ended about 8 P. M. There were only the three left companies of the Seventh engaged, all from Frederick County (B, G and E). Loss—one killed, five wounded, sixteen prisoners, including Lieutenant Hagan, of Company G. Colonel Webster received a ball through his clothing and narrowly escaped capture, being at the time of the last dash in the act of inspecting his pickets, when the enemy's cavalry charged past and within a few yards of him.

Bristoe Station.

Several days were then passed at Thoroughfare Gap, and on the 24th of October, 1863, the 1st corps made a heavy mud march, the men wading Broad Run and other swollen streams to Bristoe Station, where it entered upon the duty of guarding the railroad and picketing its approaches.

On November 6th the resignation of Colonel Webster, consequent upon his re-election to Congress and the demands of his political friends for his active aid in the pending struggle for emancipation in Maryland, was accepted, and on the following day he took leave of the regiment. A meeting of the officers was held and resolutions were adopted expressing the appreciation of the regiment of the many admirable qualities of their late commander, and their regret at the separation. Lieut.-Colonel Phelps was thereupon commissioned Colonel, and Capt. E. M. Mobley, Major, vice Major Dallam, permanently disabled by illness, the result of exposure.

Guarding Prisoners to Alexandria.

A brilliant charge of General Russell, at Rappahannock Station on the 7th, had resulted in the capture of four guns and 1600 prisoners, and on the same day a dash ordered by General French at Kelly's Ford secured over 400 more. Before the trains containing these prisoners reached Bristoe on their way to the rear, under a small provost-guard, on the afternoon of the 9th, despatches had been received by Col. Dushane, commanding the Maryland brigade, indicating an attempt by a strong force of the enemy to intercept the trains and effect, if possible, a rescue. The colonel of the Seventh was ordered to be in readiness with his regiment, reinforced by a company of the 1st Maryland, to board the train upon their arrival at Bristoe, and guard them to Alexandria. There were two trains of eighteen freight cars each. The first train did not arrive until long after dark, and, owing to mistake or panic, dashed by without slackening speed. A few minutes later the second train arrived, but made such a short stop that numbers of the officers and men were not able to reach their places on the roofs of the cars. Dr. Jarrett, surgeon of the 7th, made for the only open door he saw, probably supposing, in his innocence, that some inside accommodation had been reserved for at least the "field and staff," and was immediately and not at all ceremoniously pulled in by the guard. In the darkness and confusion, the inside guard (of the 20th N. Y.) mistook him for a prisoner who had been trying to escape, and rejected all his protestations as "weak inventions" of the enemy. The doctor found himself in a car densely crowded with Louisiana Irishmen, where he was closely watched by the guard inside as a specially intelligent and dangerous prisoner, capable of framing very plausible stories. The train reached Alexandria at two o'clock in the morning. The prisoners were then turned over to a guard in waiting and marched to the old capitol prison, and the Maryland boys, relieved of all further responsibility, found (to them) sumptuous quarters at "Soldier's Rest."

Soldier's Rest.

The spacious enclosure which contained the various buildings was stockaded to the height of fifteen or twenty feet, with banquettes and loop holes for musketry. The first impression, naturally, was that this stockade was only designed to check our hungry and misguided Southern brethren in case any portion of them, with force and arms, should desire to participate in the hospitalities of the place. The next idea that suddenly presented itself to the astonished minds of our boys, after they had duly washed, eaten, drank, rested, and frankly sought to penetrate into the external world, was, that the same stockade answered equally well to keep them in. All the outlets were guarded by armed men in the Frenchy, sky-blue uniform of the "Invalid Corps." The officer on duty was a polite young fellow who had left an arm at Gettysburg, and at his invitation the field and staff spread their blankets on the floor of the guard room, adjoining the large hall where the men slept.

Bristoe Again.

The next morning, the necessary preliminaries for transportation having been easily arranged (and nothing was ever found easier or less encumbered with red-tape than getting transportation to the front), the Seventh exchanged the romance of soldiering for the reality, and in due time was found once more at Bristoe, taking its share of duty with the rest of the Maryland brigade in picketing the railroad and its approaches from Manassas Junction to Kettle Run.

Rappahannock Again.

The Maryland brigade left Bristoe on the 23d, and marched some twenty miles to a point near the Rappahannock, and three days later moved camp to the bluffs on the north bank, near the railroad bridge.

Meade's demonstration upon Mine Run occupied the closing days of this month, during which Kenly's division was held in reserve, guarding the line of communication.

Paoli Mills.

As soon as things began to look settled again, the men occupied themselves in putting up winter quarters, but were not allowed to begin even to feel at home in them. The 3d of December, 1863, was a day of stir and bustle, troops and trains coming back from the front, and on the next day the Maryland brigade marched before daylight, crossing the river to a point on Mountain Run, near Paoli Mills. This was another of those dark, forced marches, leaving wagons behind and halting on the way to load. One of the rumors was that Lee had crossed the Rapidan, and we were going to meet him halfway. Sunrise dissipated these rumors, and the rest of the march was more leisurely conducted, as though we had found out that all Lee wanted was to be "let alone."

To compensate the men for their unprofitable investments in real estate, they now walked into, and literally hung up their hats in, ready-made substantial log cabins, well roofed with heavy oak slabs. For these accommodations, as well as for the bunks and other trimmings, they were indebted to the kind forethought of unknown friends in General Lee's army, probably some of the very men who afterwards received the polite attentions of the regiment in helping them to Alexandria.

Culpeper C. H.

The day before Christmas the snug log cabins at Paoli were vacated, and the 1st corps again marched forth into the unknown. Crossing the railroad at Brandy Station, we soon came in sight of our old friend Mount Pony, and, passing through Culpeper, Kenly's division bivouacked on a hillside a half mile or so south. After one or two changes the Maryland brigade, on New Year's Day, 1864, finally settled down in winter quarters upon the slope and crest of a ridge east of the railroad, between Culpeper and Mount Pony, Colonel Phelps being, at this time, temporarily in command of the brigade, now designated, by the consolidation of the other two brigades, 2d Brigade, 3d Division, 1st Army Corps.

For two or three months, or until the arrival of General Grant, the history of the Army of the Potomac is one of mere drill and routine. Early in February there was a cavalry reconnoissance across the Rapidan, and the whole first corps marched down to Raccoon Ford in support. The detail of this movement was but a repetition of previous experiences—the same picket firing in front, the same interesting prospect of immediate battle, the same lying out in the rain and tramping back in the mud to the same old quarters.

Army Routine.

The Seventh Regiment had long since found itself a comparatively insignificant unit in a vast and complex organism. Tied in meshes of red tape, it was subject at every turn to the innumerable minute and rigid exactions which could alone secure the symmetry of the colossal system. It will be found suggestive to glance over the musty files in some regimental headquarter's desk—that of the Seventh, for instance. Here are, to begin with, orders—no end of orders; orders from the War Department, from army headquarters, from corps headquarters, from division, brigade and regimental headquarters; here are infinite reports, returns, requisitions, receipts, abstracts, vouchers, blanks in duplicate, triplicate and quadruplicate; here are applications "approved and respectfully forwarded," applications returned with disapproval and endorsements of all sorts; here are details for courts-martial, courts of inquiry and military commissions; here are endless details for guard, for picket, for police, for the pioneer corps, for the ambulance corps, for the quartermasters', commissary and ordnance departments, details as orderlies, guards and provost-guards at the several headquarters.

details for fatigue and working parties; an occasional detail for recruiting service (a rare and soft thing); leaves of absence and furloughs granted, ditto refused; here are circulars, certificates, discharges, descriptive lists of recruits, descriptive lists of deserters, inventories of the effects of deceased soldiers, abstracts of unserviceable ordnance stores, boards to assess value of officers' private horses, pay rolls, muster rolls, muster in and muster out rolls; and here are inspection reports, criticising one regiment for unsanitary condition, another for neglect of military courtesy in saluting, a third for want of schools of tactical instruction. And so on through the whole tedious catalogue, and all this mechanism requiring the consumption of tons of stationery, acres of printed blanks, the tugging this way and that of many thousands of braying mules, and the incessant galloping to and fro of staff officers, mounted orderlies and couriers, always with an intense air of the utmost importance.

Regimental Routine.

This was about the life of the army in brief, looking at it as an organism. Taking a nearer view, the history of one regiment was about that of every other regiment, and the history of one day pretty much the same as that of every day. Reveille at daylight, police call fifteen minutes after, surgeons' call, breakfast, guard-mount, drill, recall, dinner, drill again, recall again, first call for parade and company inspection, second call and dress parade with retreat at sunset, tattoo about nine P. M., with taps twenty minutes later; so began, continued and ended the soldier's day. On Saturdays there was a special inspection of quarters, and the coverings of the tents, weather permitting, were removed. On Sundays drills were omitted, regimental inspections preceded guard-mount, and the men were assembled for divine service, for which, unfortunately, the Seventh was compelled to depend upon the chaplains of other commands. On the last day of the month was inspection and muster, and muster for pay when the paymaster came.

Drill.

The afternoon was devoted to battalion and the morning to company drill. Brigade and division drill, and evolutions of the line were specially appointed. The evenings were all supposed to be devoted by the officers to "recitations in tactics and revised army regulations," either at regimental or brigade headquarters, and the hours appointed for drill were, by express order, "to be employed in exercise and not in resting." Particular attention was required to the skirmish drill, and target practice. The penalty for inattention and blundering in drill was the "awkward squad," whose "balance step," "goose step," "shanghai step," and other gymnastic eccentricities, sometimes with loaded knapsacks, never failed to cause sufficient diversion to outsiders.

In the Seventh, it was the invariable practice to close every battalion drill with the "rally on the colors." Ranks were broken, the companies mixed, and as much confusion and disorder made as possible. While this was going on, the colors were advanced or retired over the rise of a neighboring hill, as much out of view as practicable, and markers posted. At the drum signal, the color-guard loudly cheered, and the men raced, with a great shout, to find their places in line or in column, according to the position of the markers. The men greatly enjoyed this exercise, and its value was soon practically illustrated in the Wilderness campaign.

Discipline.

There was never much trouble in the discipline of the Seventh. So far as the men were concerned, ordinary guard-house discipline sufficed for the common run of petty offenses. The few deserters who were caught and brought back were, of course, turned over to general court-martial for more serious punishment. There had not been a single officer court-martialed down to this period of its history, although one had resigned on request, and two were marked as deserters, with whom it would have fared badly if they had been caught. Neither of these three could be said properly to have belonged to the regiment, in the sense of being identified with the society from which it came. At the time the regiment crossed the Rapidan in May, two of its officers marched in the rear under arrest and charges, one of them, by express order from the War Department, for some technical breach, but at the first heavy firing in the Wilderness they were both ordered to resume their swords and expect no other trial than that which awaited them in the woods.

Gen. Grant—Consolidation.

So matters went on, or rather stood still, until the last week in March, when the Army of the Potomac was struck as if by lightning. In the general reorganization ordered on the 23d of March, the old First Corps was "consolidated" out of existence, its 3d division was broken up, and the Maryland brigade was assigned to Warren's Fifth Corps and became the 3d brigade of its 2d division, under Gen. John C. Robinson, a regular army officer of distinction. The brigade was allowed to wear its old badges. Gen. Kenly, in taking leave of his command, was greeted with a hearty expression of good will and regret. Lieutenant-General Grant was at Culpeper, and the saying among the men was that they were being "lieutenant-generalized."

Twice they were ordered out to be reviewed by him, and each time came back without that satisfaction, the men calling him "Un Seen Grant." At last, on the 29th of March, Grant himself, assisted by Meade and Warren, did actually review the 2d and 4th divisions of the 5th Corps, comprising the consolidated three divisions of the old First.

It is now admitted that this consolidation, the reason for which was the reduced strength of infantry regiments, was an unfortunate move to be made at the outset of a sharp campaign. Among the organizations whose prized record and associations were thus ignored, and whose cherished identity was lost, there was naturally at first some soreness and wounded esprit de corps. (Humphrey's Va. Campaign, 3.)

The ceremony was like all others of the kind, except that the marching past in review was dispensed with. There was no cheering as the conqueror of Donaldson and Vicksburg uncovered before each stand of regimental colors. He rode slowly, in a business like, quiet manner, along the front of the massed battalions, looking critically as he passed, not at the buttons, but at the faces, which, in turn, looked critically at him. The men agreed that they saw nothing at all striking about him or his outfit; nothing for effect, no self-consciousness, further than a sort of shy, half embarrassed, half-bored look, on the surface, and behind it a certain depth of expression, as of reserve force, grit, pluck, will power, energy, and masterful grasp.

Camp Talk.

The following, from a letter from camp written at about the same time, throws some light upon the topics then engaging the attention of the men :

“For some time past rumors have been afloat that our brigade is to be ordered home to vote on the 6th of April. Of course, the men who have failed to obtain furloughs are in ecstasies at the idea. One report goes so far as that we are to be permanently detached from this army. It would not be honest to deny that this prospect is also immensely popular. The discipline is severe, the marching heavy, duty tough and quarters rough, and, whatever the newspapers may say, all men are not spoiling for a fight all the time. No furloughs, no frenches, no hen-roosts, no whiskey, not a pig. They look back wistfully upon the good old days of the upper Potomac and West Virginia, and think they left there the flesh pots of Egypt to come and perish in this wilderness, where the quails are regulation salt pork, and the manna mouldy hard tack. There are some of us, however, who would, if the choice were presented to us, decide to take our chances with this army. On the eve of the fourth campaign of the Civil War, we have hopes that it will be the decisive one. There are battles to be fought, and our ranks will be thinned, but if we fall, it will be no more than we bargained for when we volunteered, and if we survive there will be satisfaction, glory and promotion—perhaps. The steadiest, oftenest tried, best disciplined and most unfortunate army in the world is about being led by the ablest and most successful general of the war. We feel a faith that it will at last be led to victory. And to have participated in a victorious and conclusive campaign of the Army of the Potomac would be an experience and a record that we would not exchange for milk and maple sugar.”

Furlough.

The brigade was not ordered home to vote, but the Seventh was fortunate enough to have a friend “at court,” and, after failing in his efforts in behalf of the whole brigade, Col. Webster at length succeeded in obtaining for his old regiment a furlough from the 1st to the 8th of April, with transportation to Baltimore. Upon arriving there the regiment was practically disbanded, and the men went home. The confidence thus reposed was not abused, except in a very few instances. Promptly, upon the day named, the regiment reassembled in Baltimore. There was no loss by desertion, but, on the contrary, the handsome acquisition was made of 144 first-class recruits from Baltimore, almost enough to make up all the losses which the regiment had ever sustained. These men had all served their time in the 10th Maryland, a six months’ organization, and had re-enlisted for the war for that regiment, which failed to reach the required strength; and upon application made by them through their officers, the War Department ordered that the re-enlisted portion thereof, composed of one company of eighty-seven men with their officers, and a squad of fifty-seven men with one officer, be transferred and assigned to the Seventh Maryland.

With this cheering reinforcement, the Seventh resumed its old quarters, where times had continued as dull and quiet as ever.

Stripping for Fight.

Soon, however, every sign began to indicate that the great army was at last stripping for fight. Transportation was being reduced, surplus baggage was packed off to the rear, and, as if the work was not going on fast enough, on the afternoon of the 2d of May, a tornado struck the camp, tore off all the tent roofs, demolished many of the cabins, blew down many trees and covered everything with red dust. The Seventh was out on battalion drill at the time; field and staff had to dismount; men were actually lifted off their feet. On the whole, it was a pretty strong hint to leave.

The camps of a cavalry division now made their appearance in front near the base of Mount Pony, and one of their preliminary movements was a raid upon the private horses of the Seventh, and the capture, while innocently grazing, of a valuable horse belonging to the Adjutant, and a spare horse of the Colonel's. The latter was seen a few days later crossing the Rapidan on a pontoon bridge; no time then for swapping horses, or claiming stolen ones.

Behind camp, and between it and Culpeper, glittered the bright pieces of Wainwright's artillery brigade of our corps. On the crest of a ridge back of this, a red line of earthworks was being industriously thrown up, in full view of the enemy's signal station on Clark's Mountain. What those banks were made for, just on the eve of an advance, was one of those mysteries that still remain unexplained, unless for the purpose of deluding the enemy into the belief that we intended to stay behind them for "three years or the war," or run back to them after defeat.

The Rapidan Crossed.

Heavy weights thrown off, weather not unfavorable, roads as good as ever they were likely to be, all are waiting for the word "go," when, on Tuesday, 3d of May (1864), the general officer of the day goes out to order in the picket line, and advanced copies of Meade's printed address to the army, dated 4th May, are handed around and read at dress parade. Following that came the order to be ready to move at midnight, with a caution against making unusual fires.

The rolls of the Seventh at this time show an aggregate of 794, and its effective fighting strength, on the morning of the first battle in the Wilderness, was 556, including 26 officers, with Colonel Phelps in command.

Early on the morning of May 4 the Fifth Corps had pulled out, and at noon crossed the Rapidan at Germanna Ford. Flankers were thrown out on the right, and, after a cautious progress of some five miles or more, the Maryland brigade bivouacked for the night in a piny old field near the old Wilderness tavern.

Wilderness—First Day.

At daylight of the 5th the Maryland brigade (Colonel Denison), now acting separately, took position on the high clearing near the Lacy House, from which were seen heavy columns of troops disappearing in the thicket, and the skirmishing fire playing around the unseen heads of these columns as they deployed. After some marching and counter-marching, as if prospecting for a good location, the brigade deployed along an edge of small timber facing west or northwest, in what might be called the right center of the general position, and advanced in line, brigade front, through the woods, brush and undergrowth. After some 500 yards or more of such scrambling, the ragged line suddenly stumbled upon another line of somebody else's skirmishers, waiting for something to turn up. It was then discovered that these were the skirmishers of the "Iron Brigade" of western regiments, which had the right of way, soon came up from the rear, passed through intervals formed for the purpose, swept forward, through the woods, skirmishers ahead, and in a few minutes became hotly engaged. Their battle for some time prospered, hundreds of prisoners were sent to the rear, with several colors, and considerable ground was gained. Then the tide turned, the first symptoms being the suspicious numbers of supernumerary attendants upon the wounded, soon followed by stragglers with the usual discouraging reports. An aid, galloping from the front, wanted to know who commanded these troops, and was referred to Colonel Denison. He said he had no time to go to him; "tell him the rebels are driving our right, and there is no support on that flank." This message was promptly communicated to Denison, who remarked with great composure that he had just received an exactly similar report about the left. The Seventh held the left of the brigade, its left emerging from the woods into a clearing of the Hagerson farm, south of the Orange Pike. Near the edge of this clearing a venerable mounted officer, unattended, said to be General Wadsworth, his white locks streaming, was shouting, "Where is my second line? Bring up my second line!"

Before any response could have been given, the crisis came; the Iron brigade had fairly broken to the rear, the enemy close upon their heels, charging after colors, picking up prisoners, until they rushed impetuously up to the very muzzles of the leveled pieces of the Maryland brigade (at some points of the line), our men having held their fire to the very last minute so as not to injure our retreating friends. Then followed a hot and bloody duel at close range, which lasted nobody knew exactly how many minutes, but long enough, at all events, to clear the front of the Seventh, at least, from every sign of a live Confederate. The fire slackened on both sides, but it appeared at a glance that this was but a lull in the storm. All that now remained of the brigade was the Seventh and a fraction of the Eighth on its right. The entire right wing of the brigade, formed of the Fourth and First, with most of the Eighth, had been flanked and "fell back, rather irregularly, about a mile." (Camper and Kirkeley, page 128.)

It should be noted that only a small battalion of the 1st Maryland is here referred to; the majority of that regiment, having lately re-enlisted, were on "veteran furlough," under Colonel Dushane.

There was nothing now in front of the Confederate force but the small command of Phelps, just referred to, which found itself isolated, left flank "in the air," right flank in the bush. When the attack was shortly after renewed, there was also a mischievous fire from fugitives who had rallied some distance back in the thicket, and who doubtless supposed, in good faith, that everything had fallen back when they did. Under these discouraging circumstances some of the rank and file began to grow unsteady, and the utmost exertions of the officers were required to keep the line firmly in place, seconded by the dauntless bearing of the color guard. By a hot and well-directed file fire the position was stubbornly maintained, until at last Denison rode up and ordered Phelps to "fall back steadily." The movement was executed by word of command as if on drill, the men reloading while marching by the rear rank, then halting, facing front and firing at short intervals. Some men, it is true, were lost at each halt, but, from the difficult character of the ground, nothing else could have been expected. The same difficulties equally obstructed the rapid advance of the enemy in anything like good order, and the deliberate and steady punishment they were getting warned them of the inconvenience of approaching in bad order. At all events, they did not deem it prudent to follow up their cautious pursuit for more than one or two hundred yards, and, as soon as the command reached a small stream where a good defensive position was found, they were effectually checked, and the men were given a halt to blow and cool off by its side in the heart of the Wilderness.

After a short rest, the command was visited by an aid and conducted still further to the rear, and occupied a line of breastworks near the Lacy House, connecting with Crawford's Division. It was about noon when the battle opened, and about 3.30 P. M. when the breastworks were occupied. They had been hastily thrown together of logs. The dry leaves had taken fire from the burning cartridge papers, and the flames had caught the works. After putting out this fire, a field return was taken, showing but 278 of the Seventh present. These, with about one company of the Eighth, included all that was left of the Maryland brigade, until the missing regiments and men came up from the rear later in the evening, surprised to find their comrades alive. There being no space for them in the line as formed, they were placed in a second line.

Loss.

The loss of the Seventh Regiment on the first day of the Wilderness (5th May, 1864) was eleven killed, two officers and forty-one men wounded, and seventeen missing. The missing included men killed or wounded, but not heard from, and a few prisoners taken. The officers wounded were Capt. David T. Bennett and Adjutant George L. Tyler. Sergeant Noble H. Creager, afterwards first lieutenant, was twice wounded before retiring. These three were all from Frederick County. Colonel Phelps had several bullets through clothing and horse killed under him. Captain Bennett, for conspicuous gallantry in this action, was promoted lieutenant-colonel. He was shot in the face while engaged in a revolver duel with a Confederate officer, both in advance of their lines, and refused to leave the field until ordered to the rear by the colonel. The loss of the entire Maryland brigade (including the 7th) was two officers and eighteen men killed, six officers and ninety-three men wounded, and one officer and sixty men missing. The brigade went into action about 1300 strong.

Wilderness—Second Day.

Before daylight of the 6th of May, the Maryland brigade was relieved in the works by the Pennsylvania Reserves, and stacked arms in close column by regiment (Seventh, as usual, by wing) on the Lacy clearing, near Grant's headquarters.

About 7 A. M. a New York regiment, the 14th Brooklyn, came up from guard duty in the rear, and by order reported to the Maryland brigade, its Colonel (Fowler), by seniority, taking command. He commanded the brigade for that day only, his regiment being then ordered elsewhere. It was thought at the time to be an extraordinary performance—in the midst of a great pitched battle, to place an entire stranger, with a strange staff, in command of troops, who had been ably handled the day before by their own commander (Denison), who had shown himself brave, self-possessed, cool-headed and judicious. It was an error, and in direct consequence of it, later in the day, the command narrowly escaped a great disaster, as will shortly appear.

In Support of Hancock.

After several changes of position and reinforcing the troops engaged on the Orange Pike on the right, about 3 P. M. the Maryland brigade was hurried over to the left to support Hancock on the Brock road, and was formed by General Robinson in two lines in rear of his first brigade to right of Birney's division. In this position the Fourth, First and Eighth formed a second line, and the Fourteenth Brooklyn and Seventh Maryland a third, the left of the Eighth and Seventh being both projected into a swamp. The young timber here was dense and choked with undergrowth. The third line was some 25 yards in rear of the entrenchments along the Brock road, a short distance north of its intersection with the Orange plank road, about midway between it and Germanna plank road.

Very soon after the brigade got into position, the fight on this part of the field reached its climax. The log breastworks along Hancock's front took fire from the burning leaves, the direction of the wind favored the enemy, Hancock's first line was driven out of the works, the fight to regain them was going on. While this was taking place on our near left, not within sight, because nothing could be seen through the thicket, the Maryland brigade, the Seventh regiment in particular, was going through a very extraordinary experience.

Scarcely had the brigade got fairly into position, when the din of battle upon the left rapidly drew nearer. Not only so, but it soon appeared to pass beyond our left, to get behind that flank into our left rear. As before stated, the Seventh held the left of the third line, and so dense was the brush that but a few files could be seen at once. The firing increased in volume, individual exclamations could be distinctly heard, the screaming and exploding of shell in quick succession rose above the continuous crash of musketry, stragglers and fugitives were seen to burst through the bushes. Every sign indicated the necessity for a prompt change of front to meet the impending attack upon the rear. General Robinson, at the right of the line, was notified, and erroneously explained that the line made a sharp angle on the left. The officer who had communicated this information was on his way back, when he met General Birney, riding hastily from Hancock's front to General Robinson with precisely the same information, followed by an orderly, who was at that moment shot from his horse and killed. Immediately after Birney communicated with Robinson, the second and third lines were faced to the rear.

An Awkward Fix.

And now rides up a stranger, purporting to be a staff officer, with a verbal order to the Colonel of the Seventh, "Swing your right around immediately." Being faced to the rear, our proper right was then our left. To be certain, "Which right was meant?" The officer replied that he gave the order just as he had it from Colonel Fowler. He was asked whether the order meant a "change front forward on Tenth Company," the effect of which would be to swing around our proper right, but our then left, and the precise movement dictated by the situation. He said "I suppose so," and rode off.

The tactical command for this movement was given: "By company, right half wheel, etc.," the Tenth Company established on the new line, and the Ninth as it came up, but when the next was partly in position, some hesitation and confusion were noticed towards the centre of the regiment. The other companies were not following up the movement. Riding up to see what was wrong, the Colonel found the right wing engaged in executing an entirely different movement under the direction, as it afterwards appeared, of some staff officer who had faced those companies about and was trying to bring them by a flank to a "Change front to rear on First Company."

At that moment, the situation of the regiment was such, that by no fault of any one connected with it, but through the improper interference of a blundering staff officer, a total stranger, it was broken into fragments, lost from each others' sight in the bushes, the left companies forming on one line, the right companies somewhere else, and the centre nowhere. The roar of battle in the immediate vicinity was deafening, nobody could be heard, nobody that was wanted could be seen, and, to make confusion worse confounded, a panic struck some of the troops of the second line who, fell back in disorder upon the Seventh whilst in the predicament above described, bewildered by conflicting orders and false movements.

In the midst of this scene the Colonel of the 14th Brooklyn, whose temporary staff officer had done the mischief, rode up to the Colonel of the Seventh, while in the act of repairing it, and used some hasty expressions, which were afterwards handsomely withdrawn when the facts were understood. In fact, the accident would have been avoided had the latter's suggestion been acted on and the captains of companies been notified of the precise movement to be made by inversion in the dense thicket.

The Rally on the Colors.

Fortunately for such an emergency, the Seventh had been specially drilled in getting mixed up and straightened out again. A simple "rally on the colors" brought order out of chaos, as if by magic. It was only needed to find the color company (Company C, Harford County, Captain Bouldin), face it square to the nearest racket, and a round of hearty cheers promptly attracted the broken files from either flank. The men fell into ranks by the instinct of habit, and the line was re-established in much less time than had been required to dislocate and scatter it. It was then an easy matter to adjust its alignment to that of the other regiments, which was done under the supervision of General Robinson.

Victory.

Meanwhile, an attack had been made upon the breastworks in the immediate front held by the other brigade of the division, and this attack had been repulsed. The troops of the second line had been rallied into position, and all was now steadiness and confidence where, but a few moments before, there was disorder fast verging upon wreck. The men were ordered to lie down (on account of shell), and all awaited the expected onslaught, whether its main fury should burst upon front or rear.

The storm, however, had reached its height and spent its energy; our brave allies of the second corps, driven from their first line of works, had rallied and retaken them, and, although repeatedly attacked, were not to be driven again. By five o'clock, the enemy was completely repulsed at all points on Hancock's front, with heavy loss.

Later in the evening, the Maryland brigade was thrown into the second line. Skirmishing, more or less heavy, continued until night fell, and, indeed, to some extent throughout the night.

The loss of the Seventh on this second day of the Wilderness was slight, there being but three men wounded, one from each of the three left companies.

Worn out with the long day's work, the men had scarcely settled for sleep when an order came to build a second line of works, fifty paces in rear of the first. The companies were divided into reliefs, and all night long the woods resounded with the music of axes, picks and spades, fires being allowed along the line. These two parallel lines of works are distinctly visible to this day.

Wilderness—Third Day.

Daylight came, but not the expected attack. The morning was occupied mainly in clearing brush and timber in front of the works thrown up during the night, in strengthening the position, and in burying the dead.

As the heat of the sun increased, the men began to spread their shelter tents, and to construct brush arbors. Here they slept awhile, waking up now and then as the skirmish firing came closer and hotter, suddenly swelling at times into a volume like that of a line of battle, and then subsiding to a scatter.

It is an interesting fact that fighting caused little interruption in the postal service, and mails were, with more or less regularity, collected and distributed on the battlefield. About 10 A. M. the brigade mail carrier collected letters from the different regimental headquarters. A hasty note from those of the Seventh said: "As I write, our skirmishers are engaged about 500 yards to the front, and heavy firing is heard on the right. My trust is in the mercy of God. If we are defeated, I have no wish to survive so immense a disaster. If we are victorious and I should fall, I shall be satisfied to have my memory associated with so glorious a triumph."

Later in the day the brigade was moved back to an edge of the clearing before mentioned, in the vicinity of a fine strong spring, where arms were stacked and beef slaughtered and distributed. The battle of the Wilderness had passed into history, as a "wild, weird struggle, where 200,000 men were mixed up, like a hole full of snakes, with their tales intertwined" (F. Lee's "Life of Lee"). In the quaint words of an old English ballad :

"They both did fight, they both did beat,
They both did run away;
They both quick marched,—again to meet,
The quite contrary way."

The Famous Night March.

Soon after eight o'clock began the historic forced night march to turn Lee's right. The movement was by the left flank, fifth corps leading; Robinson's division and Maryland brigade in advance, which was thus the leading infantry brigade of the army.

At first, nobody knew whether it was advance or retreat. Soon, the apparent direction, jubilant spirit and extreme rapidity of the movement gave currency to the flattering rumor that Lee's whole army was in full retreat, and that Grant was after him, hot foot. The double lines of Hancock's Corps, through which we were being rushed, rapturously cheered our advance as conclusive proof, and their cheers, in turn, confirmed our confidence.

The first halt was to throw out flankers on the right, when, after an hour or more of hard marching, the long lines of works were at last cleared. Plunging into the mysterious gloom of a deep cut and washed out road, men occasionally tumbled into rocky furrows, or stumbled over carcasses. At intervals, darkness would be made visible on the right by a blazing brand dropping from some distant tree-trunk, still aglow in the depth of the Wilderness, like a signal-light of goblins. The low, damp air, reeked with the pungent, acrid snuff of horse and human slaughter.

Combat with Fitz Lee.

Shortly before daylight (Sunday, 8th of May, 1864), the head of column emerged into the open country around Todd's Tavern, where a cavalry division was found, and a halt was ordered. No sooner were arms stacked than the men dropped, falling asleep directly they touched ground. Before, however, they had fairly stretched themselves, they had to be punched, kicked and shaken up to learn that more fighting was in order, before either lodging or breakfast. The crack-crack of carbines, reverberating in the forest glades ahead, closed up yawning jaws and put snap into numb legs.

Merritt's cavalry division, on the road to Spotsylvania Court House, was meeting a serious obstacle in Fitzhugh Lee, and, after considerable dismounted fighting, got out of the way of the infantry, which had been annoyed by the shifting movements of the led horses. The Maryland brigade was then deployed on both sides of the road, the Fourth on the skirmish line. Successive barricades of felled timber across the road were struck and carried, the enemy making a stand at each obstruction. In the language of the Confederate courier who bore the verbal message from Stuart to Fitz Lee, informing him of the march of Anderson's Corps to his relief and "urging him to hold out to the last at any sacrifice," it was of the "last importance that Fitz Lee should delay the advancing column and cover the position at Spotsylvania Court House as long as possible. His division of cavalry encountered the head of the Federal column of infantry near Todd's Tavern, about four miles from the Court House, and, dismounting his men and fighting with carbines, fell slowly and stubbornly back. The fighting was dreadfully severe, and many of the flower of Virginia's youth went down before the terrific volleys of the Federal infantry." The same writer then gives a spirited account of the reckless daring with which the horse artillery was handled by Major Breathed in covering the retreat, to which he attributes great importance in retarding the advance of the Maryland brigade, which led the Federal column, until the arrival of Anderson's Corps. (In Memoriam.—Major James Breathed, No. 3.)

Substantially the same account of this action is given by Stuart's chief of staff, who calls it "one of the severest conflicts in which Fitz Lee's division was ever engaged." (McClellan's "Campaigns of Stuart's Cavalry," 407.)

While this was the way the affair looked to the cavalry, their infantry opponents, whose loss was trifling, took it much less seriously. In fact, compared with what was to immediately follow, it seemed to them more like a pic-nic.

Parallel March of Anderson's Corps.

All this time nothing whatever was known of the parallel and unobstructed march upon an inside track of Anderson's (late Longstreet's) Corps for the same objective point. Nothing of it appears to have been learned by the Union cavalry, although the routes pursued by the opposing forces were but one or two miles apart. Meade and Sheridan had some hot words over it later on, each holding the other responsible. (Personal Memoirs of P. H. Sheridan, Vol. I, p. 367.)

Lee's whole army in full retreat to Richmond! Nothing in front but a rear guard of cavalry and horse artillery trying to cover his retreat! Whereat, there was extreme elation. Foot-sore, famished, jaded as the men were, on that theory they felt as if they could have kept on to Richmond, if necessary. Unhappily, that was not the situation, but quite otherwise.

General Stuart's Compliments.

While about three miles of stubbornly contested ground were being thus wrested from Fitz Lee's cavalry, another force, under Stuart in person, was engaged in throwing up a hasty but sufficient line of timber defenses, and Anderson's leading division, under Kershaw, was taking position behind them, with artillery somewhat advanced on his right, to enfilade an attacking column. Here Stuart remained to witness the expected assault. (Southern Hist. Soc. Papers, March, 1879; 67 War Records, 1036-1056.)

These important works commanded the fork of the Brock Road, one branch leading to Spotsylvania Court House, one and a-half miles southeast, and the other leading to the old Court House, about two miles south, the Block House being about half way. Both roads directly or indirectly pointed to Richmond. Since the war, a small settlement has made its appearance at the fork, with a postoffice, called "Sunlight."

General Warren's Speech.

Reaching the high clearing about Alsop's farm, Warren saw this line of works in a skirt of woods along the ridge of Laurel Hill, and energetically addressed his troops as they came up. While the Seventh was passing his white horse, he was heard to exclaim, with an impulsive gesture, at each sharp, crisp sentence: "Never mind cannon! Never mind bullets! Press on and clear this road. It's the only way to get your rations."

Formation for Assault.

Robinson's three brigades were promptly formed in three parallel columns of attack, column by regiment, the Seventh, as usual, doubled by wing, and in rear of the Eighth and the battalion of the First. The Fourth made the charge with another brigade to left. The Maryland brigade formed on the right of the division, near the spot where General Sedgwick fell the following day, indicated now by the Sedgwick monument. A battery took position on the right of the Maryland brigade and opened fire, but was not allowed time to get the range, and made no impression upon the works, which could have been easily breached by a few well-directed shell.

The formation was in an edge of timber, about four hundred yards from the works, the intervening space being an undulating, open field. These works on Spotsylvania Ridge, otherwise Laurel Hill, are still to be seen, in fair preservation, together with the epaulement for the advanced battery on the Block House road, to their right.

At first, the men generally failed to take in the gravity of the situation. Their senses were simply stupefied by sleepless overwork. They had been temporarily braced up by the intoxicating excitement of combat and pursuit, but, when massed in close column, they acted as if they supposed the next order would be to stack arms and rest, preparatory to throwing up entrenchments, as in the days of McClellan and Meade.

First Assault at Spotsylvania, or Battle of Laurel Hill.

Instead of that, came the startling command : "Battalions Forward ! Guide Center!" The men responded with a hearty cheer and at the word "March !" stepped off with life, with no music but that of their own voices. There were ringing yells of defiance from the works as the enemy's picket line drew in. Most of the field and staff hastily dismounted as the movement began, and left their horses behind. General Robinson led his division; that is, he rode abreast of the front rank of the Maryland brigade on its right, followed by Colonel Denison, also mounted.

The enemy opened with shell, followed by canister and then double canister, from the cross-fire guns on their right. Kershaw's veterans, behind the works, lost no time in proceeding to business. Their fire increased in intensity as the attack advanced. In addition to the advantage of position, they were in better shape physically than their assailants. It is true they also had made a hard night march, but it was a peaceable one, and the delay interposed by Fitz Lee, as already stated, had enabled them not only to get in ahead, but had given them margin enough for what breakfast they had and a good rest, while the jaded Federals were expending what little energy they had left in more marching and fighting. They had even found their breast works ready made for them. The shooting, however, of the defendants was not as good as might have been expected under the circumstances. The best shots had been carefully picked out for the battalions of sharpshooters attached to Kershaw's division. The sharpshooters had done extra work all night in flanking the exposed left of Anderson's column, and were late in reaching the battle-ground. Still, it must be admitted that the shooting, although not ideal, was good enough practically, and the other side have no right to complain. Had those sharpshooters been present, it is probable that this particular narrative would not have appeared. (Kershaw's Chief of Staff, Col. E. L. Costin.)

There was, of course, no skirmish line in advance of the assaulting columns, as has been erroneously stated. (Humphrey's Va. Campaign, 60, an incorrect account from a very high authority.) The men had not been required to remove caps from the nipples of their pieces, no caution against firing had been given.

Naturally enough, the front rank was goaded into a return fire; individual progress was as naturally retarded by the act of aiming and reloading; men from the rear pressed impatiently forward to repeat the process. In this way, ranks and regiments soon became intermingled, straggling was made easy, the time of exposure was fatally prolonged. The Seventh, which was in the rear when the movement commenced, soon found itself working up to the front, but in a rather mixed condition. The rattle and crash were such that no commands could be heard, and this mischievous return fire, which was helping that of the enemy to destroy the impetus and solidity of the charge, could not be stopped.

Fall of Commanders.

At the distance of about fifty yards from the works General Robinson was shot from his horse and borne from the field, with the loss of a leg. Many years after, in 1895, he received a "medal of honor" from the War Department for conspicuous gallantry on this occasion.

Colonel Denison, commanding the Maryland brigade, was about the same time shot from his horse, and assisted to the rear with the loss of his right arm. He was brevetted Brigadier for this action, was again wounded later in the campaign, and brevetted Major-General.

A Forlorn Hope.

Upon the fall of these two ranking officers, the command of the division, or what there was of it in sight (the two left brigades having been repulsed or mingled with the Maryland brigade), was promptly assumed by the Colonel of the Seventh Maryland. The situation, at that moment, was very plainly that of a forlorn hope, calling for nothing but quick and reckless work. What remained of the movement was no longer a column, but a bunched and ragged line. At points where the enemy's fire was most concentrated, the drone of bullets blended into a throbbing wail, like that of a sonorous telegraph wire pulsing in a strong wind, punctuated by the pert zip of the closer shots. The din and racket were such that but few could have heard the commands: "Hold your fire! Double quick!" What was plainly seen in front, was the sudden appearance of the new commander, pointing with sabre to the breastworks, and trotting up towards them, until horse and rider came down. Following closely, was Captain Anderson, of the Seventh, and when he fell, or possibly before he fell, all was over.

The unordered retreat left these two officers lying within ten paces of the works, Anderson having stopped three bullets while taking a step forward, just after an unsuccessful attempt to extricate Phelps from the weight of his dying horse. Anderson was well in the lead of everything when he fell, and for his conspicuous gallantry on this occasion, and in the Wilderness, was subsequently brevetted up to lieutenant-colonel. He commanded one of the Washington County companies (Co. I).

Capture and Rescue.

After two hopeless attempts at escape, in one of which he was severely wounded and in the other waylaid and robbed by stragglers, Phelps was taken back to a Confederate field hospital, where he had not only proper but exceptional treatment, and the next day was recaptured, together with over three hundred Union prisoners, by Sheridan's cavalry at Beaver Dam Station. He was present at the battle of Yellow Tavern where General Stuart was mortally wounded, and at the battles of Meadow Bridge and Mechanicsville, where the enemy, commanded by Bragg and under the eye of the Southern President, Jeff. Davis, made a desperate fight for the defense of Richmond. Returning to Baltimore by the James River route, he was honorably discharged in September, 1864, upon resignation and surgeon's certificate of disability, brevetted Brigadier-General, and elected to Congress. Among the prisoners recaptured as above were Lieutenant Lightner of Company F (Carroll County) and Sergeant Walton of Company K (Baltimore City).

Losses.

The loss of the Maryland brigade in this action was one hundred and ninety-two killed, wounded and missing. Its present effective was about one thousand and fifty; but of this number, the Fourth Maryland, as before stated, made the charge with another brigade, and company D of the Seventh was detached in support of a battery. The actual charge was made by about seven hundred men.

The loss of the Seventh was ten killed, two officers and thirty-seven men wounded, and six prisoners. Among the killed was the brave color sergeant, George Stockham, of Harford County, and two color corporals, Solomon Rohrer of Co. I, and S. M. Dick of Co. H. Two color corporals were wounded, but the colors were saved.

From first to last, the enemy's fire appeared to be mainly concentrated upon the mounted officers and color bearers; of these, not one escaped.

Assault Renewed.

Griffin's division came up shortly after Robinson's, and went in on his right. Their attack was repulsed with even greater loss. One regiment in particular, the gallant Eighty-third Pennsylvania, which had several men bayoneted inside the works, actually lost fifty-seven in killed and mortally wounded alone.

Crawford's division, coming up after Griffin, had, at first, more success on the left, driving the enemy (Humphrey's brigade) for some distance and taking many prisoners.

It was this temporary success which encouraged Colonel Phelps, at that time wounded and under guard to the rear, to make the last of those attempts at escape, before mentioned. But Humphrey, being reinforced by Ramseur, regained the lost ground and drove back the Pennsylvania Reserves (Crawford's division) to the main line, which was speedily entrenched.

Practical Suggestions.

Such was the first assault upon the enemy's works at Spotsylvania, 8th of May, 1864, sometimes called the battle of Laurel Hill. It was the first of a long series, almost uniformly with similar result, well illustrating the cardinal maxim of war, "Never do exactly what your enemy wants."

It is questionable whether, with the modern improved fire-arms, any such assault will be ever again attempted. If it should be, the following principles of common sense are suggested by the practical experience above mentioned:

1. The supreme effort should not be exacted of men in bad physical condition, when such condition is one of extremity.
2. The works should be breached in places by artillery before the infantry attack.
3. No dismounting of individual officers should be allowed, unless in the discretion of the general it is proper for all to dismount, which will probably be the case hereafter.
4. The men should be told beforehand exactly what is expected of them, and how many minutes they will be exposed, provided they keep moving and hold their fire. They should be especially cautioned that the delay of aiming and firing only increases the risk, and should be encouraged to hope that great celerity of movement, the exhibition of bayonets fixed, and a bold front, may demoralize the enemy, cause him to shoot high, and in all ways diminish their own risk.
5. The standing order against quitting the ranks to help wounded off the field should, in all such cases, be strictly and literally enforced by a provost guard conspicuously present, supplemented by an ambulance corps known to be at hand, and known to be adequate.
6. If such conditions cannot be had, any officer who orders an attack in front, upon steady troops behind cover, should be held strictly responsible for the resulting disaster, and should not be allowed to throw the blame upon his men.

7. The movement, if undertaken, should be personally and closely watched by the general who ordered it, and his staff, and praiseworthy efforts of individuals should be noticed and suitably acknowledged.

8. Any color sergeant who does his duty and survives should be made a commissioned officer at once. In fact, such should be the understood rule as to every engagement where the casualties amount to ten per cent. or over.

Subsequent History.

The several actions which have thus been partially and imperfectly described, from the fifth to the eighth of May, 1864, inclusive, were typical of the whole Virginia campaign of 1864 and 1865, during which the Seventh Maryland shared the fortunes and losses of the Maryland brigade—a story already sufficiently told by Camper and Kirkley, in their "Historical Record of the First Maryland Veteran Infantry."

To this it is only necessary to add that the command of the Seventh Regiment devolved upon Major Mobley, until the return of Lieutenant-Colonel Bennett, upon his recovery from his wound in July, 1864. Colonel Bennett was again wounded in action, April 1, 1865, at the battle of Five Forks, and thereupon Major Mobley continued in command until the muster out; was wounded at Weldon Railroad, 18th of August, 1864, and was brevetted Colonel "for faithful and gallant service." The strength of the regiment having been reduced below the regulation standard, the vacant colonelcy was never filled.

The story of this long and bloody campaign is one of constant marching and fighting, and yet there is hardly an important event of all those later experiences which does not find its counterpart in some incident of the battles in the Wilderness, the forced night march out of it, the protracted combat with retreating cavalry, or the assault upon the works at Spotsylvania.

Dark days of disaster were relieved by occasional flashes of victory, as at the battle of Weldon Railroad on 21st of August, 1864, and of Five Forks, on the 1st of April, 1865. And finally, with many sad memories of fallen comrades, the few fortunate survivors had the proud satisfaction of participating in the crowning glory of Appomattox.

Whatever well-meant but costly mistakes may have swelled the "butcher's bill" of this sanguinary campaign, they were all eclipsed by the dazzling surrender of Lee, and the peerless magnanimity of Grant, that did him even greater honor than his magnificent success.

There can be claimed for the Seventh Maryland one distinction, that although accidental, is unique. It so happened that this regiment was to furnish the last man wounded in the Army of the Potomac. His name is Robert N. Weller, Corporal, Company E (Frederick County). He was struck by a piece of shell, fired by the First North Carolina battery, on the 9th of April, 1865, just before the surrender, at Appomattox Court House, Virginia. (C. and K., 1st Md. Infantry, p. 203.)

This incident will recall to mind that the first blood to be shed in the Civil War was that of Maryland, mingled with the blood of Massachusetts, in the streets of Baltimore, on the 19th of April, 1861; and that the last blood spilled in the Revolution was that of an officer of the Maryland Line, Captain William Wilmot, killed in a skirmish on John's Island, S. C., November 14, 1782.

The casualties in the Seventh Regiment were as follows: Killed in battle, one (1) commissioned officer and seventy-eight (78) enlisted men—total, seventy-nine (79); died of disease, etc., one (1) commissioned officer and one hundred and nine (109) enlisted men—total, one hundred and ten (110); or an aggregate death list of one hundred and eighty-nine (189).

The marches of the Seventh Regiment aggregated 1137 miles, and it was transported by rail 803 miles, a total distance of 1940 miles.

The Seventh Regiment took part in the following engagements, etc.: Skirmish at Funkstown, Md., July 12, 1863; skirmish at Haymarket, Va., October 19, 1863; reconnaissance from Culpeper to Raccoon Ford, Va., February 6 and 7, 1864; battle of the Wilderness, Va., May 5 to 7, 1864; skirmish with cavalry and battle of Laurel Hill, Va., May 8, 1864; battle of Spotsylvania, Va., May 9 to 20, 1864; battle of Harris' Farm, Va., May 19, 1864; battle of North Anna, Va., May 23 to 27, 1864; battle of Shady Grove, Va., May 30, 1864; Bethesda Church, Va., May 31 to June 1, 1864; Cold Harbor, Va., June 2 to 5, 1864; assault on Petersburg, Va., 1864-'65; Weldon Railroad, Va., August 18 to 21, 1864; Poplar Spring Church, Va., September 30, 1864; Chapel House, Va., October 1 to 3, 1864; Peebles Farm, Va., October 7 to 8, 1864; Hatchers Run, Va., October 27, 1864; raid to Hicksford, Va., December 7 to 12, 1864; Dabneys Mill, Va., February 6, 1865; White Oak Road, Va., March 31, 1865; Five Forks, Va., April 1, 1865; Surrender at Appomattox, Va., April 9, 1865.

EIGHTH REGIMENT INFANTRY.

regiment (with the exception of Companies H, I and K) was organized at Baltimore, Md., from August, 1862, to April, 1863, to serve three years. This regiment, as originally constituted, consisted of seven companies, of which Company A was recruited in Cecil County; Companies B, C, D, F and G were recruited in Baltimore City, and Company E in Frederick County, to serve for three years. Companies H, I and K were composed of nine months' drafted men and substitutes. They were mustered in from December, 1862, to April, 1863, and were mustered out as their terms of service expired.

The veterans and recruits of Companies B and C, Purnell Cavalry (dismounted), were transferred to the regiment November 17th, 1864, and became Companies H and I of the Eighth Regiment of Infantry.

Andrew W. Denison, who had been prominently connected with the "Baltimore City Guard Battalion," of Baltimore City, prior to the Civil War (one of the crack military organizations of Baltimore), was commissioned the Colonel of the regiment, and, through his untiring efforts, the regiment was speedily drilled and disciplined and prepared for active field service, and was soon made conspicuous for its efficiency and esprit de corps.

The regiment became a part of the famous Maryland Brigade, and, in the early part of September, 1862, when General Robert E. Lee's Confederate Army of Northern Virginia invaded Maryland and made a demonstration in the direction of Baltimore, the Eighth Regiment, with the Maryland Brigade, were called upon to repel the invaders.

On the 18th day of September, 1862, this regiment, with the Maryland Brigade, took the field with the Army of the Potomac, then on the banks of the Potomac, in Western Maryland, and rendered valuable service.

The regiment, with the Maryland Brigade, was attached to the 8th Army Corps March 27, 1863, and known as 1st Brigade, 1st Division, 8th Army Corps, and remained with the Corps until July 11, 1863, when they were assigned with this Brigade to the 1st Army Corps, and known as the 3d Brigade, 3d Division, 1st Army Corps.

In January, 1864, the Maryland Brigade became the 2d Brigade, 3d Division, 1st Army Corps.

On March 23, 1864, the Maryland Brigade became the 3d Brigade, 2d Division, 5th Army Corps.

On June 6, 1864, the Maryland Brigade became the 2d Brigade, 2d Division, 5th Army Corps, until the expiration of the close of the war.

On the 3d of April, 1863, the 8th Regiment was sent to West Virginia to assist in repulsing a raiding party of the enemy in that section; the opportune arrival of the 8th Regiment and other reinforcements at Clarksburg, West Virginia, caused the enemy to retire. After a brief campaign in the mountain section of West Virginia, the 8th Regiment returned to Bolivar Heights, Va., opposite Maryland Heights, May 27, 1863.

The 8th Regiment, with the Maryland Brigade, became temporarily a part of General French's Division, held as a reserve to the Army of the Potomac and to protect and cover the approaches to Washington, as well as to keep up the communications with that army and the capitol of the nation during the Gettysburg campaign in June and July, 1863.

After the battle of Gettysburg the 8th Regiment and the Maryland Brigade became a part of the Army of the Potomac, and returned to Virginia with that army.

Whilst on the Upper Potomac the 8th Regiment participated in skirmishes at Maryland Heights, July 7, 1863, and Funkstown, Md., July 12, 1863.

The 8th Regiment, with the Maryland Brigade, participated with the Army of the Potomac, under General Meade, in the campaign incident to the movements of the Army of the Potomac during the fall and winter of 1863-64. After General Grant assumed the immediate direction of the Army of the Potomac, still under the command of General Meade, and inaugurated the campaign in the Wilderness of Virginia, May, 1864, the 8th Regiment of Infantry, with the Maryland Brigade, then under the command of Colonel Denison, of the 8th Regiment, took its place in line of battle on the 5th day of May, 1864.

The 8th Regiment, with the Maryland Brigade, participated in the almost continuous battle and flank movements on the 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th days of May, 1864, and whilst gallantly charging the enemy at Laurel Hill, near Spottsylvania Courthouse, on the 8th day of May, 1864, the gallant Colonel Denison, of the 8th Regiment, was wounded and stricken down at the head of his command, losing his right arm. The command of the 8th Regiment then devolved upon Lieutenant-Colonel E. F. M. Faetz, temporarily, until the recovery of Colonel Denison.

The regiment continued the advance with the Army of the Potomac, and was engaged in all of the battles, marches, sieges and raids incident to the campaign of the Army of the Potomac that finally culminated at the surrender of General Robert E. Lee's Army at Appomattox, Va., April 9, 1865.

After the surrender of Lee's Army the 8th Regiment, with the Maryland Brigade, returned to Washington and took part in the grand review of the Army of the Potomac before the President of the United States.

The 8th Regiment was mustered out of the military service of the United States May 31, 1865, at Arlington Heights, Va.; thence, with the Maryland Brigade, it returned to Baltimore and was received with high honors by the Governor of Maryland, the Mayor of Baltimore and a large concourse of people.

During its military service the 8th Regiment of Infantry marched one thousand one hundred and seventy (1170) miles, and travelled six hundred and four (604) miles by rail—an aggregate of one thousand seven hundred and seventy-four (1774) miles.

The death casualties in the 8th Regiment of Infantry were as follows: Killed, three (3) commissioned officers and fifty-four (54) enlisted men—total, fifty-seven (57); died of wounds, disease, etc., seventy (70) enlisted men, or an aggregate death list of one hundred and twenty-seven (127). Over two hundred and fifty (250) men of this command were wounded at divers times in the severe battles in which this regiment was engaged.

The 8th Regiment participated in the following engagements, viz.: Skirmish at Maryland Heights, July 7, 1863; skirmish at Funkstown, Md., July 12, 1863; battle of the Wilderness, Va., May 5 to 7, 1864; battle of Spottsylvania, Va., May 8-20, 1864; battle of Harris' Farm, Va., May 19, 1864; battle of North Anna, Va., May 23-27, 1864; battle of Shady Grove, Va., May 30, 1864; battle of Bethesda Church, Va., May 31 and June 1, 1864; battle of Cold Harbor, Va., June 2-5, 1864; assault on Petersburg, Va., June 17-18, 1864; siege of Petersburg, Va., 1864-65; battle of Weldon Railroad, Va., August 18-21, 1864; battle of Poplar Springs Church, Va., September 30, 1864; battle of Chapel House, Va., October 1-3, 1864; battle of Peeble's Farm, Va., October 7, 1864; battle of Hatcher's Run, Va., October 27, 1864; raid to Hicksford, Va., December 7-12, 1864; battle of Dabney's Mill, Va., February 6, 1865; battle of White Oak Road, Va., March 31, 1865; battle of Five Forks, Va., April 1, 1865; surrender at Appomattox, Va., April 9, 1865.

NINTH REGIMENT INFANTRY.

THE Ninth Regiment of Infantry was organized at Baltimore, Md., in June and July, 1863, to serve for a period of six months, in accordance with the proclamation of the President of the United States, dated June 15, 1863, calling for additional troops to repel the Confederate Armies then invading Maryland and Pennsylvania. All of the companies were recruited in Baltimore City, excepting Company I, which was raised in Baltimore County.

This regiment consisted of nine companies.

On the 6th day of July, 1863, before its organization was completed, the 9th Regiment left Baltimore with instructions to join the Union Army, then operating in Western Maryland. It was assigned to General French's Division and took part in the movement that drove the enemy from Maryland Heights.

The 9th Regiment subsequently crossed the Potomac River at Harper's Ferry, and occupied Loudon Heights, Va.

Subsequently Company B was stationed at Duffield, and Company C at Brown Crossing, to protect the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. Company B was then ordered to Harper's Ferry, Va., and performed provost duty, being relieved by Company A.

About the middle of August, 1863, Companies D, E, F, G, H and I were ordered to occupy Charlestown, Va., and remained thereat until October 18, 1863, when they were attacked by the enemy, under General Imboden, with a brigade of mounted infantry, with Major Harry Gilmer's Battalion of Maryland Cavalry (Confederate) and a battery of artillery.

The regiment made a gallant stand, but were speedily surrounded by an overwhelming force and captured.

Of the number captured not more than one-half ever returned to their homes, but perished by reason of the hardships and privations experienced in Southern prisons.

Companies A, B and C continued on duty in Virginia until the expiration of their term of service, when they proceeded to Baltimore and were duly mustered out of the military service February 24, 1864.

The 9th Regiment incurred death casualties as follows, viz.: Killed in battle, two (2) enlisted men; died of wounds, disease, etc., one hundred and twenty-four (124) men; or a total death list of one hundred and twenty-six (126) men.

TENTH REGIMENT INFANTRY.

THE Tenth Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized at Baltimore, Md., during the months of June and July, 1863, to serve six months under the President's proclamation of June 15th, 1863.

The 10th Regiment was sent to Harper's Ferry, Va., shortly after its organization, and utilized in the performance of duty relating to guarding the lines of communication on the Upper Potomac. On the 18th day of October, 1863, the 10th Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, with the 34th Massachusetts Infantry, Minor's Indiana Battery of Light Artillery and Cole's Battalion of Maryland Cavalry attacked and drove out of Charlestown, Va., the Confederate Brigade of Imboden's Confederate Mounted Infantry, Artillery and Cavalry, who had captured the 9th Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.

The attack and pursuit continued all day and only closed at nightfall.

The death casualties in this regiment were as follows, viz.: Died of disease, etc., twenty-two enlisted men.

The regiment was mustered out of the military service of the United States on the 29th day of January, 1864, by reason of expiration of term of service.

ELEVENTH REGIMENT INFANTRY.

THE Eleventh Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized at Baltimore, Md., June 16, 1864, to serve one hundred days. They were really emergency men, called into the military service of the United States at the special request of the Secretary of War, under special agreement by the President of the United States with the Governors of the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Maryland, for the purpose of relieving certain troops in garrison, to enable them to at once proceed to the front.

The 11th Regiment of Infantry proceeded to Monocacy Junction, Md., on the 1st day of July, 1864, where, on the 9th day of July, 1864, it took part in the battle of Monocacy with the troops under General Wallace, who was compelled to fight an overwhelming force of the enemy in order to gain time for reinforcements from the Army of the Potomac, to reach Washington and save the Capitol of the Nation from capture by the enemy then invading Maryland.

After the battle of Monocacy the 11th Regiment of Infantry performed guard duty at Monrovia and Mt. Airey until October 1, 1864, when it was mustered out of the military service of the United States by reason of the expiration of its term of enlistment.

The 11th Regiment of Infantry, one year's men, were composed, in part, of the 11th Regiment of Infantry, one hundred days' men, who re-enlisted for one year just prior to the expiration of the term of their original enlistment.

These re-enlisted men constituted three companies, namely, Companies A, B and C, and were, in January, 1865, consolidated with seven companies of the 1st Eastern Shore Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, making the regimental organization complete again.

Company C was then assigned to duty at the Relay House on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, Company I in Baltimore City, and the balance of the regiment was sent to perform garrison duty at Fort Delaware.

The 11th Regiment of Infantry, as then constituted, was mustered out of service at Baltimore, Md., June 15, 1865. All members whose term of service expired subsequent to October 1, 1865, were transferred to the 2d Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.

The casualties in the 11th Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, both one hundred days' and one year men, were as follows, viz.: Died of wounds, disease, etc., twenty-nine enlisted men.

TWELFTH REGIMENT INFANTRY.

HE Twelfth Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized at Baltimore, Md., July 30, 1864, to serve for one hundred days as emergency men, and really consisted of a Battalion of five companies, viz.: Companies A, B, C, D and E.

The 12th Regiment of Infantry, during its brief term of service, was assigned to guard duty along the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad between Baltimore, Md., and Kearneysville, Va.

The 12th Regiment of Infantry was mustered out of the military service of the United States at Baltimore, Md., November 14, 1864, by reason of expiration of term of service. A number of the men of the 12th Regiment who re-enlisted for one year prior to the muster-out of the regiment were assigned to the 1st Eastern Shore Regiment of Infantry Maryland Volunteers.

The casualties from death in the 12th Regiment of Infantry were as follows, viz.: Died of disease, two enlisted men.

PURNELL LEGION.

E Purnell Legion Maryland, Volunteers, consisting of nine companies of infantry, two companies of cavalry, and two batteries of light artillery were recruited under the auspices of the Hon. William H. Purnell, Postmaster at Baltimore, Md., at Pikesville Arsenal, near Baltimore, between October 31, 1861, and December 31, 1861. The Legion was raised, under special authority of the Secretary of War, to serve three years.

Upon the resignation of Colonel William H. Purnell, in February, 1862, the Legion organization was discontinued and the different arms of the service—infantry, cavalry and artillery—were made independent of each other.

PURNELL LEGION REGIMENT INFANTRY.

The Purnell Legion Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized at Pikesville, near Baltimore City, Md., between October 31, 1861, and December 31, 1861, to serve three years. The command consisted of nine companies, of which A, B, C, H and K were recruited in Baltimore City, Company E in Cecil County, Company F in Baltimore County, Companies D and G in Somerset and Worcester Counties.

The command, after being drilled and disciplined and prepared for field duty, was assigned to Dix's Division, Army of the Potomac, to March, 1862, and then assigned to the Middle Department, 8th Army Corps, until May 25, 1862. The command formed a part of General Lockwood's Brigade that drove out all armed bands of the enemy from the Eastern Shore of Virginia.

At the time that General Banks' Division was driven out of the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia in May, 1862, the command was sent hurriedly to Harper's Ferry, Va., where, with other troops, they succeeded in preventing the further advance of the enemy.

The command was then assigned to the 2d Division, 2d Army Corps, Army of Virginia, and, under General Pope, participated in his campaigns in Northern Virginia in the summer of 1862. The command distinguished itself in the battle at Catlett's Station, Va., August 22, 1862.

The command was then assigned to the 3d Brigade, 2d Division, 12th Army Corps, until October, 1862, and, with that Army Corps of the Army of the Potomac, participated in the battle of Antietam, Md., September, 1862.

After the battle of Antietam the command was assigned to the 2d Brigade, 2d Division, 12th Army Corps, until December, 1862, when the command was again assigned to the Middle Department, 8th Army Corps, until May 26, 1864, and performed duty in that department until assigned to the 2d Brigade, 2d Division, 5th Army Corps, when, with this Army Corps, it participated in all the severe battles, marches and hardships incident to the movements of Grant's Army until October 24, 1864, when, upon the expiration of their term of enlistment, the original members, except veterans, were mustered out of service, the veterans and recruits being transferred to and consolidated with the 1st Maryland Infantry, Veteran Volunteers.

The command, during its term of service, marched eight hundred and eleven (811) miles, travelled three hundred and sixteen (316) miles by railroad, and six hundred and fifty-three (653) miles by boat—an aggregate of one thousand seven hundred and eighty (1780) miles.

The command participated in the following engagements and battles, viz.: Harper's Ferry, Va., May 29-30, 1862; Antietam, Md., September 17, 1862; Harper's Ferry, Va., July 27, 1863; Shady Grove, Va., May 30, 1864; Bethesda Church, May 31 and June 1, 1864; Cold Harbor, Va., June 2-5, 1864; assault on Petersburg, Va., June 18, 1864; siege of Petersburg, Va., June 19, October 24, 1864; Weldon Railroad, August 18-21, 1864; Poplar Springs Church, Va., September 30, 1864; Chapel House, Va., October 1-3, 1864; Peeble's Farm, Va., October 7-8, 1864.

The casualties in the command were as follows, viz.: Killed in battle, died of wounds, etc., one commissioned officer and forty-two enlisted men. Died of disease, etc., one commissioned officer and seventy-three enlisted men; or a total death list of one hundred and seventeen.

POTOMAC HOME BRIGADE INFANTRY.

THE First Regiment Infantry, Potomac Home Brigade, Maryland Volunteers, was organized at Frederick City, Maryland, from August 15 to December 13, 1861, to serve three years. Companies A, B, D and I were recruited in Frederick County; Company C in Baltimore City; Companies E, F and H in Washington County; Company G in Baltimore, Carroll and Frederick Counties; Company K in Baltimore City and Frederick County.

The 1st Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry was assigned to General Banks' Division, which was encamped in the vicinity of Frederick City, Maryland, during the fall and winter of 1861-62.

In the spring of 1862 the 1st Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry marched, with General Banks' Division, up the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia as far as Winchester, Virginia, but were subsequently assigned to the protection of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in Maryland and Virginia. When General Banks' Division was driven out of the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia in May, 1862, the 1st Regiment Infantry, Potomac Home Brigade, was concentrated at Harper's Ferry, Va., to help protect that point from capture.

On the 27th day of May, 1862, a detachment of the regiment had a skirmish with the enemy whilst on a reconnoissance on Loudon Heights, Virginia.

After the Federal troops again advanced up the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, the 1st Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry again resumed the duty assigned them of protecting the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

After the defeat of General Pope's Army in Northern Virginia and the advance of General Lee's Army to the Potomac, the 1st Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry gallantly opposed the passage of the Potomac river at the fords on the Potomac, near the mouth of the Monocacy.

The regiment was concentrated at Sandy Hook and marched thence to Harper's Ferry, Va., where it took part in the defense of that point and was surrendered, with the garrison, September 15, 1862.

The regiment having been paroled, marched to Annapolis, Maryland, and, when exchanged, was subsequently assigned to duty on the Potomac in Southern Maryland.

During the Gettysburg campaign, the 1st Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry was assigned to General Lockwood's Brigade and the 12th Army Corps.

During the second day's fight at Gettysburg, July 2, 1863, it not only took part in the battle on the right of the line at Culp's Hill, but was speedily transferred to that part of the line where General Sickles' 3d Army Corps of the Army of the Potomac had met with such a bloody repulse, and with ringing cheers, led by General Meade in person, aided in the final repulse of General Longstreet's Corps.

Returning to the right of the line, they found their rifle pits on the 3d of July, 1863, in the hands of the enemy, from which they were driven after a severe fight. The 1st Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry found themselves pitted against the 1st Maryland Infantry (Confederate) as an incident of the battle on this part of the line.

The loss of the First Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry in this battle was severe.

After the battle of Gettysburg, the 1st Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry marched with the Army of the Potomac to the Potomac river, where they again resumed guard duty on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in Maryland and Virginia.

At the time of the invasion of Maryland by General Early's Confederate Army in July, 1864, the 1st Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry performed active and efficient service, and a portion of the regiment took a conspicuous part in the battle of Monocacy July 9, 1864.

Upon the expiration of the terms of service of the original men, they were mustered out of service from August to December, 1864, except the veterans and recruits. The command was recruited up to a full regiment of infantry and the designation changed to the 13th Regiment Infantry Maryland Volunteers, April 8, 1865.

The casualties in the 1st Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry were as follows, viz.: Killed in battle, three (3) commissioned officers and forty-two (42) enlisted men—total, forty-five (45). Died of disease, wounds, etc., one (1) commissioned officer and eighty-five (85) enlisted men; aggregate death list, one hundred and thirty-one (131).

The 1st Regiment of Infantry Potomac Home Brigade participated in the following engagements, viz.: Skirmish at Loudon Heights, Va., May 27, 1862; skirmish at Poolsville, Md., September 5, 1862; skirmish at Monocacy Aqueduct, September 4, 1862; action at Maryland Heights, September 13, 1862; defense of Harper's Ferry, Va., September 14-15, 1862; battle of Gettysburg, July 2-3, 1863; skirmish at Duffield Station, Va., June 29, 1864; battle of Monocacy, Md., July 9, 1864.

SECOND REGIMENT POTOMAC HOME BRIGADE INFANTRY.

THE Second Regiment of Infantry, Potomac Home Brigade, was organized at Cumberland, Maryland, from August 27, 1861, to October 31, 1861, to serve three years.

On the expiration of its term of service, the original members (except veterans) were mustered out and the veterans and recruits consolidated into a battalion of three companies, viz., companies A, B and C. A new company was organized in March, 1865, to serve one year, and assigned to this battalion as Company D.

The organization was mustered out of service May 29, 1865, in accordance with orders from the War Department.

Companies A, B, C, E, G, H, I and K were recruited in Allegany County, Company F at Hancock, Washington County, and Company D at Piedmont, Virginia, on the border land.

Immediately after the completion of the organization the regiment was assigned to duty in Western Virginia, in that part of the Army of West Virginia under General B. F. Kelly, and, for a brief time, under General F. W. Lander's command.

During the raid of General (Stonewall) Jackson's Confederate Army through Berkeley Springs to Hancock, Md., in January, 1862, and the subsequent movement of this Confederate Army to Romney, West Virginia, the 2d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry took a very active part, and had several severe skirmishes with the enemy. On September 17, 1862, the 2d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry had a skirmish with the enemy near Romney, West Virginia.

Company F of the 2d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade, Captain George D. Summers, had been mounted as cavalry and sent into the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia in the summer of 1863, where they rendered efficient service, more especially in a brisk skirmish at Berryville, Virginia, in June, 1863, with a portion of Rhodes' Division of Confederate Infantry, on their march to get to the rear of General Milroy's Division, then at Winchester, Virginia.

Subsequently this company was placed in a squadron under the temporary command of Captain George W. F. Vernon, of Company A, Cole's Battalion of Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers, and rendered valuable service during the Gettysburg campaign.

On October 7, 1863, Company F (Cavalry) of 2d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade had a skirmish with Gilmer's Battalion, Maryland Cavalry (Confederate), at Summit Point, where its gallant Captain, George D. Summer's was killed whilst leading his company in a cavalry charge.

The 2d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry rendered efficient service in Western Virginia, in the autumn and winter of 1863.

The 2d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry formed a part of the Army of General David Hunter, who advanced down the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia as far as Lynchburg, Va., on the James river, in June, 1864, after the arrival of reinforcements of Early's Confederate Army at Lynchburg and the retreat of the Army of Western Virginia. The 2d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry marched with that army, and when Early's Army was in turn driven back from Maryland to Virginia, the 2d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry formed a part of the Union Army in pursuit, and participated in the fight at Snicker's Gap, Va., July 18, 1864.

From thence the 2d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry marched to Western Virginia again, where the original men not re-enlisted as veterans were mustered out of service on the expiration of their terms of enlistment, in the autumn of 1864, and the battalion, composed of veterans and recruits, continued in the military service in the Department of West Virginia until the close of the war, and were mustered out of service May 29, 1865.

The 2d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry, with its Cavalry Company F, participated, either by detachments or as an organization, in the following engagements, viz.: Springfield, Va., August 23, 1861; Blue House, Va., August 26, 1861; South Branch Bridge, Md., October 23, 1861; Springfield, Va., October 26, 1861; South Branch Wire Bridge, October 26, 1861; Great Cacapon Bridge, Va., January 4, 1862; Vance's Ford, near Romney, Va., September 17, 1862; Charlestown, Va., May 15, 1863; Summit Point, Va., October 7, 1863; Charlestown, Va., October 18, 1863; Burlington, Va., November 16, 1863; Ridgeville, Va., January 4, 1864; Moorefield Junction, Va., January 8, 1864; Medley, Va., January 30, 1864; Lynchburg, Va., June 18, 1864; Salem, Va., June 21, 1864; South Branch Bridge, Va., July 4, 1864; Sir John's Run, Va., July 6, 1864; Snicker's Gap, Va., July 18, 1864; Martinsburg, Va., 1864; Back Creek Bridge, Va., 1864; Hancock, Md., 1864; Green Spring Run, Va., 1864.

The following death casualties were incurred by the 2d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, during the Civil War, viz.: Killed in battle, one (1) commissioned officer and nine (9) enlisted men—total, ten (10); died of disease, wounds, etc., eighty-four (84) enlisted men; or an aggregate death list of ninety-four (94).

THIRD REGIMENT POTOMAC HOME BRIGADE INFANTRY.

HE Third Regiment Infantry Potomac Home Brigade, with the exception of Companies I and K, was organized at Cumberland, Hagerstown and Baltimore, Maryland, from October 31, 1861, to May 20, 1862, to serve three years.

The two companies known as I and K were recruited at Elliott's Mills and Monrovia, Md., in April and May, 1864, to serve three years, and assigned to this regiment.

The original members (except veterans) were mustered out as their terms of service expired, and the organization, composed of veterans and recruits, retained in the service until May 29, 1865, when it was mustered out of the military service of the United States in accordance with orders from the War Department.

Companies A, B, C, D and H were recruited in Allegany County, Md., Company E at Hagerstown, Company F at Baltimore, and Company G in Frederick County; Company I in Howard County and Company K in Frederick County.

Soon after the organization of 1st Battalion of this regiment at Cumberland, they were assigned to duty on the upper Potomac, in Maryland and Virginia, serving in Lander's Division until March 11, 1862.

Then they were assigned to the Mountain Department until June 26, 1862. Whilst serving in this department the 3d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry were engaged with the enemy at Franklin and Wardensville, Va., in May, 1862, and at Moorefield, Va., in June, 1862.

The 3d Regiment of Potomac Home Brigade Infantry was transferred to the Middle Department in June, 1862, and on September 13, 1862, formed a part of the beleaguered garrison at Harper's Ferry, Va., and were actively engaged during all the fighting incident to the siege on the 13th, 14th and 15th days of September, 1862, both on Maryland Heights, Md., and Bolivar Heights, Va.

The 3d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry was surrendered with the garrison and paroled when duly exchanged. They were assigned to duty guarding the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

On the invasion of Maryland by General Early's Confederate Army in July, 1864, the 3d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry confronted their advance, and had a lively and gallant skirmish with the enemy to the west of Frederick City, Md., July 7th and 8th, 1864, and took a conspicuous part with General Lew Wallace's little army at the battle of Monocacy, July 9, 1864, where this small army was ordered to give battle to overwhelming force of the enemy, in order to enable reinforcements to reach and protect the Capitol at Washington.

After General Early's Army was driven out of Maryland, the 3d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry advanced with General Hunter's Army into Virginia, and took part in the engagement with the enemy at Snicker's Gap, Va., July 18, 1864.

The 3d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry then became a part of General Sheridan's Army of the Shenandoah, and participated in the engagements at Bolivar Heights, Halltown, Charlestown and Berryville, in August, 1864, after which the 3d Potomac Home Brigade Infantry were again assigned to the department of West Virginia, where they remained on duty until the close of the war and the muster out of the organization, May 29, 1865.

The 3d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry participated either by detachments or as a regiment in the following engagements, viz.: Franklin, Va., May 12, 1862; Wardensville, Va., May 29, 1862; Moorefield, Va., June 29, 1862; Harper's Ferry, Va., September 13, 14 and 15, 1862; Frederick, Md., July 7 and 8, 1864; battle of Monocacy, July 9, 1864; Snicker's Gap, July 18, 1864; Bolivar Heights, August 6, 1864; Halltown, Va., August 8, 1864; Charlestown, Va., August 9, 1864; Berryville, Va., August 13, 1864.

The death casualties in the 3d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry were as follows: Killed in battle, one (1) commissioned officer and eight (8) enlisted men—total, nine (9), died of disease, wounds, etc., one (1) commissioned officer and seventy-three (73) enlisted men; total, seventy-four (74), or an aggregate of eighty-three (83).

FOURTH REGIMENT POTOMAC HOME BRIGADE INFANTRY.

N attempt to raise the Fourth Regiment of Infantry for the Potomac Home Brigade was made in the winter of 1861-62, but after Companies A, B and C had been recruited for three years, no farther progress was made.

Company A was organized at Hagerstown, Company B at Baltimore, and Company C in Frederick County.

After the completion of these three companies, they were assigned to guard duty along the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, between Harper's Ferry and Martinsburg, Va., until August 11, 1862, when they were consolidated with the 3d Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.

FIRST REGIMENT, EASTERN SHORE INFANTRY.

The First Eastern Shore Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized at Cambridge, Maryland, in September, 1861, to serve three years.

Company A was mustered out of service August 16, 1862, in accordance with orders from the War Department.

On the expiration of the term of service of the regiment the original members (except veterans) were mustered out, and the organization, composed of veterans and recruits, retained in service until February 23, 1865, when it was consolidated with the 11th Regiment of Infantry.

Companies A, B and C were recruited in Dorchester County, Companies D, E, F and G in Caroline County, Company H in Talbot County, Company I at Baltimore City, and Company K in Somerset County.

The 1st Eastern Shore Regiment of Infantry, immediately after its organization, was assigned to special duty on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

In November, 1861, it formed a part of General Lockwood's Brigade in its expedition into and pacification of the Counties of Accomac and Northampton, the eastern shore counties of Virginia.

Upon the invasion of Maryland and Pennsylvania by General Robert E. Lee's Confederate Army in June, 1863, the 1st Eastern Shore Regiment of Infantry asked to be sent to the Army of the Potomac at the front, and, with General Lockwood's Brigade, the regiment was transported to Baltimore, and thence marched to the battlefield of Gettysburg, which it reached on the morning of July 3, 1863, and immediately went into action with the 12th Army Corps on Culp's Hill, where it did good service.

After the battle of Gettysburg the 1st Regiment, Eastern Shore Infantry, continued with the Army of the Potomac until Lee's Confederate Army was driven out of Maryland. when, after a brief duty on the upper Potomac, the regiment again returned to the Eastern Shores of Maryland and Virginia, where it continued in the performance of special duty until its consolidation with 11th Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.

During its term of service the 1st Regiment, Eastern Shore Infantry, marched seven hundred and sixty (760) miles, was transported by rail two hundred and eighty-three (283) miles, and by water one thousand three hundred and twenty-three (1323) miles.

The death list of the 1st Regiment, Eastern Shore Infantry, during its term of service was as follows: Killed in battle, nine (9) enlisted men; died of disease, wounds, etc., fifty-two (52) enlisted men; or an aggregate loss by death of sixty-one (61).

SECOND REGIMENT, EASTERN SHORE INFANTRY.

HE Second Regiment, Eastern Shore Infantry, was composed of eight companies. The regiment was organized at Chestertown, Kent County, Maryland, from October 2d to December 28, 1861, to serve three years. On the expiration of its term of service the original members (except veterans) were mustered out, and the organization, composed of veterans and recruits, retained in service until January 23, 1865, when it was consolidated with the 1st Regiment, Eastern Shore Infantry.

Companies A, B, C, D and E were recruited in Kent County; Company F at Baltimore City; Companies G and H in Harford County.

The regiment, after perfecting its organization, was assigned to special duty on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia during the winter of 1861-62.

In March, 1862, the regiment was transported by boat to Baltimore, but in October, 1862, returned to the Eastern Shore of Virginia, and in the spring of 1863 were assigned to duty on the lower Potomac.

In June, 1863, the regiment was ordered by General Schenck, in command of the Middle Department, to proceed to Baltimore, in order to reinforce the Army of the Potomac in repelling the invasion of Maryland by the Confederate Army under General Robert E. Lee, as well as to protect Baltimore City from an attack.

The regiment joined General Lockwood's Brigade of the 12th Army Corps at Frederick, Maryland, in July, 1863, during the pursuit of the enemy's army. After Lee's Army recrossed into Virginia, the regiment was assigned to duty on the upper Potomac, in Maryland and West Virginia.

The 2d Regiment, Eastern Shore Infantry, formed a part of General David Hunter's Army, who advanced up the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia in May, 1864, and participated in the battles fought by that Army at Piedmont, Va., June 5, 1864, and at Lynchburg, Va., June 18, 1864, after the repulse of that Army at Lynchburg, Va., and its retirement through the Kanawha Valley to the Ohio river.

The 2d Eastern Shore Infantry shared all the hardships and trials incident to that march and retreat through the mountains of Western Virginia.

When the Army of Western Virginia moved eastward again and joined the 6th and 19th Army Corps, the 2d Eastern Shore Regiment came with them and participated in the fight at Snicker's Gap, Va., July 18, 1864, and Winchester, Va., July 24, 1864.

The regiment remained in the Department of West Virginia until January 23, 1865, when it was consolidated with the 1st Regiment, Eastern Shore Infantry.

The 2d Regiment, Eastern Shore Infantry, marched one thousand and forty-one (1041) miles; they were transported by rail nine hundred and sixty-seven (967) miles, and by boat nine hundred and fifteen (915) miles; or an aggregate of two thousand nine hundred and twenty-three (2923) miles.

The 2d Regiment Eastern Shore Infantry participated in the following engagements, viz.: Falling Waters, Md., July 14, 1863; Piedmont, Va., June 5, 1864; Lynchburg, Va., June 18, 1864; Snicker's Ford or Gap, Va., July 18, 1864; Winchester, Va., July 24, 1864; Berryville, Va., September 3, 1864.

The casualties from death in this regiment during its term of service was as follows: Killed in battle, nine (9) enlisted men; died of disease, wounds, etc., one (1) commissioned officer and sixty-two (62) enlisted men—total, sixty-three (63), or an aggregate death list of seventy-two (72).

INDEPENDENT COMPANY INFANTRY, "PATAPSCO GUARDS."

THE Patapsco Guards Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, an Independent Company of Infantry, was organized at Ellicott's Mills, Maryland, September 25, 1861, to serve three years. On the expiration of its term of service the original men, except veterans, were mustered out and the organization, composed of veterans and recruits, retained in service until August 17, 1865, when it was mustered out of the military service of the United States by reason of the close of the war and by orders of the War Department.

The Patapsco Guards performed guard and provost duty at Ellicott's Mills, Md., and at York, Harrisburg and Chambersburg, Pennsylvania. During the Gettysburg campaign it took part in a skirmish with the enemy at Wrightsville, Pennsylvania, June 28, 1863, and again, during the McCauseland raid, near Chambersburg, Pa., July 30, 1864.

The casualties from death in this independent company during its term of service was four enlisted men, who died of disease.

BALTIMORE OR DIX LIGHT INFANTRY.

THE command known as the Baltimore or Dix Light Infantry, consisting of five companies of infantry, was organized at Baltimore, Maryland, in November and December, 1861, to serve three years.

It was contemplated to increase this command to a full regiment of picked men, under the supervision of General John A. Dix, then in command of the Department of Maryland.

The project did not meet with the response anticipated, and the original five companies were consolidated into two companies and transferred May 24, 1862, to the 3d Regiment of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers. This consolidation and transfer necessitated the discharge of all the field and company officers, save and except the complement of officers necessary for the two companies transferred.

"COLE'S CAVALRY," FIRST REGIMENT POTOMAC HOME BRIGADE CAVALRY.

OMPANIES A, C and D of this regiment were organized at Frederick City, Frederick County, and Company B at Cumberland, Md., from August 10, 1861, to November 27, 1861.

The original Company A was named "Cole's Cavalry," after its commanding officer, Captain Henry A. Cole, who was subsequently promoted Major, Lieutenant-Colonel and Colonel, respectively.

The other original companies, viz., B, C and D, assumed the name of "Cole's Cavalry," and were so designated, officially, by the commanders of the armies with which they served, as well as their comrades in arms in other branches of the military service with whom they came in contact.

The four original companies, A, B, C and D, were consolidated into a battalion, and Captain Henry A. Cole was promoted Major and assigned to the command thereof.

The original companies, A, B, C and D, re-enlisted for the war in February, 1864, and authority was then given by the War Department to augment the battalion of four companies to a full regiment of twelve companies.

The remaining companies, viz., E, F, G, H, I, K, L and M, were recruited from all parts of Maryland, and organized at Frederick and Baltimore, Md., from February 9th to April 23, 1864, to serve three years.

On the expiration of the term of service of Companies A, B, C and D, the original members (except veterans) were mustered out.

Company D having been reduced below the minimum number in January, 1865, an independent company of cavalry that had been raised at Cumberland, Maryland, in the summer of 1864 by Captain Tappan W. Kelly was assigned to the regiment, and the remnants of Company D consolidated with them, this company being thereafter known as Company D.

The regiment, composed of veterans and recruits, was retained in service until June 28, 1865, when it was mustered out of the military service of the United States, in accordance with the orders of the War Department, by reason of the close of the Civil War.

The personnel of the Old Battalion included loyal Virginians and Pennsylvanians from the border land; nevertheless, they were almost exclusively from Western Maryland. They were farmers' and planters' sons, mainly, in good circumstances, who owned good horses, which they brought with them into the military service.

They were, in the main, young, unmarried men, intelligent, enthusiastic, accustomed to the use of firearms, of fine physique—in fact, the very best material for cavalrymen.

Their thorough knowledge of the topography of the country, which became, to a great extent, the seat of the war in Western Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia, rendered their services to the Union cause invaluable. During the four long years of war from 1861 to 1865, they were almost constantly in the saddle, and from Gettysburg, in Pennsylvania, to Lynchburg, on the James, in Virginia, they scouted and fought with untiring zeal.

Companies A, C and D occupied the left bank of the Potomac with the Union Armies in the winter of 1861-2, the Confederate forces occupying the right bank of the same river. Company B entered on active duty in West Virginia during the same period.

In the early part of January, 1862, General (Stonewall) Jackson, with a Confederate Army, made a rapid mid-winter march from Winchester, Va., to Hancock, Maryland, and endeavored to cross the Potomac river at that point. A portion of the old battalion received a flag of truce and summons to surrender, and they, with a small Union force under General Lander, gallantly and successfully defended the town and river crossings. The balance of the battalion arrived during the night of January 7, 1862, having marched long distances all night, on one of the coldest nights of mid-winter, over the mountains and through a pitiless snowstorm. The timely arrival also of other Union forces, including the First Maryland Infantry Regiment, checked Jackson's farther advance.

The Confederate Army soon retired to their winter quarters near Winchester, when a detachment of "Cole's Cavalry," under Lieutenant Vernon, crossed the Potomac and followed them up, to ascertain definitely their whereabouts, numbers, etc., and, although an effort was made by the Confederate Cavalry to capture this detachment on its return from Winchester, the skillful pilotage of comrades, who knew every road and bypath, enabled them to return safely, and inspired that confidence so useful to themselves and the army in subsequent movements.

On the second day of March, 1862, Cole's Battalion crossed the Potomac river at Williamsport with Williams' Brigade, of Banks' Division, and, as the advance guard, marched to Martinsburg, Va.

On the 5th day of March, 1862, the battalion had quite a lively skirmish at Bunker Hill, Va., with the enemy's cavalry, capturing a number of prisoners.

On the 7th day of March, the battalion had a cavalry fight between Bunker Hill and Winchester, Va., in which the enemy were finally driven from the field; Captain Cole's horse was killed under him, private Stull was killed, and privates Keedy and Staley wounded. This was the first bloodshed in the opening of the campaign of 1862 in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. This engagement demonstrated to the command their ability to successfully cope with equal and even superior forces of Confederate Cavalry, which, at the commencement of the Civil War, was considered superior to the Federal Cavalry, by reason of the fact that the people in the Southern States were more accustomed to horseback riding and the use of firearms.

General Williams, their Brigade Commander, who had already tested the scouting qualities of "Cole's Cavalry," deemed the engagement of sufficient importance to issue to them the following congratulatory epistle :

HEADQUARTERS 3D BRIGADE, GENERAL BANKS' DIVISION.

March 8, 1862.

CAPT. H. A. COLE, Commanding Cavalry.

Captain:—I take great pleasure in offering you and your command my thanks and congratulations on the good conduct and gallantry displayed in the affair of yesterday in advance of this town.

My staff officers who were with you speak in high terms of the cool and steady conduct of yourself and Lieutenant Vernon, and of all your non-commissioned officers and men.

Be pleased to make known to your command my appreciation of their good services, and my regret that three of your brave fellows suffered wounds.

I am, Captain, with much respect,

Your obedient servant,

(Signed)

A. S. WILLIAMS,
Brigadier-General Commanding.

On the 11th day of March, 1862, the battalion, with the Brigade, had an engagement with the enemy at Stephenson's Depot. On the 12th day of March, 1862, the battalion, being the advance guard of Banks' Division, made a cavalry charge through Winchester, Va., capturing a number of prisoners.

On the 22d day of March, 1862, Companies A and C, with General Williams' Brigade, marched from Winchester to Berryville on their way to join McDowell's Army Corps in Eastern Virginia, leaving Companies B and D, with General Shields' Division, at Winchester.

General (Stonewall) Jackson, learning of the withdrawal of a portion of General Banks' command from Winchester, made a forced march and impetuous attack upon Shield's Division, but was defeated in the battle that ensued on the 22d day of March, 1862, in advance of Winchester at Kernstown. Companies B and D took part in the battle, and Companies A and C speedily returned to Winchester on hearing the guns from the battlefield and joined in the pursuit of the enemy.

The battalion remained in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia with General Banks' Division until September, 1862. After the unfortunate Peninsular Campaign under McClellan, and the ensuing campaign under General Pope, in Northern Virginia, the battalion, under Major Cole, in its efforts to impede the march of Lee's Confederate Army into Maryland, had a severe engagement at Leesburg, Va., September 2, 1862, in which the battalion, after driving a superior force of the enemy's cavalry, was overwhelmed by a Brigade of Confederate cavalry, and suffered heavily in killed, wounded and prisoners, inflicting, however, equal loss upon the enemy.

The battalion fell back to Harper's Ferry, Va., which stronghold was soon surrounded by an overwhelming force of the Confederate Army under General (Stonewall) Jackson. When it was rumored that Harper's Ferry would be surrendered, "Cole's Cavalry," through their officers, respectfully but firmly advised Colonel Miles, U. S. Army, Acting Division Commander of the beleaguered garrison "that under no circumstances

The following order was accordingly issued :

HEADQUARTERS, HARPER'S FERRY, VA.,
14th September, 1862.

SPECIAL ORDER No. 120.

1.—The cavalry force at this post, except detached orderlies, will make immediate preparations to leave here at 8 o'clock to-night without baggage, wagons, ambulances or lead horses, crossing the pontoon and taking the Sharpsburg road.

2.—The senior officer, Colonel Voss, will assume command of the whole, which will form in the following order: the right at the Quartermaster's Office; the left up Shenandoah Street, without noise or loud command, viz., "Cole's Cavalry," 12th Illinois Cavalry, 8th New York Cavalry, Rhode Island Cavalry, 1st Maryland Cavalry. No other instructions can be given to the commander for his guidance than to force his way through the enemy's lines to our army.

(Signed)

H. C. REYNOLDS,
Lieut. and A. A. Gen'l.

By order of Colonel Miles.

"Cole's Cavalry" did head the cavalry force, which, at the appointed hour, promptly penetrated the enemy's lines, and, before the enemy could comprehend the nature of the movement, had passed beyond the lines of the besieging armies, but only to enter that part of General Lee's Army then at Sharpsburg. The Cavalry, however, pushed on through this force, and upon reaching the turnpike leading from Hagerstown to Williamsport, the column discovered the ammunition train of General Longstreet's Corps of Lee's Confederate Army moving southward, immediately captured a large part thereof and successfully defended it against all efforts at recapture.

Subsequent to the battle of Antietam, the Confederate Cavalry, under the command of General Jeb Stuart, made a raid around the Army of the Potomac, and boasted "that they did not lose a man" in their gallant exploit. "Cole's Cavalry," who, however, took up the pursuit, harrassed them whenever practicable, and not only captured seven of their number, but promptly advised General Stoneman, commanding the Federal Cavalry Division, of the movements of the raiding party and the topography of the country and where they could be intercepted, whose cautious and deliberate movements alone prevented the capture or dispersal of the entire raiding party.

In November, 1862, "Cole's Cavalry" was assigned to the 12th Army Corps, under the immediate command of General Slocum, its corps commander, and as they were the only Cavalry with this corps, they were kept constantly in the saddle scouting and skirmishing.

On the 2d day of December, 1862, with General Geary's Division of the 12th Army Corps, "Cole's Cavalry" started out as the advance guard on a reconnoissance up the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. The battalion being the only cavalry with the Division, were constantly engaged during the movement in skirmishing with the enemy, more especially at Charlestown, Va., December 2, 1862; at Berryville, Va., December 3, 1862; at Winchester, Va., December 5, 1862.

When the 12th Army Corps marched into eastern Virginia, "Cole's Cavalry" was left in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. On the 20th day of December, 1862, a portion of the 12th Virginia Confederate Cavalry, under a certain Captain Baylor (who had achieved an unenviable notoriety by firing upon a flag of truce amongst his other ex-plots), concluded to wipe out of existence "Cole's Cavalry," and moved rapidly down the valley to surprise them; "Cole's Cavalry" had, however, been promptly advised by their scouts of the movement, and Companies A and C, under Captain Vernon, leaving their pickets in position, moved around the left flank to the rear of the attacking column, and although outnumbered, charged them, capturing Captain Baylor and a large part of his command, driving them four miles. Captain Baylor was subsequently tried at Harper's Ferry, Va., for his life for violating the laws of civilized warfare.

On the 13th day of June, 1863, "Cole's Cavalry," in pursuit of a Confederate Cavalry detachment, ran into the advancing column of Rhodes' Division of the Confederate Army, who, after driving out a Brigade of Federal troops at Berryville, were on the march for the Martinsburg road, in the rear of General Milroy's Division. Scouts from the command were immediately sent through the enemy's lines to Winchester to apprise General Milroy of his peril.

After the Division of General Milroy had been overwhelmed by Lee's Army and a portion of it captured, the detachment, who had forced their way through the enemy's army, were protected in their retreat by "Cole's Cavalry" with great tenacity, who aided in the escape of large numbers of Milroy's Division.

"Cole's Cavalry" then assumed the offensive, confronted and hung upon the flanks and rear of Lee's Confederate Army, then engaged in its campaign of invasion that culminated at the Battle of Gettysburg.

Whilst suffering severe losses themselves, nevertheless, by reason of their thorough knowledge of the country, traveling rapidly from point to point, they inflicted tenfold greater losses on the enemy, whilst drafts were made upon the command for couriers and guides for the advancing columns of the Army of the Potomac; the remainder of the command was constantly in the saddle.

The engagement at Berryville, Va., June 13, 1863; at Martinsburg, Va., June 11, 1863; at Williamsport, June 15, 1863; at Catoctin Creek, June 17, 1863; at Frederick, June 22, 1863; at Fountain Dale, Pa., and Gettysburg, Pa., July 1, 1863; Emmittsburg, Md., July 5, 1863; at Harper's Ferry and Falling Waters, July 6, 1863, attested the good work of the command. They captured large numbers of the enemy; they captured the despatch-bearer from General Lee to General Ewell "ordering a concentration of the Confederate Armies at Gettysburg," which was delivered into the hands of General Reynolds, who was killed in the first day's fight at the battle of Gettysburg.

They captured the enemy's supplies; they burnt Lee's pontoon bridge in the rear of his army; they interrupted his lines of communication—in fact, rendered splendid service during the memorable campaign.

After the Gettysburg campaign the battalion made strenuous and successful efforts to recruit their depleted ranks.

On the 14th day of September, 1863, the battalion succeeded in surprising and capturing, on Catoctin Mountain, near Leesburg, Va., nearly the entire command of a Confederate cavalry company who had been a source of annoyance to the Union Armies.

On the 18th day of October, 1862, the Confederate brigade of General Imboden surprised and captured at Charlestown, Va., the 9th Maryland Infantry. "Cole's Cavalry," who had previously apprised this command of the proximity of the enemy and of their liability to attack, promptly rushed to the rescue with Minor's Indiana Battery, followed by the 34th Massachusetts Infantry and 10th Maryland Infantry. The battalion repeatedly charged the retreating columns of the enemy, who were compelled to stop, form line of battle, brigade front, and drive back the battalion, only to be again vigorously attacked in turn. Only at one time during the entire day did the infantry support reach the battlefield, when the enemy again retreated in haste with their prisoners.

"Cole's Cavalry" suffered severely this day in killed and wounded.

In December, 1863, Cole's Cavalry formed a part of the raiding column who were ordered to demonstrate down the Shenandoah Valley towards Staunton, whilst another co-operating column of cavalry passed on beyond their right flank to the James river and cut the railroad between Lynchburg, Va., and Bristol, Tennessee, to prevent reinforcements being sent from Lee's Army to reinforce Longstreet's Army, then besieging Knoxville, Tenn. During the fifteen days' midwinter raid, "Cole's Cavalry" suffered severe loss, but rendered invaluable service during these successful movements.

On the 10th day of January, 1864, Cole's Battalion, whilst occupying an isolated camp on a spur of the Blue Ridge Mountains at Loudon Heights, Va., were attacked at midnight, on a bitter cold winter night, by Mosby's Guerrilla Battalion, augmented by volunteers from Lee's Army. With the firm conviction that they would make a rich capture, a most sanguinary battle ensued, principally a hand to hand fight, in which the battalion suffered severely in killed and wounded, but inflicted greater loss upon the enemy, whom they drove with confusion from the camp, then mounted and vigorously pursued the enemy.

This battle evoked the following order of congratulation from the General-in-Chief of the Armies of the United States, viz.:

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY,

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 20, 1864.

Brig-General B. F. KELLY,

Cumberland.

General:—I have just received, through your headquarters, Major Henry A. Cole's report of the repulse of Mosby's attack upon his camp, on Loudon Heights, on the 10th inst.

Major Cole and his command, the Battalion of P. H. B. Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers, deserve high praise for their gallantry in repelling the rebel assault.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

(Signed)

H. W. HALLECK, General-in-Chief.

In the latter part of January, 1864, the battalion pushed through Winchester to Romney and Moorfield, in Western Virginia, to assist in repelling a large raiding party of the enemy's cavalry.

On the 13th day of February, 1864, the battalion re-enlisted for the war, and was granted a thirty days' furlough. The battalion marched to Frederick, Md., where they received an ovation from the loyal people of Western Maryland. They were met at the outskirts of the city by the corporate authorities and a military escort, and, amidst the ringing of the church and fire bells, waving of flags and cheers of the people, conducted to the City Hall, where they were formally welcomed home by Justice Nelson, of the Supreme Court, and accorded a banquet.

After the expiration of the furlough of the veteran battalion, the command was recruited up to a full regiment of twelve companies. Whilst waiting for the proper mounting and equipment of the entire regiment, all of the mounted men both in the old battalion and new battalions were sent to the front. In the disastrous battles fought by General Sigel, at New Market, Va., May 13th and 15th, 1862, "Cole's Cavalry" suffered heavily, when General Hunter assumed command of this army in the Shenandoah, and again advanced. All of "Cole's Cavalry" then mounted, joined him and participated in the splendid victory at the battle of Piedmont, Va., June 5, 1864, as well as the skirmishes at Tye River Gap, June 12, 1864, Lexington, June 13, Buchannon, June 14, and Lynchburg, Va., June 18, 1864.

The arrival of another army under General Early, at Lynchburg, compelled General Hunter's command to retreat from Lynchburg by the Kanawha Valley. General Early's Confederate Army promptly moved up the Shenandoah Valley; in the mean time the balance of the regiment, still dismounted, moved out from Martinsburg with the column of troops who, at Leetown, Va., July 3, 1864, repulsed the advance guard of Early's army.

A detachment of the dismounted command was mounted and rendered good service to the Union armies during the raid into Maryland by Early's Army and his attempt to capture Washington, capturing men, provisions, etc.

After the battle of Monocacy, July 9, 1864, the repulse of Early's Army in front of Washington, July 12, 1864, and its pursuit by the 6th and 19th Army Corps, with the Army of West Virginia, "Cole's Cavalry" participated in the engagements that ensued, more especially at Ashby's Gap, Va., July 19, 1864.

"Cole's Cavalry" (mounted men) remained with the Army of West Virginia at Winchester, Va., after the 6th and 19th Army Corps returned towards Washington, where they were attacked by Early's army again, July 25, 1864, and compelled to retreat beyond the Potomac with this army.

"Cole's Cavalry" was attacked July 26, 1864, by a column of Confederates, who attempted to cross the Potomac River at that point, but promptly repulsed the enemy. After the burning of Chambersburg, Pa., in July, 1864, by a raiding party of Confederate Cavalry, "Cole's Cavalry" assisted in driving the enemy out of Maryland.

On the 5th day of August, 1864, a large part of General Early's Army, consisting of infantry, cavalry and artillery, again recrossed the Potomac river, near Sharpsburg, Md., and advanced through Sharpsburg toward the National turnpike, at Boonsboro.

The advance brigade of the column was met at Keedyville by the regiment, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Vernon, promptly and vigorously attacked and driven back beyond the Antietam, where they were checked by the artillery and infantry of the Confederate Army, who, in turn, compelled "Cole's Cavalry" to retreat slowly into the mountain gaps of the Blue Ridge Mountains; the enemy being satisfied with shelling the command, made no further attempt to dislodge the regiment. In this spirited engagement, lasting several hours, the command suffered severely in killed and wounded, but inflicted greater loss upon the enemy, and only retired before an overwhelming force.

The advance of General Sheridan's Army up the Shenandoah Valley, by the way of Harper's Ferry, caused Early's Army to retire to Winchester, Va.

The regiment was now assigned to Merritt's Cavalry Division of Torbert's Cavalry Corps, Army of the Shenandoah.

In the autumn of 1862, the armies of Sheridan and Early alternately advanced up and down the Shenandoah Valley, the cavalry corps, including "Cole's Cavalry," being almost constantly engaged, until Sheridan, by his brilliant battles at Opequan (Winchester), Fisher's Hill, and Cedar Creek, effectually destroyed Early's Confederate Army and compelled its remnants to retreat towards the James river.

A raiding party of the enemy's cavalry, under General Rosser, into Western Virginia, in the winter of 1864-5, necessitated the sending of "Cole's Cavalry" into West Virginia to protect that section, and the subsequent capture and burning of trains on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, in Western Virginia, by Mosby's Guerrillas, compelled the command to be assigned to duty in West Virginia during the remainder of the Civil War.

On the 28th day of June, 1865, "Cole's Cavalry" was mustered out of the military service of the United States, at Harper's Ferry, Va., by orders of the War Department, and, by reason of the close of war, proceeded thence to Baltimore, where the regiment was finally discharged.

"Cole's Cavalry," during its nearly four years of active, arduous service in scouting and raiding in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, from Gettysburg, Pa., to Lynchburg, Va., from the Potomac river south to the James river, and west to the Kanawha and the Ohio river, marched over seven thousand (7000) miles.

The death list of "Cole's Cavalry" was as follows: Killed in battle, two (2) commissioned officers and forty-five (45) enlisted men; total forty-seven (47); died of wounds, in prison, etc., two (2) commissioned officers and one hundred and twenty (120) enlisted men; total, one hundred and twenty-two (122); or an aggregate death list of one hundred and sixty-nine (169).

"Cole's Cavalry" participated in the following skirmishes, engagements and battles during the Civil War, either by company, detachments, battalions or as a regiment, viz.: South Branch Bridge, Va., October 26, 1861; Hancock, Md., January 5 and 6, 1862; Bloomery Gap, Va., February 14, 1862; Martinsburg, Va., March 3, 1862; Bunker Hill, Va., March 5, 1862; Stephenson's Depot, Va., March 7 and 8, 1862; Winchester, Va., March 12, 1862; Kernstown, Va., March 22 and 23, 1862; Edinburg, Va., April 1, 1862; Grass Lick, Va., April 23, 1862; Wordensfield, Va., May 7, 1862; Charlestown, Va., May 28, 1862; Leesburg, Va., September 2, 1862; Harper's Ferry, Va., September 13 and 14, 1862; Sharpsburg, Md., September 15, 1862; Hyattstown, Md., October 12, 1862; Charlestown, Va., November 14, 1862; Charlestown, Va., December 2, 1862; Berryville, Va., December 3, 1862; Winchester, Va., December 5, 1862; Hall Town, Va., December 20, 1862; Berryville, Va., June 13, 1863; Martinsburg, Va., June 14, 1863; Williamsport, Md., June 15, 1863; Catoctin Creek, June 17, 1863; Sharpsburg, Md., July, 1863; Fountain Dale, Pa., July 1, 1863; Frederick, Md., June 22, 1863; Gettysburg, Pa., July 1 to 3, 1863; Emmitsburg, Md., July 5, 1863; Falling Waters, July 6, 1863; Harper's Ferry, July 6, 1863; Catoctin Mountain, Va., September 14, 1863; Snickersville, Leesburg, Rector's X Roads and Bloomfield, Va., September, 1863; Upperville, Va., September 25, 1863; Charlestown, Va., October 18, 1863; Mt. FIRST REGIMENT CAVALRY.

THE First Maryland Cavalry was organized at Baltimore and Williamsport, Maryland, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and Washington, D. C., from August, 1861, to June, 1862, to serve three years. On the expiration of its term of service, the original members, except veterans, were mustered out of service, and the organization, composed of veterans and recruits, retained in service until August 8, 1865, when it was mustered out of service in accordance with orders from the War Department.

Companies A, B, C, D and E were recruited in Baltimore City, Company F at Cockeysville and Baltimore City, Companies G and K at Pittsburg, Pa., Companies H and I in Washington and Allegany Counties, Companies L and M in Washington City, D. C.

The formation of this regiment by detachments at different points on different dates divided, for a time, the regiment and their sphere of usefulness.

Companies G, I and K rendered valuable service in Western Virginia, more especially during the raid by General (Stonewall) Jackson's Confederate Army from Winchester, through Berkeley Springs, to Hancock, Md., in January, 1862; and Russell's Company I particularly distinguished itself at Bloomery Gap, West Virginia, February 14, 1862.

Companies A, B, C, G and I of the 1st Maryland Cavalry, under Lieutenant-Colonel Wetschy, aided in covering the retreat from Winchester, Va., of General Banks' Division, that had been attacked by an overwhelming army of the enemy under the command of Generals Jackson and Ewell, May 24, 1862.

Companies D, F, H, K and L of the 1st Maryland Cavalry, under Major Deems, arrived at Harper's Ferry, Va., on the 25th day of May, 1862, in time to aid in repulsing any farther advance of the enemy in that direction. They were pushed forward on the 28th day of May, 1862, with the 111th Pennsylvania Infantry and Cole's Maryland Cavalry and a section of Artillery, to Charlestown, Va., and there encountered the advancing column of Jackson's Army; a brisk skirmish ensued, in which the 1st Maryland Cavalry incurred serious loss.

The 1st Maryland Cavalry advanced up the Shenandoah Valley, Va., via Smithfield, to Winchester, with Banks' Division, in June, 1862, and thence into eastern Virginia, where it became a part of General Pope's Army.

In the campaign of General Pope's Army the 1st Maryland Cavalry were conspicuous, and rendered splendid service in the engagements that ensued, more especially at Cedar Mountain, August 9, 1862; Centreville, August 28, 1862, and Bull Run, August 30, 1862.

Companies H and I, of the 1st Maryland Cavalry, who had remained in the Shenandoah Valley, became a part of the garrison at Harper's Ferry, Va., and rendered very gallant service at the time of its siege and capture by the enemy, September 15, 1862, when it was concluded to surrender the garrison; these two companies of the 1st Maryland Cavalry joined the cavalry column, who cut their way through the enemy's lines.

The 1st Maryland Cavalry formed a part of General Stoneman's cavalry column during his raid through the enemy's lines in Virginia, April and May, 1863. At the famous cavalry fight at Brandy Station, Va., June 9, 1863, the 1st Maryland Cavalry acted with distinguished gallantry. The regiment was an active participant in all of the cavalry fights that ensued and culminated at the battle of Gettysburg, Pa., July 1-3, 1863, when the Confederate Cavalry Division of General J. E. B. Stuart was signally defeated and driven back.

The 1st Maryland Cavalry continued with the Cavalry Corps of the Army of the Potomac until assigned for a short time to duty with the Army of the James. After General Sheridan's return from the Shenandoah Valley to the Army of the Potomac, the 1st Maryland Cavalry became a part of that famous cavalry corps, and they rendered signal service at the battle of Five Forks, April 1, 1865, and during the brilliant maneuvers by the cavalry corps that resulted in the surrender of Lee's Army at Appomattox Court House, Va., April 9, 1865.

The 1st Maryland Cavalry participated in the following skirmishes and battles, either in whole or in part, during the Civil War, viz.: Balls Bluff, Va., January 4, 1862; Stone's Cross Roads, Va., January 4, 1862; Bath, Va., January 4, 1862; Alpine Depot, Va., January 4, 1862; Hancock, Md., January 5 and 6, 1862; Bloomery Gap, Va., January 7, 1862; Bloomery Gap, Va., February 14, 1862; Middletown, Md., May 24, 1862; Winchester, Va., May 24, 1862; Charlestown, Va., May 28, 1862; Harper's Ferry, Va., June 9, 1862; Rapidan Station, Va., July 13, 1862; Madison Court House, Va., August 8, 1862; Cedar Mountain, Va., August 9, 1862; Rappahannock Station, Va., August 22, 1862; Freeman's Ford, Va., August 22, 1862; White Sulphur Springs, Va., August 23, 1862; Centreville, Va., August 28, 1862; Gainesville, Va., August 28, 1862; Grovetown, Va., August 29, 1862; Bull Run, Va., August 30, 1862; Boonesboro, Md., September 7, 1862; Maryland Heights, Md., September 13, 1862; Sharpsburg, Md., September 15, 1862; Manassas Junction, Va., October 23, 1862; Fredericksburg, Va., December 13, 1862; Dumfries, Va., December 27, 1862; Stoneman's Raid, Va., April and May, 1863; Brandy Station, Va., June 9, 1863; Beverly Ford, Va., June 9, 1863; Aldie, Va., June 19, 1863; Middleburg, Va., June 23, 1863; Upperville, Va., June 23, 1863; Gettysburg, Pa., July 1-3, 1863; Middletown, Md., July 5, 1863; Shepherdstown, Va., July 14, 1863; Culpepper, Va., September 14, 1863; Rapidan Station, Va., September 16, 1863; White Sulphur Springs, October 13, 1863; Bristoe Station, October 14, 1863; Mine Run, Va., November 26 to December 2, 1863; Bermuda Hundred, Va., June 17, 1864; Richmond and Petersburg Railroad, Va., June 19, 1864; Deep Bottom, Va., July 27, 1864; Flussen's Mill, Va., August 14, 1864; Deep Run, Va., August 16-18, 1864; Siege of Petersburg, Va., August 25, September 27, 1864; Chaffin's Farm, Va., September 29, 1864; Darbeytown Road, Va., October 13, 1864; Fair Oaks, Va., October 27, 1864; Smithfield, Va., December 7, 1864; Five Forks, Va. (Dinwiddie County), April 1, 1865;

SECOND REGIMENT CAVALRY.

THE Second Regiment of Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers, was organized at Baltimore and Annapolis, Md., from July 1, 1863, to August 19, 1863.

The command consisted of five companies and was recruited for six months.

The command was raised under the President's proclamation of June 15th, 1863, calling for troops for a temporary emergency.

Companies A, B and E were recruited at Baltimore City, Company C in Howard County and Baltimore City, and Company D at Washington, D. C.

After its organization, the Second Maryland Cavalry Battalion, under the command of its senior Captain, William F. Bragg, marched from Baltimore to Annapolis, Md., and was assigned to duty at various points in Anne Arundel and Calvert Counties, Md., whilst part of one company remained on provost duty at Annapolis, Md.

The command performed the special duty assigned them until the expiration of its terms of enlistment. Companies A and B were mustered out of service January 26, 1864, Companies C and D were mustered out of service February 6, 1864, and Company E, January 31, 1864.

Just prior to the expiration of their terms of enlistment, seventy men of the Second Maryland cavalry re-enlisted for three years, and were assigned to the Third Maryland cavalry, others of the command subsequent to their discharge, re-enlisted in Cole's cavalry, Maryland Volunteers.

The casualties from death in the Second Maryland cavalry during their term of service were as follows, viz.: Died of disease, 13.

THIRD REGIMENT CAVALRY.

THE Third Regiment of Cavalry, Maryland Volunteers, otherwise known as "The Bradford Dragoons," named after the Hon. Augustus W. Bradford, the War Governor of Maryland, was organized at Baltimore, Md., from August 8, 1863, to January 9, 1864.

The Third Regiment of Cavalry consisted of ten companies; they were enlisted for three years.

The Third Regiment was consolidated into a battalion of six companies, December 9, 1864.

Companies A, B, C and H were recruited in Baltimore City, Companies D, E, F and G were recruited at Fort Delaware from Confederate prisoners of war, who had taken the oath of allegiance to the United States of America.

Company I was recruited in Frederick County and Baltimore City, Company K was recruited in Baltimore City and from the re-enlisted men of the Second Maryland Cavalry.

After the regimental organization was completed, the Third Regiment of Cavalry was sent by steamship to Louisiana, and immediately entered on active field duty.

The Third Regiment of Cavalry formed a part of General N. P. Banks' Army in the ill-fated Red River Expedition.

When the Army of the South, under General Canby, was sent to operate against Mobile, Alabama, the Third Regiment of Cavalry was assigned to duty with it and rendered valuable service.

The active field duty of the Third Regiment of Cavalry in the States of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida, and the exposure incident thereto, had caused serious loss by disease, and, in consequence of its reduced numbers, a consolidation of companies was ordered, and the regiment reduced to a battalion of six companies. Company A was transferred to Company B, Company C to I, Company D to E, Company G to F, Company H to K.

The Third Maryland Cavalry Battalion was mustered out of the military service of the United States at Vicksburg, Miss., September 7, 1865.

The Third Regiment of Cavalry during its term of service marched one hundred and ninety-eight (198) miles, travelled by rail one thousand four hundred and five (1405) miles, and by water three thousand two hundred and eighty-five (3285) miles, or a total of four thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight (4888) miles.

The Third Regiment of Cavalry participated in the following engagements, viz.: Flemming's Ford, La., February 11, 1864; Mansuria, La., May 14 and 16, 1864; Marksville, La., May 17, 1864; Yellow Bayou, La., May 18-19, 1864; Morgan's Ferry Road, La., June 9, 1864; capture of Fort Gaines, Ala., August 8, 1864; capture of Fort Morgan, Ala., August 23, 1864; capture of Spanish Fort, Ala., April 9, 1865; capture of Fort Blakely, Ala., April 9, 1865.

Casualties by death in the Third Regiment of Cavalry were as follows: Died of wounds received in battle, eleven (11); died of disease, etc.—commissioned officers, four (4); enlisted men, eighty (80); total, eighty-four (84); or an aggregate death list of ninety-five (95).

PURNELL LEGION CAVALRY.

Battalion of Cavalry, Purnell Legion, Maryland Volunteers, consisted of three companies. They were recruited for three years.

Companies A and B were organized at Pikesville, Md., in September, October and November, 1861, and Company C at Baltimore, Md., in September, 1862.

The battalion did not perform service as an organization; the companies were detached on special duty.

Company A was sent on duty to the Eastern Shore of Virginia, where it rendered good service; this company also performed duty in St. Mary's County, Md. The company also took part in the Gettysburg campaign and participated in the battle of Gettysburg, Pa., July, 1-3, 1863.

Company A was mustered out of the service of the United States, July 28, 1865.

Company B was assigned to special duty in different parts of Maryland and Delaware, and on special duty at Annapolis, Md., under the immediate orders of Governor Bradford.

Company B was dismounted and equipped as infantry May 28, 1864, and joined the Army of the Potomac, June 7th, 1864, being attached to the Purnell Legion Infantry. Company B, cavalry (dismounted), participated in the following battles, viz.: Assault on Petersburg, Va., June 18, 1864; siege of Petersburg, Va., June-October, 1864; battle of Weldon Railroad, August 18-21, 1864; battle of Poplar Springs Church, Va., September 30, 1864; battle of Chapel House, Va., October 1-3, 1864; battle of Peeble's Farm, Va., October 7-8, 1864.

The original members (except veterans) were mustered out of the military service October 26, 1864, the veterans and recruits were transferred to Company C, which was subsequently transferred to the Eighth Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers.

Company C was recruited at Baltimore City, September, 1862. The company was stationed at Camp Bradford, Md., until February 5, 1863, when it was sent to Harper's Ferry, Va., thence to Drummondtown, Va., thence to Wilmington, Del., then dismounted and sent to the Army of the Potomac, being temporarily assigned to the Purnell Legion Infantry, and whilst with this infantry regiment, participated in the same battles, already enumerated in the history of Company B (cavalry dismounted).

The veterans and recruits of Company B were transferred to and consolidated with Company C, October 26, 1864, and the consolidated Company C was transferred to the Eighth Regiment Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, November 17, 1864.

The casualties from death in the Purnell Cavalry Battalion were as follows: Killed in battle or died of wounds, seven (7) enlisted men; died of disease, etc., twenty-four (24) enlisted men, or an aggregate death list of thirty-one (31).

SMITH'S INDEPENDENT COMPANY CAVALRY

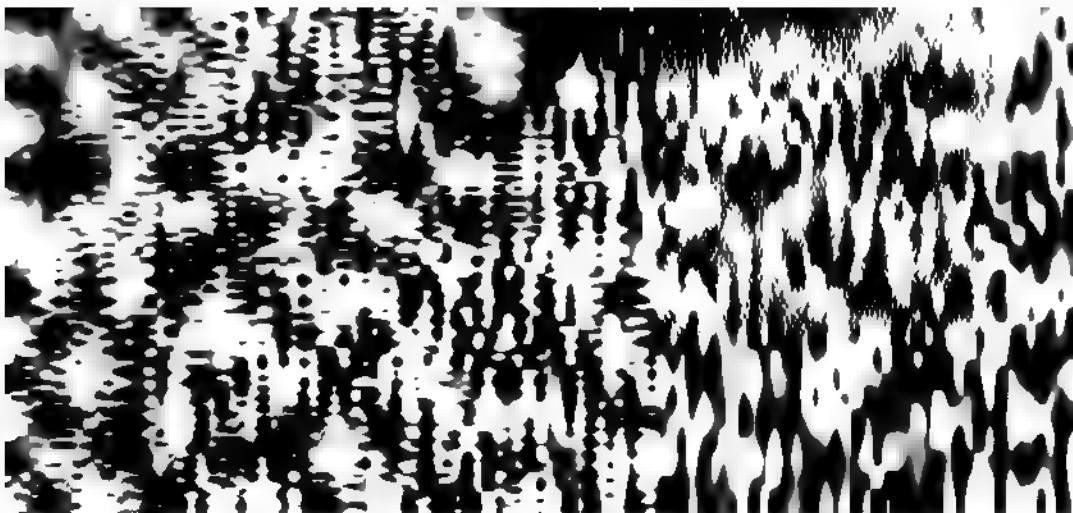

IS company was organized at Snow Hill, Worcester County, October 15, 1862, to serve three years. It was mustered into service June 30, 1865, in accordance with orders from the War Department.

This company was recruited, in accordance with orders granted Captain G. W. P. Smith, by the Secretary of War, to raise a company for special duty on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia, unless the exigencies of the service should require it to be attached to some regiment for general service."

The company was used to prevent the disloyal element in the section of country in which it scouted from organizing bands of recruits for the Confederates; to protect the loyal element, resident therein; to keep a lookout for and capture deserters; in fact, to perform such duties over a wide section that would otherwise have necessitated the maintenance of large infantry detachments.

During its term of service the company was stationed at Snow Hill, New Market, Lookout, Eastville, Drummondstown, Salisbury, Relay House, Barnesville.

It was not the fortune of this command to engage in any skirmish or battle, but nevertheless it performed its duty honorably, under the orders of superior authorities. No casualties have been reported by this command.

BATTERY A, LIGHT ARTILLERY [1st], "RIGBY'S."

battery was organized at Baltimore and Pikesville, Maryland, in August and September, 1861, to serve three years.

On the expiration of its term of service, the original members (except veterans) were mustered out, and the organization, composed of veterans and recruits, retained in service until March 11, 1865, when it was consolidated with Battery B, Maryland Light Artillery.

Battery A was originally a part of the Purnell Legion, Maryland Volunteers.

In the latter part of the year 1861, Battery A was sent to the eastern shore of Virginia, where it rendered efficient service.

In the early part of the year 1862, the battery was sent to the Army of the Potomac, then under General McClellan, in his campaign against Richmond, Virginia, and assigned to the artillery reserve under General Hunt, where it performed splendid service, more especially at the battle of Malvern Hill, Va., July 1, 1862, on the right of the Federal line with Sumner's corps. In this battle the Federal artillery was instrumental in repulsing, with severe losses, the Confederate army under General Robert E. Lee.

During the Maryland campaign, caused by the invasion of Lee's Confederate army in September, 1862, Battery A, Maryland Light Artillery, again rendered conspicuous service, especially at Crampton's Gap, Md., September 14, 1862, and at the battle of Antietam, September 17, 1862.

At the battle of Antietam (really the most severe in losses by death in a single day's fight during the Civil War), Battery A, Maryland Light Artillery, was posted on the right of the line with Slocum's Division, in front of the Dunkard Church, where the battle raged fiercely all day, with alternate victory and defeat.

The battery was commended by General Slocum, commanding division, for its gallantry and efficiency.

The battery experienced serious loss in the battle.

After the battle of Antietam the battery took part with the Army of the Potomac in all of its subsequent movements, culminating in the battles of Fredericksburg, Va., December 13, 1862, and Marye's Heights, Va., May 3, 1863.

At the battle of Fredericksburg, Va., Battery A was highly complimented by Colonel Wainwright, Chief of Artillery of the 1st Army Corps.

Battery A marched with the Army of the Potomac during the Gettysburg Campaign.

At the battle of Gettysburg, Pa., Battery A took part in the second and third days' fight, having been posted on the extreme right of the line with the 12th Army Corps.

The battery continued on active duty until its consolidation with Battery B, Maryland Light Artillery, March 11, 1865.

The record of this battery, more especially whilst under the command of Captain Rigby, was a brilliant one, and reflected great credit upon the battery and the State.

Battery A, Maryland Light Artillery, incurred the following losses by death during its term of service, viz.: Killed in battle, six enlisted men; died of wounds, disease, etc., twenty-eight enlisted men; total losses by death, thirty-four enlisted men.

Battery A, Maryland Light Artillery, participated in the following battles during the Civil War, viz.: Malvern Hill, Va., July 1, 1862; Crampton's Gap, Md., September 14, 1862; Fredericksburg, Va., December 13, 1862; Marye's Heights, Va., May 3, 1863; Salem Heights, Va., May 3-4, 1863; Gettysburg, Pa., July 2-3, 1863.

NOTE.—"The battery was organized under Cap. Jno. W. Wolcott and was under his command at battles of Malvern Hill, Fredericksburg, Crampton's Gap and Antietam."

BATTERY D, LIGHT ARTILLERY.

BATTERY D, Maryland Light Artillery, was organized at Baltimore, Md., November 29, 1864, to serve three years. It was mustered out of service June 24, 1865, by reason of close of the war and order of the War Department.

The duties performed by this battery consisted of garrison duty in the defenses of Washington, D. C., more particularly in Fort Tillinghast, Lyon, Willard, Richardson, Ward, Barnard, C. Smith and Whipple.

It was not brought into action and suffered no casualties.

BALTIMORE BATTERY, LIGHT ARTILLERY, "ALEXANDER'S."

E Baltimore Battery of Light Artillery was organized in the summer of 1862 by Captain Frederick W. Alexander, of Baltimore, under the call of President Lincoln for 300,000 men to serve for three years, or during the war. It was mustered into the service of the United States by Colonel Benjamin L. Beall, United States Army, in its camp in Baltimore.

Within one month it was ordered to Monocacy Junction and assigned to the Maryland Brigade, then commanded by Brigadier General John R. Kenly, U. S. A. Marching to Williamsport, Md., it formed part of the force composing the defenses of the Upper Potomac.

The Maryland Brigade then consisted of the First, Fourth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Regiments of Infantry, Maryland Volunteers, and Alexander's Battery.

The battery remained at Williamsport until early in December, when it was ordered to take post with the brigade on Maryland Heights. During its stay at Williamsport the brigade of General Wade Hampton, C. S. A., was holding the high ground on the Virginia side. Here occurred the capture by Lieutenant MacMachen, First Maryland Cavalry, of a picket of six men of Hampton's Brigade, just as a flag of truce had returned to the Virginia from the Maryland shore, occasioning a correspondence between General's Kenly and Hampton as to the terms of the truce. Here also occurred the bursting of an experimental cast-iron breech-loading field gun, the invention of Captain Alexander, by which a well known little drummer boy of the Eighth Maryland was killed and several men severely wounded.

About the middle of December the battery arrived at Maryland Heights and went into winter quarters, brigaded with the Maryland Brigade, the 17th Indiana Battery, First Maryland Cavalry (Companies H and I) and the 6th N. Y. Heavy Artillery, constituting the First Brigade, First Division, Eighth Army Corps. Anticipating the movement of Hooker's Army of the Potomac, Major General Schenck telegraphed to General Kenly: "Send in advance, immediately, Captain Alexander's Battery to report for temporary duty to General Milroy."

Accordingly the battery arrived at Berryville, April 27, 1863, and relieved two sections of Battery B, First West Virginia Light Artillery.

Milroy's troops constituted the outposts in the Shenandoah Valley, and were kept constantly employed in active reconnoissance until the advance of Lee's Army, of Northern Virginia, which opened the Gettysburg Campaign.

The first information of Lee's advance was received at Berryville, on Friday afternoon, June 12, when Colonel McReynolds, commanding the brigade, made preparations for resistance. Early on Saturday morning, June 13, the enemy made its appearance and some slight skirmishing was begun.

The battery had been engaged in the construction, with the other troops of the brigade, of the defensive works around Berryville for some weeks after their arrival in March. These were now successfully used in delaying the advanced guard of Rhodes' Division of Ewell's Corps by compelling its deployment, and thus fulfilled the purpose of their construction; for two sections of the battery, under Lieutenants Evans and Leary, were assigned to the infantry of the brigade, which was pushed out on the Winchester Road, while the First New York Cavalry and the right section, under Lieutenant Alexander, formed the rear guard and succeeded so well in delaying the enemy, that only their advanced cavalry were able to accomplish any annoyance of the retreating forces.

McReynolds' Brigade consisted of the First N. Y. Cavalry, the Sixth Maryland Infantry, the Sixty-seventh Pennsylvania Infantry and Alexander's Battery.

This movement was made in obedience to orders from Major General Milroy, who recalled the brigade to Winchester, where it arrived late at night. It was assigned to a completed redoubt, designed for a force of 1500 men, with emplacements for eight guns and rifle trenches, known as the Star Fort, built on a ridge running due North from Winchester, about two miles from the town and one mile west of the Martinsburg Pike. At the crossing of Opequon Creek, about five o'clock on Saturday afternoon, the rear guard was handsomely charged by a squadron of Georgia cavalry of the brigade of General Jenkins. The assault was speedily checked by a double charge of canister shot, fired down the road into the cavalry column with crushing effect by one of the guns of Lieutenant Alexander's section.

Early on Sunday morning one section, under Lieutenant Leary, reported to Brigadier General Washington L. Elliott, and operated with his brigade all day, until, after some sharp fighting it was ordered to rejoin the battery in the afternoon in the Star Fort.

It is noticeable that the first Confederate battery to go into position and engage the battery was the Baltimore Light Artillery, composed mainly of Maryland soldiers in the confederate service.

The army of Lee was now closing round Milroy's Division; his artillery fire was concentrated on the Star Fort, and an artillery duel was maintained until about 9.30 o'clock at night. General Milroy, realizing his desperate situation, sent orders out at midnight directing the guns to be spiked and the carriages and harness destroyed.

This was effectually done, and before dawn the men and horses joined the retreating column of Milroy, outside the defenses of Winchester.

At dawn, on the morning of June 15, Milroy's Second Division, Eighth Corps, marched out, having, for three days, with 9,000 men, delayed the advance of the Army of Northern Virginia towards Pennsylvania, in the second battle of Winchester.

All wheeled vehicles, including the guns and carriages, had been abandoned and left in the works by order of General Milroy, and the command hoped to be able to break through the cordon of Lee's troops.

As many cannoneers as could be mounted rode the off and spare horses, the drivers riding their team horses. The casualties during the actions of the 13th and 14th of June had been light. Arriving at a point near Stevenson's Station, on the Winchester and Potomac Railway, about five miles from Winchester, the retreating forces were met by Johnson's Division, Ewell's Corps, consisting of the Stonewall Brigade and the brigades of Steuart and Nicholls, with the division batteries.

Johnson had marched on the night of the 14th to Stevenson's Station, in anticipation of Milroy's retreat by the Martinsburg pike.

The action was brief but sharp, resulting in the dispersal and capture of a large part of the division. The battery lost about forty-eight men captured. All who escaped went out by the Harper's Ferry road and cross country towards Berkley Springs, the latter crossing the Potomac at Sir John's Run.

Captain Alexander and Lieutenants Evans and Hall arrived at Harper's Ferry with the remnant which escaped in that direction, and Lieutenants Alexander and Leary with that which went out by way of Sir John's Run.

The battery, except the men who were captured, was assembled at Baltimore, the headquarters of the corps, and was remounted and re-equipped with three-inch rifled guns as soon as possible after the battle of Gettysburg. It remained as part of the garrison of Baltimore until the summer of 1864, when the Maryland campaign of that year began with the advance down the valley of the Confederate forces, under the command of Lieutenant General Early.

Under specific instructions from General Grant, Major General Hunter had advanced to Lynchburg, but had retreated before Early without a battle, and was effectually put out of the campaign until nearly the middle of July, his forces, short of ammunition and rations, retreating by way of Gauley Bridge into the mountains of West Virginia.

Early reached the Potomac July 4th. By the 7th his cavalry was at Urbana, Md., and his army, having passed the Potomac and the mountains by Boonsboro and Fox's and Crampton's Gaps, was advancing on Frederick. His force consisted of the divisions of Gordon, Edward S. Johnson, Rhodes and Breckenridge, two brigades of cavalry, commanded by Brigadier Generals McCausland and Bradley T. Johnson, and four batteries of artillery, of four guns each. The divisions of Gordon and Breckenridge were formed into one corps, commanded by Breckenridge.

To meet this force of confederate veterans, Major General Lewis Wallace had only the following troops: The First and Third Regiments Infantry, Maryland Potomac Home Brigade, Eleventh Maryland Infantry, seven companies of the One Hundred and Forty-ninth and three companies of the One Hundred and Forty-fourth Ohio National Guard, consolidated; Alexander's battery of six three inch rifles; one hundred men of the One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Ohio National Guard, mounted as cavalry, and two hundred and fifty men of the Eighth Illinois Cavalry. Of this force the Ohio troops and the Eleventh Maryland were one hundred days' men; the only three year's troops being the two regiments of the Potomac Home Brigade, the Eighth Illinois Cavalry and the battery.

On the night of July 8, the force was increased by the arrival at Monocacy Junction, by rail, of the Third Division, Sixth Corps, commanded by Brigadier General Ricketts, 3350 strong, making in all 5850 men and six field guns.

With this small force General Wallace confronted Early's 16,000 veterans, and by the actions at Middletown and Catoctin Mountain on the 7th, Frederick the 8th, and Monocacy the 9th of July, delayed the Confederate advance and saved Washington from capture.

On July 7th the left section, commanded by Lieutenant Leary, reported to Lieutenant-Colonel David R. Clendenin, Eighth Illinois Cavalry, at daylight, and at 5.30 o'clock marched with the cavalry on a reconnaissance out the Hagerstown Pike. About two miles southeast of Middletown they met the advanced cavalry of Brigadier General Bradley T. Johnson's brigade. After three hours' fighting the command was driven back towards Frederick. In this action was fired a shot which, in its destructiveness, was considered phenomenal. A Schenkel case shot (shrapnel) burst so close to the head of General Johnson's column as to kill six men and wound other men and horses.

In his official report Major General Wallace says: "I wish to make honorable mention at this time of Captain F. W. Alexander, whose battery was well served throughout the day."

Brigadier General Tyler reports as follows:

"Captain Alexander, with his officers and men, behaved in the most gallant manner, serving their guns with great coolness and effect, and I desire particularly to call the commanding general's attention to their conduct during the three days we were in front of the enemy."

In his memoirs General Grant writes: "Whether the delay caused by the battle amounted to a day or not, General Wallace contributed on this occasion, by the defeat of the troops under him, a greater benefit to the cause than often falls to the lot of a commander of an equal force to render by means of a victory."

It is a fact established beyond question that Wallace's "forlorn hope" battle at Monocacy saved Washington.

The defeat of Wallace was followed by Early's advance on the capital and his retreat on the 12th of July. It was followed in due course by the advance of the forces commanded by Major General Wright, consisting of the Sixth and Nineteenth Army Corps.

The battery participated in these operations until July 30, when it was practically dismounted at Halltown, Va., by General Wright. Its horses, which by the best of care, had gone through the campaign and were in excellent condition, were transferred to favored batteries of the Sixth Corps and the broken down mounts were turned over to the battery. It was then attached to the defenses of Harper's Ferry, where it continued on duty until January, 1865, when it marched to Camp Barry, Washington, D. C.

The Maryland Campaign was its last active service. In the spring of 1865, Captain Frederick W. Alexander was appointed by President Lincoln a commissary of subsistence of volunteers. The vacancy was filled by the promotion of his brother, First Lieutenant H. Eugene Alexander to be captain. Second Lieutenant Leary was promoted First Lieutenant and First Sergeant Marion A. Brian Second Lieutenant.

It was honorably mustered out June 17, 1865.

The casualties were as follows: Killed in battle, one (1) enlisted man; death by disease and wounds, seven (7) enlisted men; total eight (8).

The battery participated in the following engagements: Berryville, Va., June 13, 1863; Opequon Creek, Va., June 13, 1863; Winchester, Va., June 14, 1863; Martinsburg Pike, Va., June 15, 1863; Middletown and Catoctin Mountain, Md., July 7, 1864; Frederick, Md., July 8, 1864, and Monocacy July 9, 1864.
